HostageSlain, 11 Wounded In Oklahoma Prison Break

Foreman Used by 24 Convicts as Shield, Then Killed.

8 Still at Large, 6 Retaken Unhurt

PosseWith Bloodhounds Trails Fugitives; Two Guards Abducted.

By the Associated Press.

McAlester, Okla., May 13.—Striking with sudden savagery, two dozen dangerous convicts broke out of the State penitentiary today, killed a prison foreman they used to shield their flight, kidnaped two guards and wounded another, while ten of their bloody band were being shot down by officers.

Six of the escaping convicts were recaptured unhurt.

The bullet-pierced body of C. D. Powell, prison brickyard foreman, tumbled from a speeding automobile as it raced along a McAlester side street near the business district. Officers believed the five leaders of the break and two guard hostages were in the car.

Three of the fugitives commandeered a prison ice truck, but abandoned it about 14 miles from the penitentiary and fled into nearby woods on foot. They were reported surrounded tonight.

The State board of affairs tonight ordered an immediate investigation of prison conditions here and of the circumstances of the break, which occurred in a part of the prison to which dangerous inmates are assigned.

Wound Guard.

The convicts, armed with knives, seized Powell and Guard Tuck Cope as they lined up for noon roll call. Using the officers as shields, the prisoners forced guards at the prison gate and on the walls to surrender their weapons.

Snatching up the guns, the leaders of the break opened fire, wounded Guard Bob Gossett four times and fled in his automobile, taking Powell and two other guards, Cope and Victor Conn, with them.

The leaders of the outbreak were the ones who got away. When the guns of nearby penitentiary guards finally got into action ten convicts, racing on foot toward the escaping vanguard, were mowed down.

The half dozen convicts recaptured unhurt were picked up as they attempted to commandeer an automobile on a highway near the prison.

The fugitive who took the prison ice truck later abandoned it 14 miles away and was believed surrounded in a forest.

The ruthless five still at large had two rifles and two pistols. Their savage slaying of Foreman Powell aroused grave fears for the life of Guard Cope.

Thirty possemen trailed the fugitives, and bloodhounds were used in the forest.

Warden Roy Kenny said the motor car fugitives had been racing toward Scipio, northwest of here. He sent 30 heavily armed guards in pursuit.

Gov. E. W. Marland said all available forces would be put in the man hunt. Col. Charles Daley, State crime bureau chief, sent nine operatives here from Oklahoma City as soon as word of the break got out.

Ray Terrill, one time associate of the Kimes brothers, train and bank robbers who terrorized the Southwest several years ago, was among the wounded convicts. He was not seriously hurt.

First prison announcements were that 22 convicts had escaped from the brickyard, where "dangerous" inmates were assigned. The number was boosted to 24 after the night checkup of prisoners. It was not until then that the absence of Guard Conn was discovered.

Fugitives Named.

Officials said the fugitives were:

Claude Fugate, Claude Beavers, Claud Pugh and A. C. McArther, each serving 25 years for armed robbery; Archie Herring, 10 years for robbery, Bill Anderson, 27 years for robbery; Julius E. Bohannon, and Jess Cunningham, each serving life for murder.

Warden Kenny said the rioting prisoners had armed themselves with prison-made knives.

As they were being lined up shortly before noon, the plotters set upon Cope and Powell.

Dragging him to a tower at the gate, the convicts threatened to kill Cope unless guards on the tower handed down their guns.

Kenny said the wall guards surrendered two rifles and two pistols.

Guards on the tower opened fire on the fleeing automobile. Kenny said Gossett might have been wounded in the exchange of shots as the convicts returned the fire.

In the brickyard with the 24 prisoners were nearly 100 others who made no attempt to escape, Kenny said.

Kenny said 11 convicts piled into the guard's automobile with the two guards. Apparently, he said, six of the prisoners were forced to get off, for they were the ones picked up along the road.

Kenny said an immediate check did not disclose the identity of the three other fugitives.

Starhemberg's Rule in Austria Ended by Coup

Schuschnigg Forms a New Cabinet; Rebuff to Italy Indicated.

By the United Press.

Vienna (Thursday), May 14.—Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg was named unofficial dictator of Austria early today by President Wilhelm Miklas in what was tantamount to a bloodless coup d'etat to oust Fascist-minded forces of Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg.

After receiving free rein from President Miklas to form a new cabinet along lines he deemed best for the country's welfare, Schuschnigg's first official act was to freeze Starhemberg, former vice chancellor and leader of a powerful military group, out of the new government.

The present moment, was said to have been chosen deliberately to emphasize the Democrats' disapproval of Starhemberg's telegram to Premier Benito Mussolini congratulating him on occupation of Addis Ababa last week. Starhemberg has been a strong factor in linking Italy with Austria as virtual guarantor of the latter's independence against Germany's desire for union of Austria and Germany.

Prior to President Miklas' confirmation of Schuschnigg, the chancellor presented his and the cabinet's resignation. Miklas accepted, but immediately empowered Schuschnigg to form a new government with himself holding the portfolio of chancellor, foreign minister and probably minister of interior.

Finance—Dr. Ludwig Craxler.

Justice—Eduard Hammerstein-Quort.

National education—Dr. Hans Pertner.

Schuschnigg also relieved Starhemberg of national command of the powerful Fatherland Front, which controls the entire election apparatus provided for by the Staendestate constitution.

On the eve of Starhemberg's recent trip to Rome, the Democratic element of the cabinet precipitated a governmental crisis which threatened the vice chancellor's political career.

The issues at stake internally were fascism against democracy and internationally whether Austria will follow Italy if and when the Fascist state quits the League of Nations. Miklas' appointment of Schuschnigg was a decisive victory for democracy, but it was not known what stand Austria would take if Italy bolts the League, as Italy is virtually guarantor of Austria's independence and territorial integrity.

Secretary of Safety Is Urged in Cabinet

Chicago, May 13 (AP).—"Secretary of Safety" in the President's Cabinet to direct a national accident-prevention campaign was proposed today to the American Red Cross.

The suggestion, made by Louis I. Dublin, statistician for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., was studied with others in a "safety" symposium at the annual Red Cross convention.

Winds Rip Southeast Section; Uprooted Trees Block Traffic

'Ground Gusts' Blow Auto Off Street, Lift Porch to Roof; Rainfall of .86 Inch Chokes Eight City Sewers.

Hard-hitting "ground-gusts" accompanying yesterday's thunderstorm wrought havoc in Southeast Washington, striking with particular fury in the area bounded by Fourth street, Seventeenth street, E street and Maryland avenue northeast on the north.

In that region at least 30 trees were blown to the ground, many of them torn up by the roots. In the Lincoln Park section more than 200 branches and limbs of trees littered the streets and blocked traffic temporarily.

The wind lifted a back porch to the roof of a home at 927 Fourteenth street and picked a light automobile from the roadway and deposited it on the sidewalk near Fifth and C streets.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Spalding, at 502 B street southeast, was imprisoned in the house when a giant branch blew from a tree and lodged against the front door. The branch was removed by police and firemen.

Superintendent of Trees and Parks Clifford Lanham organized a squad to clear away fallen trees that were blocking streets. Wires down in

Britain Appeals To Exceed Ship Treaty Limits

By the Associated Press.

London, May 13.—Great Britain has asked the United States and Japan for permission to exceed the destroyer tonnage limit in the 1930 three-power naval treaty.

The request, disclosed today by Premier Stanley Baldwin in the House of Commons, may arise from increased naval construction by some nations which did not sign the agreement, naval quarters believe.

Winston Churchill, once first lord of the admiralty, asked the question which resulted in Baldwin's disclosure.

"Mr. Churchill is aware we believe we have a clear case for increasing the destroyer tonnage allocated to us under the London naval treaty," the British premier replied.

Negotiating With Powers.

"We are already in negotiation on this subject with the foreign governments concerned."

Informed sources, pondering the premier's statements, pointed out neither France nor Italy signed the naval pact, which remains in effect until January 1, 1937, when the new British-American-French agreement begins to operate upon ratification by the three governments.

(Last month Italy launched two new cruisers—the Duca Degli Abruzzi and the Garibaldi — at Spezia and Trieste, respectively.)

These sources asserted Great Britain, if she does not invoke the treaty's "escape" clause to increase her tonnage, will have to slow up her rearmament program or scrap five destroyers before the end of the year to stay inside tonnage limits.

The London pact limited destroyer tonnage for the United States

New Deal Units Fight for Share Of Relief Fund

By Felix Bruner.

The Senate Appropriations subcommittee hearing on the $1,425,000,000 relief appropriation developed yesterday into a squabble among New Deal bureau heads for a share of the money.

Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, spent all day before the sub-committee going over his previous testimony before a House committee and attempting to persuade the Senate group that his organization will need every cent of the appropriation.

Today, Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, head of the Resettlement Administration, and Secretary Ickes, head of the Public Works Administration, will make their appeals to the committee. Neither would receive any money under the bill as it passed the House.

Pleading Tugwell's cause was a group of eight Senators, who appeared before the committee yesterday. They were backed up by a long report made by Tugwell to the Senate in response to a resolution introduced by Senator Barbour (Republican), New Jersey. The report revealed Tugwell's plans to spend much more money than he now has available.

Hopkins May Get Unit.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, who headed the delegation, told the committee that the group wanted the resettlement work carried on. Later, Senator Bone (Democrat), Washington, another member of the group, said that conditions in the West were such that the work of the Resettlement Administration was necessary. He said that at least $350,000,000 would be needed.

Wheeler contended that unless an appropriation is made the Resettlement Administration will be without funds after July 1. Tugwell's report revealed that he had an unexpended balance of $102,458,112. There is some possibility that President Roosevelt will be able, if he chooses, to transfer more of the balance of last year's relief appropriation to Tugwell.

The present relief bill carries an appropriation of $885,000,000 for "rural rehabilitation and relief to farmers," but members of the committee made it clear that this appropriation is intended for Hopkins and not for Tugwell. This situation led to a hint that Hopkins might take over the Tugwell organization.

Besides Wheeler and Bone the Senators who made the appeal for Tugwell were Black (Democrat), Alabama; Murray (Democrat), Montana; Schwellenbach (Democrat), Washington; Bulow (Democrat), South Dakota; Nye (Repub-

Zeppelin Reaches Frankfort; Clips 6 Hours From Graf Time

By the United Press.

Frankfort-am-Main, Germany (Thursday), May 14.—The giant dirigible Hindenburg landed here at 4:55 a. m. (10:55 Eastern standard time, Wednesday) today, successfully completing the first two-way commercial airship flight across the North Atlantic.

The super-Zeppelin, carrying passengers and cargo, made the flight from Lakehurst, N. J., in 48 hours 28 minutes.

Despite the early hour, a large crowd had gathered at the airdrome and cheered the sky queen as she settled down easily and was fastened to the mooring mast.

The Hindenburg clipped 6 hours 54 minutes off the previous record for the eastward airship crossing of the Atlantic established by the veteran Graf Zeppelin.

A band blared "Deutschlande Uber Alles" as the ship settled down.

Robinson, Jr., Is Sentenced To Life Term

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky, May 13. — Thomas H. Robinson, jr., last of the Nation's major criminals to be captured, pleaded guilty to the Stoll kidnaping and was sentenced to life imprisonment here tonight.

The 29-year-old former inmate of a Tennessee insane asylum stolidly heard Federal Judge Elwood Hamilton pronounce sentence immediately after he had replied in an almost inaudible voice, "Guilty, your honor."

Robinson slugged Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, young Louisville society matron, with a lead pipe and snatched her from her home here October 10, 1934. For more than 19 months he eluded the Federal agents while Mahan, Karpis and other major criminals were being netted. Robinson spent most of his time traveling between New York and California and Federal agents said he spent freely the $50,000 paid him for freeing Mrs. Stoll. He had held her a week in an Indianapolis apartment.

Monday night he was caught in Glendale, Calif., and whisked here in a Government-chartered airplane. His sentence came within 48 hours after his capture. Judge Hamilton directed that Robinson be sent to Atlanta Federal Penitentiary with the usual specifications that he was subject to transfer to any other Federal prison upon order of the United States Attorney General. Loomis E. Creanor, United States marshal, and a guard of Federal agents left with him for Atlanta tonight.

Courtroom Filled.

All seats in the large Federal courtroom were filled as the kidnaper was brought in after a long wait for his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Robinson, sr., of Nashville, to arrive and confer with him and his counsel, E. B. Gabbard and Clem Huggins. The kidnaper's wife, who started divorce proceedings after she and the elder Robinson were acquitted last November of complicity in the kidnaping, was not present. Nor was the kidnaper's 5-year-old son, Jimmy, who has been told his father is dead.

Robinson came in manacled to a Federal agent and with his mother clinging to his arm. The mother, who had cried softly after visiting her son before the arraignment, recovered her composure, as did her husband and her sister. The buzz of conversation stopped. A court attach turned off a large fan.

Judge Hamilton read the first count of the indictment, charging conspiracy to kidnap. Pointing out that the other two defendants had been acquitted, he dismissed that count. Then he read the second count, charging that the defendant had abducted Mrs. Stoll and carried her across a State line, and asked: "How do you plead?"

"Guilty, your honor," Robinson replied.

Despite the quiet in the room, Robinson's voice was so low that Bunk Gardner, United States district attorney, turned to an assistant and asked what the plea was.

"It is the sentence of this court," said Judge Hamilton, "that you be confined for the term of your natural life in the penitentiary." The judge's voice was clam, but his slowly spoken words, in contrast to the kidnaper's plea, were clearly audible. The order that Robinson be sent to Atlanta followed, and he was put on a 7:15 (Central standard time) train for there tonight.

Manacled again to a Federal agent, Robinson was led back to the marshal's office. He walked stiffly and stared as in a daze over the brief proceedings that had resulted in a life sentence.

Urged by Parents.

Before the parents went back to the detention cell in the marshal's office for a farewell, it was reported they had urged him to plead guilty, impelled by the hope of a parole after 15 years. The father had said earlier today he wanted him to plead innocent on insanity grounds.

Asked when she was going back to Nashville, the mother replied, "I don't know yet. If they are going to take my boy away tonight, I may go home right away." She repressed sobs as she spoke.

A few minutes later she was back in the Marshal's office, clutching her son through the bars of the little cell, pulling him as close to her as she could. The father sat in the cell.

Glendale, Calif, May 13 (U.P.).—Federal agents tonight withdrew a watch from the bungalow where Thomas H. Robinson, jr., kidnaper, was captured Monday night, apparently abandoning hope of trapping possible accomplices.

Two men were seen frequently with Robinson, according to neighbors. The fugitive's car, a 1936 sedan, and another car, apparently owned by a young woman who lived with Robinson, were seized.

Abandonment of Million Farms Urged at Parley

Detroit, May 13 (AP).—Permanent abandonment of 1,000,000 American farms, embracing 250,000,000 acres of land, was advocated tonight by Dr. Alonzo E. Taylor, director of the Food Research Institute of Stanford University, as the means of putting agriculture on a paying basis. Addressing the annual banquet of the Dearborn conference on agriculture, industry and science, Dr. Taylor had such a vast farm exodus is the only way to assure farmers of an income sufficient to support an American standard of living.

Inflation Bill Is Killed By House, 235 to 142; Green Assails Scheme

Votes—at ANY Cost

The Authentic Story of the Building of a WPA Political Juggernaut in Westchester County, N. Y., at the Expense of the Hungry.

By Agnes E. Meyer

Part Two.

Yesterday's story of the WPA in Westchester County ended with a description of the general shake-up that took place in the town of Mamaroneck when WPA officials discovered that their Democratic pay roll was about to be exposed. But the padding of the pay roll with political proteges is not unique to this one town.

The town of Rye presents an equally sordid outline. Eleven WPA projects had 43 foremen, of whom 31 were nonrelief cases, all but two Democratic. This again represents crude overloading with foremen, not counting the field supervisors and time keepers. On Friday when the frantic shake-up took place in Rye this force was reduced to 14 foremen for the town, the WPA supervisor not having had time to clean up the village before I left the county. The men who were singled out to be left were in most cases, though not in all, the competent ones who had been carrying the work, the others being frank cases of patronage. Fifteen foremen, in other words, were there to draw salaries. The 30-odd men laid off in the two towns of Mamaroneck and Rye in two days represented some $4,000 a month saved the Federal and local governments, not counting the lesser executives who probably went with them. In order to prove that I have not selected the worst towns as illustrations, let me add one more exhibit from White Plains of men appointed to be supervisors of construction jobs, together with the Democratic Party positions. Note that Bernard Hickey, the head and front of it all, was driver on a mail truck. Far be it from me to emphasize his promotion from the Postoffice Department, but there it is. No doubt he is as well fitted for his new responsibilities as the beer salesman, the saloonkeeper, the boxer, or the vegetable dealer. (See table on page 9.)

Several of the Democratic project supervisors were transferred to other places. I am afraid it is useless for Westchester taxpayers to hope that the men who have been temporarily dismissed in the towns that are being "reformed" owing to this publicity will not turn up again on the pay roll in some other place. They probably will, unless our citizens take it upon themselves to keep an active watch in each community and keep the local papers informed as to just what is going on.

Now take the case of F— M—, of Rye. This man is a pitiful example of the obdurate selfishness of the WPA outfit. He and his wife are not only a genuine relief case, but they have to support seven children, of whom one is bedridden. This man is very able, having been superintendent of construction since 1906. WPA first gave him a job on the

Floor Fight Proves Session's Sharpest

Members Applaud at End of Hot Debate Lasting 6 Hours.

Inflation as an issue before the Seventy-fourth Congress was definitely laid low yesterday when the House defeated the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinance bill by the overwhelming vote of 235-142.

Leaders on both sides of the aisle were astonished at the size of the vote that brought the measure to defeat. Rank-and-file members, who had been badgered by whips into staying on the floor from 11 a. m. until 5:15 p. m., gave one loud whoop and slumped in their seats as Speaker Byrns announced the decision.

Branded as "inflationary" by its opponents and defended as the salvation of the debt-ridden farmers by its backers, the bill precipitated the sharpest battle of the session. It provided for the issuance of $3,000,000,000 in paper money, backed only by land value in farms. The scheme envisioned the lending of the money to farmers at an interest rate of 1½ per cent per year. The bill was brought to the floor of the House only after 218 members had signed a petition discharging the Rules Committee from its further consideration.

Reads Letter to House.

An important factor in the bill's defeat was a letter from President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, condemning it as inflationary and asking the "friends of labor" not to vote for it.

The House leadership made the most of the letter. Speaker Byrns, who almost never participates in debate, obtained time to read it while Representative Clifton Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, was in the chair. Holding his horn-rimmed glasses to his eyes with one hand, Byrns read phrases to which the House listened in tense silence.

"My Dear Congressman," Green wrote to the Speaker, "the executive council of the American Federation of Labor which is now meeting here in Washington gave special consideration to the provisions of the Frazier-Lemke act. The council is in thorough accord with all practical legislation, which has been advanced for the purpose of relieving the economic situation existing among the farmers of the Nation. We wish to see them helped and assisted by the Federal Government. This fact was demonstrated when labor gave united support to the enactment of the processing tax which was embodied in the Agriculture Adjustment Administration.

"The executive council of the American Federation of Labor, however, is opposed to the Frazier-Lemke act largely because of the inflation feature of this proposed legislation.

"Labor knows and understands that the proposal to print and circulate billions of currency as proposed in the Frazier-Lemke act will very vitally affect the economic well-being and status of labor.

Sees Labor Suffering.

"We know quite well that when inflation of the kind and character embodied in the Frazier-Lemke act is adopted commodity prices rise, but wages stand still. We cannot subscribe to this sort of economic philosophy. Labor will suffer reduction in living standards, reduced buying power and the problem of employment would become more acute. There are other features of the bill which are highly objectionable.

"For this reason we call upon our friends in Congress to vote against the enactment of this legislation. We are confident that the best interests of the wage earners of the Nation would suffer very greatly if by any chance the Frazier-Lemke bill would be enacted into law.

"We sincerely hope and trust that the Frazier-Lemke act will be defeated. We rely upon the friends of labor to vote against this proposed inflation legislation."

The Speaker was given an ovation when he concluded the letter. "Mr. Chairman," he said, "I have asked for this brief time in order to read to you a letter expressing the wishes and hopes of 50,000,000 people."

"All of my ancestors, almost without exception, were farmers," he

Tax Foes Seek Landis' Views On Stock Sales

By Robert C. Albright.

Concern over money barriers in the path of smaller corporations whose earnings may be forced into distribution by the Administration's tax proposals yesterday led to a call for Chairman James M. Landis, of the Securities and Exchange Commission, to explain existing restrictions on stock sales and the extent to which they affect the capital market.

A strong coalition opposition to the bill asked that Landis be brought before the Senate Finance Committee, following Treasury contentions that corporations, both large and small, can secure such capital as they need for the conduct of their operations by the sale of stock, either to stockholders or others. The Treasury view was challenged sharply in the committee.

Appearing before the group in executive session, Secretary Henry Morgenthau, jr., meanwhile told members that on the basis of 1934 tax returns, 283 out of a total of 600 corporations earning over $1,000,000 would have their taxes slashed in half or abolished altogether.

Senator Harry Flood Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, who had charged in a letter to Morgenthau that powerful corporate interests actually would be benefited by the bill and their smaller competitors "strangled," said this "proved" his contention.

"I am now more convinced than

Quoddy Dam, Florida Canal Pleas Renewed

Robinson Asks 19 Million for Projects; Vandenberg Scores 'Nature Fakes.'

A sudden attempt to revive the discarded Passamaquoddy power project in Maine and the Florida ship canal was made in the Senate yesterday when Senator Robinson of Arkansas, majority leader, introduced a resolution at the request of the Administration carrying a contingent appropriation of $19,000,000 for the two undertakings.

The resolution provides for appointment by the President of two boards of three engineers, each board to study one of the projects and to report to the President by June 20. Should the findings of the boards be favorable, the President would be authorized to allot $10,000,000 for additional work on the canal and $9,000,000 for Passamaquoddy.

Both the Senate and the House already have refused to appropriate any additional funds for the projects. A total of $7,000,000 has been spent on the Maine tide harnessing development and $5,000,000 on the canal.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, who conducted the successful fight against the appropriations, called the Robinson resolution "mere camouflage."

Congress never has authorized either of the projects, both of them having been financed out of the $4,880,000,000 relief appropriation.

Marine Plane Flies Zioncheck From His Woes in Puerto Rico

By the United Press.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, May 13.—Representative Marion A. Zioncheck, Washington State's fast-stepping Congressman, left San Juan with his bride tonight in a Marine plane for the Virgin Islands after his offer to "clean up the Puerto Rican situation" had been turned down by President Roosevelt.

The Congressional "playboy," whose brief honeymoon sojourn here only complicated the situation, promised to put everything on the —and in shape within "a week, if necessary, without bloodshed" if given Marine protection. He cabled his offer to the President, who replied through Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre that Gov. Blanton Winship is the Administration's representative and that he is deemed competent to handle matters.

As he was leaving the hotel, the Congressman told reporters the governor might think he had the situation well in hand "but Winship didn't see the American flag trampled in the street."

Departure of the honeymoon pair wound up an exciting 24 hours for Zioncheck. In that time he went fishing, smashed up two cars, broke down a gate, figured in a near riot, was challenged to a duel, halted by the police and finally appealed for a Marine bodyguard to protect him. He passed the time between adventures drinking coconut milk and tossing the empty gourds out the hotel window—to strike any passerby.

Nesbitt Leading In G.O.P. Race; Neely Is Winner

Returns in West Virginia Balloting Slow; Landon Supporters Ahead.

Charleston, W. Va., May 13 (AP).—Increasing returns from the West Virginia State primary today gave Frank Nesbitt, of Wheeling, the lead over Hugh Ike Shott, of Bluefield, in the Republican Senatorial contest and developed a nip and tuck contest for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Judge Lewis H. Miller, of Ripley, overtook Judge Summer H. Sharp in the gubernatorial contest after lagging from the start of the tabulation.

Candidates who said they would vote for Gov. Alf M. Landon were leading in the race for the four delegate-at-large seats in the Republican National Convention.

The returns, slowed up by the longest ballot in West Virginia's history, were too sparse to indicate definitely the winners of the other 12 of the State's 16 seats in the convention, but Landon supporters ran ahead in most instances.

The delegates at large are all supporters of National Committeeman Walter S. Hallanan, who has announced he favors the Kansas Governor.

Returns from 886 of the State's 2,347 precincts in the Republican senatorial race gave Nesbitt 31,338 and Shott 25,700. Senator M. M. Neely took a heavy lead over Ralph M. Hiner, former speaker of the House of Delegates, for the Democratic senatorial nomination. Hiner conceded his defeat. The returns gave Neely 67,354 votes and Hiner, who had the support of Senator Rush D. Holt, 22,770.

Attorney General Homer A. Holt, friend of Gov. H. G. Kump, led in the Democratic race for Governor. Returns from 743 precincts gave him 39,587 votes and L. R. Via, Huntington attorney, 26,331.

Republicans gave Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, 19,364 votes in 534 precincts in the Republican Presidential preference contest.

Landon's name was not on the ballot, and Borah was opposed only by Leo J. Chassee, of Wisconsin, whose vote was small.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt was the popular choice of the Democratic voters in the Presidential preference in which he was opposed only by Joseph A. Coutremarsh, of New Hampshire. Candidates for the 16 Democratic National Convention seats all are pledged to support the President, who polled 47,816 votes in 534 precincts.

All six Democratic incumbents in the National House of Representatives were leading opponents in the contest for recommmmmmm in the contest for renomination. Representative Andrew H. Edmiston trailed in the early voting but gradually forged ahead of Byron Randolph, a 30-year-old State Senator.

Jerusalem Curfew Decreed in Rioting

Jerusalem, May 13 (Palcor Agency)—The government proclaimed a curfew for the old City of Jerusalem tonight after two more Jews were killed in clashes with Arabs. The curfew prohibits all street movements between 10 p. m. and 6 a. m.

As a result of the killings today, which raised the Jewish death toll to 22 since April 19, armed guards of police began patrolling the entire area of the Jewish quarter in the old city.

Nearly 700 Arab families moved from their homes near the Jewish settlement of Mishmar Haemek to avoid payment of collective fines imposed on Arabs for setting fires to Jewish crops. Only three families remain in the entire village.

Defeat of Inflation Shows Ebb of Radical Sentiment; Vote Was Defiance of Coughlin.

By Franklyn Waltman

DEFEAT of the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing bill by the decisive vote of 235 to 142 votes in the House is one of the most significant events to take place on Capitol Hill this year—the more surprising because of the substantial margin by which a majority voted to force the bill to the floor and a vote.

WALTMAN

The sharp defeat of the measure, in the first place, can be taken as a sound indication that enthusiasm for radical, experimental legislation, especially that dealing with the currency, is slowly drying up in Congress. It is true that the Administration forces were pitted against the bill, but on previous occasions the monetary experimenters on Capitol Hill have demonstrated they could take the New Dealers with them.

But far more important than this aspect of the matter, the vote represented a defiance of Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, and his National Union for Social Justice. Father Coughlin has been one of the most forceful advocates of the measure and not only threatened revenge on those who opposed his will but in some instances actually made good his threat.

In the face of Father Coughlin's vindictive attitude and his ability to bring about the defeat of members of Congress whom he could not coerce, the House majority showed a courage that statesmanship which unhappily has not on all occasions been present on Capitol Hill.

Indeed, as the House was voting the Associated Press in a dispatch from Columbus, Ohio, reported that the Detroit priest was directly responsible for the defeat of two members of the House—possibly a third one—in the Ohio primary. Not only did Father Coughlin inflict defeat on these incumbents, but, the dispatch stated, 15 of the 32 indorsees of the National Union for Social Justice were victorious in the election.

Previously Representative William M. Berlin, of Pennsylvania, felt Father Coughlin's wrath because he had withdrawn his name from the petition for the discharge of the committee considering the mortgage refinancing bill. Mr. Berlin after his defeat for renomination rushed back to Washington and immediately resigned the discharge petition—an action directly responsible for forcing the bill to the floor this week.

* * *

In view of the disasten which has overtaken some of those who have opposed Father Coughlin, it would not have been surprising if the House had let the Frazier-Lemke measure pass, knowing full well that it would be defeated in the Senate, or—barring that—by a Presidential veto. But it is to the credit of the House that its backbone stiffened in the face of this ecclesiastical politician and that it assumed in full measure its responsibility.

Perhaps the beginning of this revolt against Father Coughlin—it should be remembered that he was responsible for the defeat of American adherence to the World Court proctocol—dates from the day the priest savagely assailed Chairman John J. O'Connor, of the House Rules Committee, because the latter had not advanced the Frazier-Lemke measure.

Mr. O'Connor was in the happy position of being a Catholic and consequently could not be accused of disrespect to a man of God when he hit back—and he hit back hard. He threatened to "kick" the Detroit priest from the Capitol to the White House should he show his face in Washington. Subsequently Mr. O'Connor retracted such belligerent language, but in its place he severely dressed-down Father Coughlin—to the cheers of the House.

Once a courageous man defies one of these would-be political dictators and is not struck down in the act, the backbones of many less bold colleagues usually begin to stiffen. It was thus when Senator Carter Glass several years ago demonstrated that he could not be coerced by another ecclestiastical politician, Bishop James Cannon—and who remembers the latter now.

When Father Coughlin turned the Administration's World Court fight from a victory into a defeat by inspiring over the radio the dispatch of thousands of telegrams of protest to Capitol Hill, he was riding high politically. Many members of Congress feared his oratorical power—for that is all he has—and some trembled at mention of his name.

But that has been changed. Some may still fear him—but in the corridors of the House wing of the Capitol his advocacy of the Frazier-Lemke bill was used as an argument for its defeat. Members pointed out to each other that if the bill were passed Father Coughlin would be the "political dictator of this Congress" and there would be nothing to do but knuckle to his desires. And a majority was convinced.

* * *

Incidentally, House Democratic Whip Patrick Boland's reputation as a prognosticator of votes in that body was fully sustained and enhanced by the Frazier-Lemke defeat. From the beginning of this session of Congress he has confidently stated that the House would not pass the bill. He made the same contention even after the House had voted to force a vote on the bill earlier this week.

Taft Slate Wins 47 G.O.P. Votes, Borah 5, in Ohio

Count Is Unofficial But No Change Is Indicated as Precincts Report.

By the Associated Press.

Columbus, Ohio, May 13.—Ohio primary voters had apportioned tonight the State's 52 important Republican Convention delegates—47 to a "favorite-son" candidate and 5 to Senator William E. Borah.

This was the unofficial result of Tuesday's balloting with less than 1,500 of the State's 8,379 precincts yet to report. There was no indication of any change in the trend.

Backed by the State organization, the "favorite-son" forces supporting Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati, apparently elected eight delegates at large and 39 district delegate candidates.

Trailing far behind the State-wide delegate-at-large voting, supporters of Borah won two places in the Akron industrial district and one each in three other districts.

Not Bound Under Law.

Elected delegates, although nominally committed to support at the convention their declared choices, will be free under law and custom to vote as they wish without restriction.

On the Democratic side, President Roosevelt won unqualified indorsement in a New Deal "popularity test" with Col. Henry Breckinridge, of New York. It was a legally impotent preference vote without effect on delegate's voting or selection.

Gov. Martin L. Davey, triumphed easily in a Democratic gubernatorial contest with Representative Stephen M. Young, of Cleveland, and Charles H. Hubbell, of Cleveland.

A complete tabulation of the primary ballot, one of the most complex in Ohio's history, was not expected before Thursday morning.

Taft interpreted the result to show that "Republican voters of Ohio are in favor of choosing a candidate and writing a platform uncompromisingly opposed to President Roosevelt and the New Deal."

Seeks Party Solidarity.

Chairman Edward D. Schorr, of the State Republican committee, which advocated the "favorite son" plan to permit delegates to "look over the prospects" on the convention floor, said he hoped "any animosities which the primary may have engendered may now be forgotten in the interest of party success in November."

Roosevelt's Margin Large.

President Roosevelt buried Breckinridge under an avalanche of 419,622 votes from 7,258 precincts. Breckinridge had only 27,137. The President won Ohio's 52 Democratic convention votes without opposition in the delegate contest.

In the Rpublican Presidential preferential contest, which also was without any effect on the vote of convention delegates, Attorney Stephen A. Day, of Evanston, Ill., was unopposed.

Attorney General John W. Bricker won the Republican Gubernatorial nomination unopposed.

Former Representative John McSweeney, of Wooster, and Lieut. Gov. Harold G. Mosier, of Cleveland, won the Democratic nominations and George H. Bender, of Cleveland, and L. L. Marshall, of Cleveland, the Republican nominations for Representatives-at-large.

Two Democrats Defeated.

Two, and possibly three, incumbent Democratic Congressmen were defeated for renomination by an avalanche of votes ostensibly directed to their opponents by Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit's radio priest.

Not only did the National Union for Social Justice, directed by Father Coughlin, score a triumph over incumbent lawmakers, but apparently 15 of its 32 indorsees in both parties were nominated with the possibility of a sixteenth being added by late returns.

The strength of the National Union for Social Justice was one of the biggest surprises of the Statewide primary of which there were many. Democratic and Republican leaders had an inkling that the organization's influence would be felt in the primary, but never suspected its actual strength.

Incumbent Congressmen defeated by National Union candidates were Warren J. Duffy, in the Ninth (Toledo) District, and William L. Fiesinger, of the Thirteenth (Sandusky) District. Duffy lost to State Senator John F. Hunter, of Toledo, and Fiesinger to Mayor Henry Hart, of Sandusky.

Harter in Close Race.

Representative Dow W. Harter, of the Fourteenth (Akron) District, was in a close race with Daniel E. Falkner, of Akron, carrying the National Union banner.

The veteran Representative Chester C. Bolton, of the Twenty-second (Cleveland) District, chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee, was pressed closely in early returns for renomination by Frank H. Fagan, a National Union man. Bolton finally took the lead as Cuyahoga County precincts gave him steady pluralities.

Independent Democrats, many of whom had N. U. S. J. support, won two of the three Democratic nominations for State Senator and all seven of the nine Democratic State representative nominations for which they contested in the Queen City election. They nominated their candidate for county prosecutor, won one county central seat, and one State central committee seat.

Clarence J. Brown, Blanchester publisher, led the "favorite son" slate of eight delegates at large with 229,017 votes in 7,140 precincts. He has directed a Col. Frank Knox-Knox-for-President movement in Ohio.

Daniel E. Morgan, former Cleveland city manager, with 128,164 votes, was top man for the Borah forces, but was far below the 169,082 polled in 7,140 precincts by Frank M. Ransbottom, of Zanesville, eighth man on the Taft slate.

Borah Assails Stand of Party On State Rights

By the Associated Press.

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, commenting on the Ohio primary election results, said yesterday the men in control of the Republican Party "have already demonstrated that they care nothing about constitutional integrity or the preservation of State rights."

Borah said for the "sake of a few votes" the men in charge of the party had "advocated a measure which strikes at the very heart of State sovereignty." He referred to the Costigan-Wagner antilynching bill.

"The Constitution and the rights of the States would not be any safer in their hands than in the hands of those who openly advocate a change in our form of Government," he said.

Borah said that as to the "general result" of the Ohio primary "I have no comment nor complaint."

"But there is one thing which I think is worthy of public attention," Borah added. "The Republican Party will go into the campaign laying great stress upon constitutional integrity and the preservation of State rights."

"The men who are in control of the party and who will likely be in control of the convention will write its platform and name its candidate have already demonstrated that they care nothing about constitutional integrity or the preservation of State rights, that their talk on this subject is hypocritical and intellectually dishonest.

"In New York, in Illinois and in Ohio, for the purpose of securing the votes of the colored people, they have advocated a measure which strikes at the very heart of State sovereignty and, if adopted, would utterly destroy the fundamental principle of our dual sovereignty of government.

"They have been willing to do so for the sake of a few votes.

"The Constitution and the rights of the States would not be any safer in their hands than in the hands of those who openly advocate a change in our form of Government."

"They have gone to the colored people," Borah continued, "and given them to understand that the Republican Party will pass the so-called anti-lynching bill.

"And they have either been guilty of a willful betrayal of one of the most fundamental principles of our system of government or they have been guilty of the deliberate deception of the colored voter.

"Doubtless the platform at the Cleveland convention will have much in it about the preservation of the Constitution and the rights of the States. There will be much said about the great debt of gratitude the people of this country owe to the Supreme Court for its decisions in the NRA and the AAA cases, and protecting the integrity of the States. And yet the so-called anti-lynching bill is in contravention to every principle announced in these decisions.

"And the pathetic ineptitude of their contention is illustrated by the fact that the last battalion of the colored voters are on their way into the Democratic Party. They know these men who are talking to them about anti-lynching measures have never raised their hands, or voices, to help the colored man in any respect whatever except for purely corrupt election purposes."

Girl Testifies In New York's Vice Ring Trial

Dewey Describes Luciano as Overlord Collecting $35,000 a Day.

By the United Press.

New York, May 13.—A 25-year-old girl twisted nervously in the witness chair today as she told how she went to work for a vast vice organization allegedly organized by "Lucky" Luciano, who earned the incredible sum of $35,000 a night from his traffic in women.

Rose Cohen had reason to be nervous, because staring at her from across the courtroom was Luciano himself—New York's Public Enemy No. 1—a dark, tousle-haired man who directed his business from a suite high in the expensive Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. That business, according to Special Prosecutor Thomas Dewey, was to place girls like Rose Cohen in houses of prostitution and take half of their earnings.

Luciano and nine of his alleged accomplices are on trial in supreme court, charged with compulsory prostitution. The fabulous Luciano—the man who spent $100,000 fighting extradition from Hot Springs, Ark.—looked a little seedy today, as Dewey charged that he fought his way to the leadership of the vice ring with knife and pistol.

Girl Tells of Business.

The Cohen girl admitted that she had been a prostitute for several years before an agent of the alleged ring approached her. This agent she named as Pete Balitzer, who pleaded guilty to compulsory prostitution before the jury could be picked.

"Pete asked me if I wanted to work steady," Rose said, "and I told him I did. He took me to a house."

Rose said her earnings varied at different houses, sometimes dropping as low as $114 a week. She gave percentages to Pete and the madams, she said.

The girl's story followed the general outlines of Dewey's opening statement, in which he described how Luciano allegedly seized control of the vice racket in New York City. The special prosecutor sometimes lapsed into the language of the underworld as he told of secret meetings, threats, bribes, shootings and stabbings.

Like Vaudeville Circuit.

"Until a few years ago," Dewey said, "prostitution was a private matter. A woman worked her trade alone, or she was one of a house run by a madam. But they kept the money they earned. Then, a few years ago, a group of men began organizing prostitution syndicates. They took the profits and paid off the girls and kept most of the money themselves.

"These chains grew. The bookie appeared. He sent girls from house to house. These bookers would run a sort of vaudeville circuit. But I am not after the bookies and the small fry in this case. I am after the man at the top and he is known as Luciano, although I believe his real name to be Lucania."

Employment Check Committee Named

Swiftly following up the favorable national reaction to their proposal to make a survey of the reemployment possibilities in industry throughout the country, the United States Chamber of Commerce yesterday announced the personnel of the committee which will guide the survey.

President Harper Sibley listed the following names of members who will study means to expand further private employment in answer to President Roosevelt's demand that industry re-employ more persons or face higher taxes through continued high relief costs:

The committee met yesterday with Mr. Sibley and hope to be able, within the next week, to outline a program of work.

Indian Dances, Rituals To Be Staged at Festival

Secretary of the Interior Ickes announced yesterday that an Indian festival will be staged in the Sylvan Theater on the Washington Monument grounds Saturday at 8 p. m. Native dances and rituals will be presented by representatives of the Navajo, Pueblo and Hopi Indian nations.

First Assistant Secretary of the Interior T. A. Walters will act as master of ceremonies, and Commissioner of Indian Affairs John Collier will give a short address. The affair will be open to the public.

Winds Rip Southeast Section

several sections of the city called further repair men to work.

The rescue squad also was being called continuously to assist in disposal of wreckage. In the Fifth Precinct five trees fell on automobiles, causing extensive damage. One of the most seriously damaged cars was owned by C. G. Jameson, of 409 A street southeast.

At Eighth and D streets southeast the plate-glass window of the Crouse Barber Shop was broken by a falling limb.

Lights were out over an hour last night in the section between Fourth and Sixth streets southeast.

The waterfront escaped the worst effects of the storm and harbor police reported that no boats had been torn from their moorings.

The Weather Bureau reported a rainfall of approximately .70 inches during the hour and 20 minutes the storm lasted. Most of the rain fell in the first few minutes after the storm broke.

Weather Bureau officials explained the storm pranks as caused by sudden "ground gusts." The average velocity of the storm itself, they said, was only about 30 miles per hour.

"Ground gusts," they said, were sudden down drafts, sometimes reaching a velocity of 50 miles an hour or greater, occurring in front of the storm. The down drafts flatten when they strike the ground, often picking up objects standing in their path.

Just preceding the storm, residents in sections of Northwest Washington reported miniature dust storms whirling sand and grit through open windows.

Hail also fell in some sections of the city for several minutes. No hail damage was reported, however, since the stones were, for the most part, of small size.

Hail Storm Damages Crops.

A violent hailstorm damaged crops and farm buildings in a strip 2 miles wide and 10 miles long near Clarksburg in Montgomery County, Md. The damage was estimated as at least $50,000.

Farmers said that growing wheat in the area was practically destroyed, being leveled by hailstones said to be as large as walnuts. Windows were smashed, barns and silos blown down and poultry killed. The hail, which lasted 15 minutes, was described as the worst in 40 years.

At the height of the storm lightning struck a phone pole near Glen Echo. It sounded the fire alarm siren and put about 50 phones out of commission.

In Washington, the hailstones took a toll of the light globes at the Capitol Plaza, 47 being smashed. The stones beat down so loudly on the glass roof of the House chamber that debate on the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing bill was all but drowned out.

Northwest storm warnings displayed 10 p. m. Virginia Capes to Eastport, Me. Disturbance over St. Lawrence Valley increasing in intensity and moving eastward; will cause fresh to strong southwest shifting to strong northwest winds with squalls tonight and early Thursday.

Today, the Weather Bureau predicted, will be fair and a great deal cooler, perhaps as much as 15 degrees. Immediately following the storm yesterday the temperature dropped to 65, but had climbed to 69 degrees by 6 o'clock.

41 Judges Quit Illinois Bar Unit

Chicago, May 13 (AP).—A difference in opinion between members of the Cook County judiciary and the Chicago Bar Association over the ethics of judges partcipating actively in politics culminated today in the withdrawal of more than two score jurists from the association.

Meeting in closely guarded session in the courtroom of Circuit Judge James J. Kelly, 41 members of the circuit and superior benches signed a statement of resignation from the professional body which had cited some 22 judges to appear before it. It specified that they were overly active in the spirited campaign which preceded the April 14 primary election.

Judges affiliated with both parties joined in the withdrawal. It was precipitated by a secret meeting of the jurists yesterday at which a test vote favored the step, 29 to 1.

Clerk Declares His Tip Solved Robinson Case

Allen, Here for Brief Stay, Reaffirms Story Despite Hoover Denial.

Lynn Allen, chief soda man in a Pasadena, Calif., drug store, flew into Washington late yesterday and remained long enough to reaffirm his part in the capture of Thomas H. Robinson, jr., despite an emphatic denial by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation.

En route from Los Angeles to New York to participate in a radio program last night, Allen stepped out of an American Airlines plane, to be surrounded by photographers and reporters.

"Robinson, dressed in woman's clothing, came into the Owl Drug Store, where I am soda fountain manager, on the morning of April 7," he said. "He, or she, took a seat at the counter.

"The customer pointed on the menu card to the order number 'she' wanted instead of speaking it out," continued Allen, between gulps of a bottled soft drink inside the airport terminal.

Suspicions Aroused.

"That aroused my suspicion. Another thing, 'she' was tall. I think I know all the tall girls in Pasadena, but I didn't recognize this one. Also, when 'she' applied lip rouge, it was with a crude, unwomanly swipe instead of by dainty dabbing."

Ever since hearing a description of Robinson, wanted for the Louisville kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll in the fall of 1934, on a commercial radio broadcast several months ago, Allen has scrutinized all strangers coming into the drug store, he said.

So when the queer acting patron left the counter, said the soda clerk, he said he got in touch with a Detective Mansell, of the Pasadena police force.

Five days later, when the story appeared in local papers, special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation were put on the case and subsequently questioned Allen, Hoover said yesterday. Allen's story was fully investigated but it was definitely proved that the customer served by Allen was not the wanted Robinson, Hoover declared.

Allen Link Denied.

"Neither directly nor indirectly did Allen aid in the capture of Robinson," Hoover said.

"There is not one scintilla of foundation to the claim Allen gave our men the tip which eventually led to Robinson's capture Monday night.

"The arrest was made on purely investigative lines which we are not disclosing. Anyway, it is highly illogical he was dressed as a woman, for when he was arrested he had grown a mustache which was too abundant to have been grown in the little time between Allen's seeing him and his arrest by our men."

At the same time, it was pointed out that Robinson has not been going disguised as a woman for several months.

When Hoover's flat denial of his claims was relayed to Allen yesterday, he remarked:

"That's their business. We'll see about it later."

The radio program on which Allen was scheduled to appear last night is the same one which interested him in the Robinson lookout, he said.

$324,000 Estate Left Widow by Dr. Hardin

Mrs. Rosalie T. Hardin, widow of Dr. Bernard Lauriston Hardin, of 1329 Connecticut avenue, who died April 29, was named sole beneficiary of his $324,000 estate, it was shown in District Supreme Court yesterday when a petition for the probate of his will was filed.

The widow was also named executrix of the estate at the instance of the law firm of Douglas, Obear, Morgan & Campbell. A large portion of the estate was composed of stocks and bonds, there being only $41,000 of real estate shown by the petition. The latter was represented by the Hardin home.

Senators DelayPlea For AlleyAuthority

A delegation of sponsors of the Alley Dwelling Authority was turned away by the Senate Deficiency Apprporiations sub-committee yesterday until Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, could be questioned on Federal relief.

A dozen persons, led by John Ihlder, ADA administrator, were on hand to plead for restoration of the $300,000 cut from the bill by the House. They were told they would be notified when they can be heard.

Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, is sponsoring the Senate move to restore the $300,000 so that the work of the ADA will not be terminated abruptly on June 30.

Trio Convicted In Detroit Bank Collapse of '33

Bonds Continued Pending Argument on Verdict Set for Next Week.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, May 13.—Three officers of the former Peoples Wayne County Bank were convicted in Federal court today on criminal charges growing out of the Michigan banking collapse of February, 1933.

Still another trio from among the 34 bankers indicted after the State's banking difficulties had been the subject of a congressional investigation conducted by Ferdinand Pecora will go on trial Friday.

The three men convicted today by a jury of 11 women and 1 man are John R. Bodde, Donald N. Sweeny and Edwin J. Eckert. Each was found guilty on three counts charging him with false entries in reports to the Federal Reserve Board in 1931, false entry in the bank's books, and conspiracy to violate banking laws.

Their $2,500 bonds were continued by Judge Patrick T. Stone until next week, when arguments to set aside the verdict will be heard. Each of the first two counts carries a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment and $5,000 fine, while the maximum on the conspiracy count is $10,000 fine and two years' imprisonment.

The Government charged the false entries were made to conceal the $145,000 purchase by the bank of 1,143 shares of stock in the Detroit Bankers Co., holding concern which controlled the Peoples Wayne. The purchase was made, the Government contended, to comply with a resolution by directors of the Detroit Bankers Co., calling for measures to stabilize the market for its stock.

Canadian Distillers Settle Claim of U.S.

By the Associated Press.

By agreeing to pay an undisclosed sum, a group of Canadian liquor distillers last night was again in the good graces of the United States Government.

After ten days of negotiations between their representatives and officials of the Treasury, State and Justice Departments, it was learned a substantial amount had been agreed upon to compensate this Government for customs duties and taxes lost in liquors smuggled into this country during prohibition.

The original claim of the United States was for approximately $100,000,000, but it is believed the settlement was drastically scaled down from that figure.

The Treasury, as a result, will not urge enactment of a pending bill in Congress which would forbid importation of distilled products of any Canadian firm whose liquors were smuggled into this country.

Navy to Build New Type Dock In Isle Defense

Standley Discloses Plan for Hawaiian Unit to Cost $10,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

With Congressional action nearly completed on the peace-time record Navy appropriation bill, Admiral William H. Standley, Acting Secretary, said yesterday the Navy was ready to start immediate construction of a $10,000,000 floating dry dock as part of the Hawaiian Island defense line.

He disclosed this as he appeared to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the negotiations which led to the signing of the new London Treaty now before the committee. The committee meeting was postponed, however, because of the absence of several members.

Construction of the monster steel drydock of a new type and design superior to that of any other nation, as a major project in increasing the Navy's efficiency in the Pacific has been under discussion and consideration for 15 years. It would be located at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Bids to Be Asked.

"Plans for construction of the new dry dock have been completed by the Bureau of Yards and Docks," Standley said, "and we will issue invitations for bids within the next few days."

The Navy appropriation bill is now in conference between the Senate and the House. As it passed the House, it called for expenditure of $531,070,000. The Senate reduced this to $529,000,000.

The new dry dock—a gigantic floating machine shop equipped to handle any ship the Navy now has, or plans to build—would be 1,016 feet long, 165 feet wide, and 75 feet from top to keel.

To handle battleships it would be able to submerge for docking to a maximum of 65 feet, which would necessitate dredging operations in Pearl Harbor before the new dock could be floated into position.

Dredging Under Way.

The Navy's program calls for dredging of 25,400,000 cubic yards at cost of $8,000,000. Approximately one-fourth of the required dredging has been done and $2,000,000 to continue the work is provided in the appropriation bill.

Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy all have floating drydocks, Navy officials said, but none—including the big British dock at Singapore—is of the new type to be built for Pearl Harbor.

Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American delegation at the London Conference, and members of the delegation's staff were present, with Standley, ready to give the committee the "inside story" of the negotiations which preceded singing of the new Naval Treaty by the United States, Great Britain and France, when Chairman Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, postponed the committee meeting until tomorrow.

The treaty was sent to the Senate Tuesday by President Roosevelt, and ratification at this session has been predicted. It would limit the size but not the numbers of certain types of war vessels.

Ex-Crown Prince Scored For Congratulating Duce

Berlin, May 13 (AP).—Das Schwarz Korps, official organ of Adolf Hitler's black-shirted Schutz Staffel Guard, today berated former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm for sending a congratulatory telegram to Premier Mussolini on the Italian conquest of Ethiopia.

The message, which appeared in Italian papers but which the German press, doubtless under orders, ignored, read:

"Beg Your Excellency accept my best congratulations on victorious ending Abyssinian war, which, despite all opposing forces, found definite conclusion to general surprise. Long live King; long live Duce."

Paraguay Red Plots Stamped Out, Is Claim

Asuncion, Paraguay, May 13 (AP).—Extremist plots have been stamped out, the government of President Rafael Franco said tonight, and an attempted general strike in the capital has been crushed.

(The general strike was called yesterday after several labor leaders were arrested and ordered deported. It was only partly successful.)

The government said the strike attempt was provoked by "agitators who simulated support of the revolution in order to infiltrate among the working masses and organize an infernal machine of demagogy linked with international communism."

'Kidnaped' Boy Back; Sought $20,000 for Fun

Irvington, N. J., May 12 (U.P.).—Federal agents were about to step into the alleged kidnaping of Harold McGuiness tonight when the 13-year-old Boy Scout returned home and admitted he wrote a $20,000 ransom note.

Police dropped their investigation and search for McGuiness who disappeared last night when he appeared at the home of his uncle, Edward F. Lapp, and confessed he wrote the ransom letter "just for fun."

The boy said he came home because he was hungry.

Phillips Praises London Treaty, Trade Accords

State Undersecretary, in Radio Talk, Cites Advantages of Agreements.

Hailing the reciprocal trade agreements, the London Naval Treaty and the coming Inter-American Conference at Buenos Aires as evidences of a "new era of friendliness," Undersecretary of State William Phillips last night said in a radio address marking International Goodwill Day:

"At first sight, the past year presents a discouraging record of distrust among the nations. Apprehension has seemed to wax everywhere; armaments have been on the increase; efforts to concert for better international relations have appeared to be of little avail. * * * The pateint accomplishments of statesmen seeking to construct positively * * * have been somewhat obscured."

Speaking of the London Naval Treaty he said:

"This treaty preserves the conception of agreement on the naval strength of the principal powers. At this time of general unrest, it is, in fact, the cornerstone of a new system of approach to the problem, based on the channeling of fleets into fixed types, as well as upon the exchange of information between the signatories to the treaty as to their prospective naval construction. Thus it marks a great advance over any system so far devised."

He reminded listeners that the obligation of working toward international good will rests particularly on teachers, "who in such great numbers are affiliated with the World Federation of Education Associations." He said:

"Theirs is the task of impressing on the youth of all countries that, although nations are free and sovereign and independent and have rights, they have obligations to respect the rights of others too."

and Great Britain to 150,000 tons and Japan to 105,000 tons.

The British premier refused to disclose whether the government plans to utilize the escape clause, while naval attaches said they were without knowledge as to when the overtures were made to Washington and Tokyo.

Baldwin declared his government had sent the text of the new naval pact (formulated at London this year) to the Japanese, but at present had no indication of Japan's attitude toward it.

(The new treaty provides powers other than the three original signatories may join in the agreement by approving the text in full.)

Japanese Building Urged.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, May 13.—Japan's naval secretary, Admiral Osami Magano, told Parliament today that the nation must build more ships soon or be outdistanced by America.

Japan now has a naval strength 80 per cent of that of the United States, the admiral told a budget sub-committee o fthe Lower House of Parliament.

But, he added, unless a new construction program soon is undertaken, the Japanese ratio will fall to 58 per cent of American strength by 1941.

Wallace Predicts 4,000,000 Will Join New Soil Program

Political Significance Seen in Enthusiasm of Eastern Farmers for New Plan; They Were Displeased at AAA.

From 4,500,000 to 5,000,000 farmers will participate in the soil conservation program this year, according to the estimates of AAA experts, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace told a press conference yesterday.

He classed the figures as "too optimistic," indicating that his own "guess" would be about 500,000 less.

There are appproximately 6,500,000 farms in the country. Original AAA estimates forecast an 80 per cent participation by farmers in the program, stipulating that percentage as essential to its success and as necessary to maintain the $10 per acre benefit payments. The actual present participation will range from 75 to 79 per cent.

Observers immediately attached wide political significance to the Secretary's revelation that participation by farmers in the Northeast area (Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and New England) will be ten times as great as under the defunct AAA.

Thousands of the half-million farmers in this area were disgruntled by their inability to participate in production-control benefit payments under the old AAA.

The new program remedies this situation under the device of payments for the planting of soil-building and soil-conserving crops, which Eastern farmers traditionally do anyway, according to informed sources. They will now benefit to the extent of from $25 to $50 from such practices, officials said.

The extent of the Eastern farmers' welcome of the new program is shown graphically by figures.

Under the old program, from 5 to 7 per cent of the farmers participated. Under the new program from 60 to 75 per cent will have their names on the benefit rolls.

The Secretary said he "could see that the new program obviously had a greater appeal in the Eastern States than the AAA."

In discussing the general participation set-up as outlined by his officials, the Secretary stated that in the major food and feed crops (corn, wheat, rye, oats, barley, potatoes, etc.) the outline showed three-fourths of all farmers participating. In the second division, including cotton, rice, peanuts, etc., there is an 80 per cent participation. In sugar, sugarcane, flax, etc., there is a 90 per cent participation.

In the first class there is a diversion from soil-depleting base acreage to a soil-conserving basis of more than 19,000,000 acres in the country. The Secretary then pointed out that there would be 236,000,000 acres of crops of the first class in production this year, a figure slightly over last year's.

However, the yield last year was 10 per cent below normal, due to a number of factors, (figured on a base acreage yield) and if an average yield comes this year, as is expected, the total will be about 10 per cent above last year's.

The winter wheat crop figurs at about 463,000,000 bushels, he said, with a normal spring crop estimated at 210,000,000 bushels, the total reaching 673,000,000 bushels of wheat, which will mean a slight surplus, according to officials. In peak years in the United States wheat has totaled about 800,000,000 bushels.

AAA officials generally do not believe the new program is nearly as effective a production control device as the old AAA, some of them said yesterday. They pointed out that "fortuitous circumstances" are bringing about production control this year, but that on the whole the Administration is unable to control production as precisely as before.

D. C. Airport Unit Members Confer

Two members of a subcommittee of the District airport site commission met yesterday and discussed a program for the full commission, but they withheld announcement of the program pending approval by the third member.

Senator Austin (Republican), Vermont, and Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, chief of the Army Air Corps, were the members who conferred. Representative Nichols (Democrat), Oklahoma, was absent because of the House vote on the Frazier-Lemke bill.

Gen. Westover, chairman of the subcommittee, said an announcement probably will be made today.

Police Seek Gunman Who Eluded Cordon

Detectives yesterday were searching for a well-dressed man, about 40, who escaped from the Raleigh Hotel through a cordon of police after he had drawn a gun on the night clerk.

The prowler was discovered by John K. Odlin, 39, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a salesman, when the man tried to enter Odlin's room. Lewis Edwards, hotel clerk, son of Police Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, was notified and was threatened by the man.

Nearly 50 policemen were called to the scene and surrounded the hotel, but the "stranger" managed to escape.

Crop Insurance Gains Support Of Two Parties

Pope Submits Measure in Senate; Landon Is Interestde.

By the Associated Press.

Promises of at least partial support for the principles of a new Federal crop insurance plan came from some Republicans as well as Democrats yesterday, immediately following introduction of a bill to this end by Senator James P. Pope (Democrat), Idaho.

Broadly, it would create a Federal crop insurance corporation from which the owner or operator of a farm could purchase insurance against all natural damages to any growing agricultural commodity. Premium charges would be based on actual cost, and any profits to the corporation would be used to reduce premiums on subsequent policies.

George N. Peek, a former New Deal farm administrator, who has been active for a number of years in both the Republican and Democratic parties in behalf of farm legislation, said the principles of crop insurance were "well worthy of consideration" by Congress and the national political conventions.

"I would keep the Government out of it as far as possible, however," he said. "There is no reason why private agencies could not provide adequate crop insurance with limited Government support."

Wallace Silent.

Chester Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said the national farm program under any political party eventually must include crop insurance.

"We have been working toward some system of national crop insurance for 10 years," he said, "and I am glad Senator Pope introduced the bill regardless of whether the farm bureau will be with him on every point."

Secretary Henry A. Wallace withheld immediate formal comment. He would be on the board of directors of the corporation. Two other members would be appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Senator William J. Bulow (Democrat), South Dakota, in whose State farmers have suffered repeated crop losses from drought and dust storms, said he hesitated to put the Government into more "business," but that he favored crop insurance as a part of any future national farm program.

"It seems the Government is in enough business now," he said, "but I would support the principles of Senator Pope's bill. In the past, AAA benefit payments have acted as crop insurance in my State but with that protection withdrawn we certainly must find some other way to meet the drought loss problem."

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, declaring that crop insurance features of outlawed AAA benefit payments must be continued in some form, said Pope's bill probably had the "nucleus answer."

Landon Studying Problem.

"I would favor a Government corporation if crop insurance could not be worked out on a national scale any other way. The risk is too great for a single company or an individual State to assume.

"It has been the history of crop insurance enterprises that their liability was too centralized. Local tornadoes or insect infestations have wiped out the resources of private companies or forced their rates to prohibitive levels. In any crop insurance plan local losses must be borne by the premium income of the entire country or of great geographical regions."

Capper said Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, whom he is supporting for the Republican Presidential nomination, had been "giving a lot of thought" to crop insurance.

Senator Pope said the "selling point" in his bill was the provision that crop damage liability be limited to the loss suffered at the time of disaster.

"Heretofore companies have gone broke trying to pay damages on the basis of what the crop would have been worth had it matured and sold at prevailing market prices," he said.

"I propose, for instance, that if corn is damaged in July the farmer be paid on an estimate of what the crop was worth at that time rather than on the basis of a yield in September."

1935 Arizona Slaying Studied by U. S. Agents

Phoenix, Ariz., May 13 (AP).—Department of Justice agents disclosed today they were investigating the 16-month-old slaying of Albert Eugene Morris, 21, Farmland, Ind., whose body was found on the Salt River Valley Indian Reservation, a bullet through the head.

An Indian came upon Norris' body, lying near a desert road 9 miles northeast of Scottsdale, five weeks after he disappeared from a tourist camp at Temple in January, 1935.

Blood Cell Data Win GoldMedal Of Medical Unit

Chicago University Doctors Show Only 'Hot' Bones Create Corpuscles.

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, Mo., May 13.—The gold medal of the American Medical Association for the best exhibit of new medical science was awarded today to three University of Chicago men for a discovery that only the "hot" bones of the body produce the all-essential, life-giving blood cells.

The fact that the marrow within bones produces both the red and the white blood cells has long been known. But the Chicago scientists are the first to discover that when bones become cool they cease this life-giving work.

The "hot" bones are those at the temperature of the body, 98.6 degrees. In man the bones that remain constantly at this temperature are skull, ribs, vertebrae and pelvic. The other bones may drop to as low as 68 degrees.

The marrow of the "hot" bones is red. The marrow of the cool bones is yellow. This difference in color is a well-known anatomical fact, the significance of which has not been recognized previously.

The medal was awarded for a demonstration of the bone discovery at the scientific exhibit of the association. The exhibitors were Charles B. Huggins, W. J. Noonan and B. H. Blocksom, of the department of surgery at Chicago.

The silver medal was awarded to G. C. Supplee and S. Ansbacher, of the Borden Co., New York City, for discovery that vitamin B2 can be recognized in foods by the rays of invisible violet light. These rays cause fluorescence of lactoflavin, the mother substance of the vitamin. At the exhibit here a book could be read by the light of vitamin B.

The bronze medal was awarded to Alvan L. Barach, of the Presbyterian Hospital, New York, for demonstrating new uses of artificial air made of helium and nitrogen.

Ohio Labor Leader Murdered in Home

Cleveland, May 13 (U.P.).—Arthur Whitelock, Cleveland labor leader, was shot and killed tonight by two unidentified men who entered his home and began firing without warning.

Police said Whitelock was sitting in a rocker at his home on fashionable East boulevard when his assassins entered.

They immediately opened fire and Whitelock fell to the floor. He was dead when detectives arrived.

The shooting was believed a retaliatory move by other labor leaders who opposed Whitelock's alleged "strong-arm" tactics as business agent for the Ice, Coal and Water Wagon Drivers' Union.

Pastor Opposes Kagawa Speech At Convention

Baptist Assails Japanese Christian as Teacher of Communism.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, May 13.—Dr. J. Frank Norris, fundamentalist Baptist minister, said tonight he would ask the Southern Baptist convention, which opens here tomorrow to cancel an invitation to the Japanese Christian, Toyohiko Kagawa, to address a joint session of the Southern and Northern Baptists here next week.

"Kagawa preaches a communistic doctrine," Norris declared. "His proposed system of co-operatives would destroy all government."

Norris, pastor of a church in Fort Worth, Tex., and another in Detroit—commuting between the two—said that while he was not expecting his resolution of cancellation to be adopted he hoped to lay before the convention what he termed the "communistic" teaching of the Japanese who is touring the United States.

"This co-operative teaching of Kagawa is a most deceitful thing," said the minister. "It has an appeal to the housewife, to those who are financially burdened, but the true significance of it is not realized. One of my main quarrels with him is that he seeks to undermine the church from within, taking away its spiritual side. Once the spiritual life of a church collapses, the church is gone."

Speaking in St. Louis last winter, Kagawa said he was not a Communist, asserted that his co-operative movement was the only practical way of helping the farmer and said he did not favor abolishing competition in industry. Kagawa also urged co-operative trade between nations as a means of bringing world peace.

Another resolution he will offer, Norris said, will ask Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, Tex., president of the World Baptist Alliance, to resign from the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

These resolutions may not be presented until Friday, when a convention period is set aside for such business.

Social Justice Clause Drafted By Methodists

Use of Scientific Discoveries by Selfish Interests Assailed by Group.

Columbus, Ohio, May 13 (AP).—A proposed statement of the Methodist Episcopal Church on social and economic questions went to the general conference of the church tonight, with impartial churchmen viewing it as a "middle of the road" declaration.

It was prepared by the committee on state. It asserted that in the presence of hunger, injustice and exploitation "we insist that it is the duty of the church to speak."

Redical groups demand a stronger stand on disapproval of the profit-seeking system. Conservatives have branded Liberal leaders of the church "Methodist Reds."

"Refuse to Submit."

"We refuse to submit to a state of affairs wherein grasping interests seize the contributions of science and prostitute them," the committee recommendation said. "We insist that the contributions of science shall be used for the purpose of enriching life of all.

"Within the membership of Methodism there is a difference of opinion both as to the causes that have produced these un-Christian facts (unemployment, want and other similar conditions) * * * and the proper method of solving the problem.

"One group urges Methodism to pronounce judgment on the profit-seeking economy and establish planned economy, which, to be successful, must rest upon social ownership of the plant necessary to its operation.

Answer Repudiated.

"Another group repudiates this answer to the economic problem. It argues that the American people have come a long way on the road to plenty in the brief space of 150 years.

"Because of the difference of opinion as to method, we do not pass judgment on techniques."

The recommended statement declared that, "believing in both democratic form and democratic ideals, we propose to resist every form of dictatorship, whether it comes from the left of communism or the right of fascism."

Delegates continued their balloting in an attempt to complete the election of four new bishops after voting to hold night sessions in an effort to conclude the conference by Monday night.

House Vetoes Plan To Question Hull

Following the receipt Monday of a 3,000-word explanation by Secretary of State Cordell Hull of steps taken by the State Department to protect Americans and Amreican interests in Ethiopia, the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday voted to report unfavorably a resolution seeking further information.

The committee veto of the resolution was taken as a direct step at the action of Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Republican), Massachusetts, in demanding this information. Mrs. Rogers has made several attacks on the State Deprtment's course during the recent disorders in Addis Ababa, terming it "humiliating" that Americans had to seek protection in the British Legation.

Chairman Sam D. McReynolds (Democrat), Tnnessee, said he would ask the House to table the resolution.

High Officials Attend Palmer Funeral Service

Roper, Hull and Cummings Honorary Pallbearers; Burial Is Today.

Government officials and friends paid final tribute yesterday to A. Mitchell Palmer, former Attorney General, who died Monday in Emergency Hospital.

Funeral services were held at 2817 Woodand drive, the home of Malcolm S. McConihe, a life-long friend of Palmer's. The Rev. Ze Barney Phillips, chaplain of the Senate, officiated.

Honorary pallbearers included Secretaries Hull and Roper, Attorney General Cummings, Senators Robinson, of Arkansas; Byrnes, of South Carolina, and Guffey, of Pennsylvania; Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson; Justice Roberts, of the Supreme Court; Malcolm S. McConihe, C. C. Carlin, Swagar Sherley, Bradley W. Palmer, and Robert S. Bright, of Philadelphia.

A committee representing the District Bar Association at the funeral consisted of Walter N. Bastian, president; John E. Laskey, Frank J. Hogan, District Attorney Leslie C. Garnett, J. Harry Covington, William E. Leahy, Frank Nebeker, Bolitha J. Laws and Walter C. Balderston.

Motorcycle police from the District of Columbia, Maryland and Pennsylvania were detailed to escort the cortege to Stroudsburg, Pa., where burial will take place at 2 p.m. today in Quaker Cemetery.

Mrs. Rixey, 76, Dies of Stroke

Widow of Eppa Rixey Buried at Culpeper; John Wagner Dead.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Culpeper, Va., May 13.—Mrs. Willie Walton Rixey, 76, widow of Eppa Rixey and half-sister of Dr. Cary T. Grayson, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Geraz Taylor, in Ginter Park, Richmond, following a paralytic stroke.

Funeral services were held today in Culpeper, her former home, with interment in Fairview Cemetery.

She is survived by two sons, Eppa Rixey, jr., of Cincinnati, banker and baseball player, and Dr. Walton Rixey, of Richmond, now in Vermont; two daughters, Mrs. Graham Todd, Princeton, W. Va., and Mrs. Taylor, Richmond, and a brother, Henry P. Walton, Culpeper.

Capt. William Moran Dies in San Antonio

The death of Capt. William K. Moran of the Army Air Corps, retired, in San Antonio, Tex., Saturday, was announced yesterday by the War Department.

Born in Clinton, Mass., in 1892, Captain Moran had served in the air force for 16 years before he was retired in 1934. A graduate of the Air Corps Advanced Flying School, he was rated as an air pilot and air observer.

George A. Sharpe Rites Will Be in Los Angeles

Funeral services for George A. Sharpe, 63, special officer of the Senate Office Building since 1933, will be held in Los Angeles, where the body will be sent today.

Sharpe died Monday in Homeopathic Hospital. He was a native of Canada, and had previously been engaged in engineering work in several States. He is survived by relatives in California.

lican) North Dakota and Frazier (Republican) North Dakota.

Senator Adams (Democrat) Colorado, chairman of the sub-committee, said that he considered relief to be an immediate emergency situation but that he did not feel that resettlement came in the same category. He explained that in the absence of a budget estimate sent to the Senate by the President it would be impossible for the committee to include in the bill an additional amount for either Tugwell or Ickes unless the Senate should see fit to suspend the rules by a two-thirds vote.

Meanwhile, Hopkins ordered State WPA administrators not to use armed guards to maintain order and not to "spy upon workers."

"This administration," Hopkins said in his order, "will not permit any discriminatory practices that may operate to work hardships on unemployed persons because of their beliefs, organizational activities or affiliations.

Protection Up to States.

"The maintenance of order is the function of the local and State government, and if protection is necessary in connection with WPA activities it should be secured from the regular police force of the locality. WPA funds shall not be used for the employment of armed guards.

"Where investigations are required, such matters will be handled by the division of investigation of the Federal Works Progress Administration.

"This investigation service will not be used to spy upon workers or concern itself with legitimate organizational activities of WPA workers. No investigation will be made or investigators employed directly by State or district offices of the Works Progress Administration."

Hopkins told the committee that he believed payment of prevailing wages on relief jobs was necessary, and indicated they already are being paid on many jobs. The prevailing wage provision was put in the bill in a House amendment. The Hopkins stand completely reverses his position of last year against prevailing wages, a position for which Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, made a long and successful fight.

Won't Last Through Year.

Tugwell's report revealed that he still has an unobligated balance of $102,458,112, but at his present rate of spending this would fall far short of carrying him through another fiscal year. He revealed that he had spent or obligated his organization to spend a total of $173,091,832. His total allotment was $275,549,944. The report showed that Resettlement's administrative staff in Washington and in the field totals 15,804 persons.

Tugwell's report revealed that under the land asquisition phase of his work his organization had optioned 9,670,000 acres of land, and had exercised options on 8,469,000 acres, costing $36,344,000. He said that $42,427,739 of the 48,390,000 available for land asquisition had been spent.

The report said that 59,521 persons, including 3,581 CCC men, were employed on 134 land development projects. It said that of $18,000,000 available for development, $9,242,742 had been encumbered. The total number of persons employed on all resettlement work was given as 71,000, of which 90 per cent are resettlement "clients" or persons taken from relief rolls. Tugwell said he expected the number to reach 100,000 by midsummer.

"It is expected," Tugwell said, "that additional funds amounting to $2,351,000 for land acquisitions and approximately $7,300,000 for land development will be made available to the Resettlement Administration shortly."

He gave no indication of where he expected to get this money. He said he believed 24,000,000 acres more should be purchased to "round out" his land program.

Discussing subsistence homesteads, which the Resettlement Administration inherited from the Interior Department, the report said that of 33 projects 18 had been completed, 11 were under construction, and final plans were being made for four more.

The report also told of three labor camps being constructed in California for itinerant laborers. Altogether, the report said, the RA is contemplating development of about 140 resettlement projects at a cost of $92,000,000. It was estimated these would care for 17,000 families.

The four suburban housing projects, of which one is situated at Berwyn, Md., will cost $31,000,000 and care for 3,500 families. Tugwell revealed that if money is made available, he is prepared to erect 13,200 additional housing units. In connection with the Greenbelt settlement at Berwyn, Tugwell said that 3,900 transients are being employed and that his organization "has absorbed all the able-bodied unemployed transient laborers in Washington."

Daniel Schmidt Dies; Held Post As TransitChief

Capital Co. Executive Started Career as Conductor 25 Years Ago.

Daniel Steiner Schmidt, 45, superintendent of transportation of the Capital Transit Co., died yesterday at his home, 1305 Quincy street northwest.

Mr. Schmidt, who was born in Frederick, Md., had been a resident of this city for the past 25 years. He was widely known in transportation and utility circles and was an active member of the Washington Board of Trade and the Washington Transportation Club.

Upon coming to Washington, Mr. Schmidt entered the employ of the Capital Traction Co. as a street car conductor on the Fourteenth street line. He was promoted to a post as inspector in 1916, later being advanced to a clerkship in the office of the late George W. Shockey, then superintendent of transportation.

After serving as assistant to Mr. Shockey for a number of years, Mr. Schmidt, on the death of his superior, was named to his post. When the street car lines were merged, he was appointed to the position that he held at the time of his death.

Survivors are his wife, Elizabeth Harvey Schmidt, three children, Harvey D. Schmidt, of Bethesda, and Mrs. John T. McCawley and Miss Elizabeth La Verne Schmidt, both of this city.

7 Accused in Flogging Invoke Ruling on Klan

Bartow, Fla., May 13.(AP).—Seven Tampa policemen on trial for the kidnap-flogging of three labor organizers based their plea for acquittal today on a seven-year-old Ku Klux Klan whipping in Alabama.

The Alabama appellate court reversed conviction of the Klansmen on grounds the evidence did not prove the charges of kidnaping and false imprisonment.

The Tampa officers are accused of a part in the flogging, tarring and feathering of Joseph Shoemaker, E. F. Poulnot and Sam Rogers. Shoemaker died of his injuries.

Court adjourned shortly after the defense argument ended.

Kiwanis Clubs Meet.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., May 13.—Members of the Kiwanis Club were hosts tonight to visiting members from Berkeley Springs, Martinsburg, Charles Town, Cumberland, Frederick and Hagerstown. A program was presented by members of the Washington club, headed by Ed Hill, international trustee.

Undivided Rule Assured New French Regime

Paris, May 13 (AP).—Undivided power virtually was assured tonight to the Popular Front government, which will take office after the Chamber of Deputies meets June 1.

The Radical Socialist Party, which has the second largest representation in the cabinet, accepted the invitation of the dominant Socialist Party to participate in the government. The Communist Party gave notice of its complete support of the government, although stating it would not join in the Popular Front cabinet. The Communists are anxious to maintain their political independence.

Gordon's Gin

Famous for its LIQUEUR Quality★

Now only $1.55 In District of Columbia 4/5 QUART FORMERLY $1.75

For 167 years—Gordon's has been the base around which many of today's famous gin drinks have been created. The reason is—Gordon's has that important liqueur quality and a higher proof—94.4—which means greater strength, sustained flavor. That is why drinks never taste thin with Gordon's Gin. And that is why Gordon's Gin is the largest selling gin in the world.

100% NEUTRAL SPIRITS DISTILLED FROM GRAIN

LIQUEUR QUALITY★

Gordon's Gin is not, of course, a liqueur—it is not sweet—it is very dry. Gordon's attains liqueur quality through an exclusive formula—167 years old. Gordon's juniper berries are imported. Then aged over a period of years until ready to release their full, ripe, luscious flavor. Gordon's Gin is the heart of the distillate. It is crystal clear. Made with 100% grain neutral spirits. Its quality is tested every fifteen minutes. Thus with Gordon's Gin you get RICHER FLAVOR—VELVETY SMOOTHNESS—LIQUEUR QUALITY.

HIGHER PROOF—94.4

GREATER STRENGTH. Gordon's has found the higher proof, 94.4, to be the precise strength for perfect gin drinks. Gordon's pays a higher tax for this greater strength, but it means cocktails, rickeys, Tom Collins and other gin drinks that are always full-flavored! DRINKS NEVER TASTE THIN WITH GORDON'S GIN.

Japan's Seizure Of North China Predicted Soon

Author Says Tokyo Will Take 2 More Provinces Within 90 Days.

Japan will take two more provinces in the next 90 days and the whole of North China within the year, Nathaniel Peffer, Far Eastern expert and author, said last night.

"Nohting on earth will stop Japan except war," he told a distinguished gathering of officials, professors, writers and Oriental authorities at the Cosmos Club. "She will go straight through North China and perhaps South China unless somebody goes to war."

The United States can do one of two things about this, he added. We can either "swallow it" or else decide that we are willing to use a big Navy, then build it and use it.

Senator Elbert Thomas, of Utah, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, spoke in favor of the former solution.

Pearl Buck Speaks.

"I advocate the do-nothing policy," he said. "I think we should continue to refuse recognition to seized territories, like Manchukuo and Ethiopia. But we should not go any further than making declaratinos."

Pearl Buck, author of "The Good Earth," and her husband, Richard Walsh, editor of the magazine, Asia, also spoke. Mrs. Walsh said she believed the reason for America's sympathy with China was largely sentimental.

Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, chief of the Division of Far Eastern Affairs of the State Department, obviously provoked by some of Peffer's direct jibes, voiced an implied agreement with Mrs. Walsh.

Peffer had made some very provocative guesses about the future of China.

"The Japanese," he said, "will go down as far as the Yangtse River and there they will wait until they have either bribed, blackmailed or bought off the British or until England is so tied up in Europe she cannot act. Then she will move into South China."

The conquest of Mongolia and Siberia, he predicted, would have to wait until Japan has consolidated her position. He said the Japanese, by recent raids, in Outer Mongolia, had ascertained that Russia is willing to fight.

Eleventh Commandment.

"I believe the Russians, with their mathematical formulae for foreign policy, will let Japan alone in Asia unless she invades Mongolia or Siberia," he asserted. "She figures that the two great empires, Japan and the United States, will inevitably fight it out."

Peffer said that our interest in China was based solely on what he called our "eleventh commandment —'Thou shalt not close the open door.'"

"There has never been an open door," he remarked. "We may go to war for the sanctity of treaties, but we will come out with the Gobi Desert."

Representative Byron Scott, of California, remarked that the recent record defense appropriation had passed the House not so much because of the threat to our small trade in China as because of a speech made by a Congressman who said that there were thousands of Japanese in California well armed and ready to rise up and kill the whites.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Independent Legislative Bureau, Richard W. Hogue, its director, presided. Among those present was Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford Guy Tugwell, who listened with interest, but said nothing.

Puzzlers Offer 9 New Words In Warfare on Dictionaries

If You Love Your Work, League Calls You an 'Ergophile,' Brain Trusters Are 'Ismers' and Bronx Cheer Is 'Oompah' to Scholars.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 13.—The education committee of the National Puzzlers League crashed through today with nine new words it will offer the league's semi-annual convention in Boston on September 5.

Enemies of the unabridged dictionaries, with chapters in many cities of the United States, the puzzlers may have a few more odd words to offer by then, and if the league approves, the words will be submitted to various lexicographers.

One they are proudest of is humidauriculate—meaning not dry behind the ears.

The others:

Poorich—Both poor and rich.

Folks who need a dictionary to solve a cross-word puzzle or take a half-hour to get only one answer for an easy cryptogram find it a strange and baffling place.

The riddlers call each other by trick "noms" and call the league itself "thedom"—it comes from dome, or head.

Action by Italy To Quit League Waited Today

By the United Press.

Rome, May 13.—Rome was tense tonight as indications mounted that Premier Benito Mussolini will announce Italy's resignation from the League of Nations tomorrow in a speech to the Chamber of Deputies, which he ordered to convene in extraordinary session.

Italian public opinion definitely favors such a move. The keynote of vigorous press attacks against the League was that "Italy has had enough."

An indication of what Il Duce may say tomorrow was given by Virginio Gayda, editor of the Giornale d'Italie, regarded as Mussolini's mouthpiece.

"Italy has had enough of Geneva," the newspaper said. "Its unjust verdict has been accepted in Italy with discipline but with reserved disdain."

Aloisi Arrives.

Meanwhile, Baron Pompeo Aloisi and his codelegates, ordered to return to Rome from Geneva after the League seated the Ethiopian delegate, arrived and reported immediatey to Il Duce at Palazzo Venezia.

Aloisi declined to comment on the precipitate departure from Geneva. "We were told to return to Rome and that's all we know," he said.

Asked if he thought Italy would ever return to Geneva, Aloisi was silent. Another delegate said:

"I doubt it. The situation is undoubtedly very serious."

Action Grave.

Foreign diplomats characterized Mussolini's action as "extremely grave," but doubted that it will mean Italy's resignation from the League. They were unanimous, however, in the belief that the Fascist government will stand pat in refusing to participate in League activities until sanctions are lifted, and so long as Ethiopia is recognized as a sovereign state.

Official quarters said they had no intimation of Mussolini's intentions, adding that Il Duce himself probably has not definitely decided as yet.

They predicted, however, that tomorrow he will make an important announcement "which may change the course of Italy's history."

League Studies Plans to Revise Covenant Text

Greek Authority Submits Proposals; Council to Meet June 16.

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, May 13.—International jurists began active work tonight to make the League of Nations more effective.

The first suggestions were submitted by Nicholas Socrate Politis, former Foreign Minister of Greece, who is recognized as one of the greatest European juridical authorities.

Politis handed to Joseph Paul-Boncour, French delegate to Geneva, his recommendations on possible amendments to the League Covenant.

The council, which yesterday postponed its deliberations on the Italian conquest of Ethiopia after the Fascist delegation withdrew from the sessions, adjourned after two meetings—one private and one public.

At the former, the members decided to hold a special session on the Italo-Ethiopian dispute June 16 instead of a day earlier, as previously announced.

Rhine on Agenda.

Other subjects placed on the agenda for the June meeting were the Locarno problem, resulting from Adolf Hitler's reoccupation of the Rhineland, and the international slavery question, one of the council's permanent considerations.

Today's public session was devoted to the proposal to create an additional Council seat for China, with various members speaking in its favor. The Council decided to refer the proposal to the League Assembly in September.

The Council meetings were completely overshadowed by discussions behind the scenes on the problem of reorganizing and revitalizing the League's peace machinery.

Two communications were received before the League's administrative group concluded its sessions.

Ethiopia sent a letter from the president of the Egyptian Red Cross which characterized as "wretches" certain Egyptians who made, "purely for gain," accusations of Ethiopian atrocities.

Italy told the League Lieut. Armand Frere, a Belgian, had signed an affidavit describing sadistic orgies he said he witnessed while with Ethiopian troops.

The only cars in the low-price fields that offer you the gas-saving Automatic Cruising Gear!

NASH "400" $665 AND UP, F.O.B. FACTORY — LaFAYETTE $595 AND UP, F.O.B. FACTORY

The Nash Automatic Cruising Gear! One of the most important contributions to automobile efficiency in recent years. Available to buyers of the lowest-priced cars for the first time on Nash "400" and LaFayette!

The Cruising Gear acts as a "fourth gear." It comes into operation automatically at speeds above 45 miles per hour. Engine revolutions are reduced about one-third. Every moving part runs more slowly. Wear on the motor is reduced to a minimum. And what a difference it makes in the mileage you get from gas and oil!

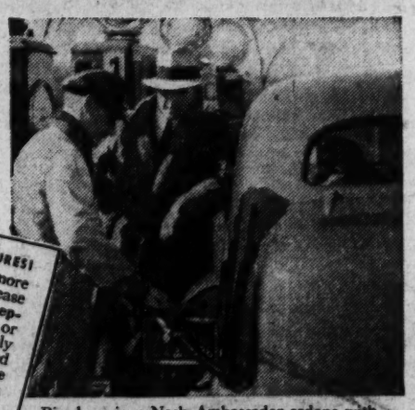

In these inherently economical cars it gives you additional savings up to 25% in gasoline, up to 50% in oil! Thus, the only cars in the lowest-price fields with all of the vital engineering features of the highest-priced cars now offer you this newest big-car feature—Automatic Cruising Gear—at only slight additional cost. The Nash Motors Company, Kenosha, Wisconsin.

Saves up to 25% in gas, up to 50% in oil!

Minimizes engine wear!

Gives you an entirely new kind of ride!

SPECIAL TOURING FEATURES! ## Ohio's Primaries.

Senator Borah's dislike for the practice of entering favorite sons in the race for convention delegates is doubtless accentuated by the results of the primary elections in Ohio. In spite of the fact that the Senator was the only major candidate bidding for votes in that State, he lost a great majority of the Republican National Convention delegates to Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati. The result does not advance Mr. Taft into a position as a serious contender for the G. O. P. nomination. But it does blight Mr. Borah's chances.

Apparently Mr. Taft's chief purpose, in contesting with Senator Borah for Ohio's 52 votes in the convention, was to aid the nomination of some candidate who will make a frontal attack upon the New Deal. It is not yet clear how the votes pledged to him will ultimately be distributed. When a courtesy vote has been cast for Mr. Taft, however, the delegation will be in a strategic position to support the strongest candidate and to influence the trend of the party platform.

Senator Borah's campaign has been marked by a series of disappointments, from the New York to the Ohio primaries. In some States he has shown very marked popular strength, but scarcely enough to lend encouragement to Presidential ambitions. He recently observed that he will not stand in the way if either Gov. Landon or Col. Knox goes to the convention with a fair expression of popular favor. This suggests that the senior Senator from Idaho has no intention of seeking more than the influence in party circles to which his talents, his popularity and his distinguished record entitle him.

No reliable conclusions can be drawn from the relative size of the votes in the Democratic and Republican primaries in Ohio. President Roosevelt made a favorable showing, but G. O. P. voters had no opportunity to cast ballots for any candidate who is likely to make the race against the President after the June conventions. The Buckeye State is still in the doubtful column.

The Guggenheim Fellowships.

The better to promote "advancement and diffusion of knowledge and understanding and the appreciation of beauty," Mr. and Mrs. John Simon Guggenheim have given another million dollars to the foundation which memorializes their son. The total of their gifts to this endowment, supported solely by them, now stands at something more than $6,000,000. Without this munificence, scholarship and art in this country would have flourished considerably less.

In connection with the announcement of the Guggenheims' latest gift, the foundation has published an analysis of its activities during the eleven years of its existence. From among 9,584 applicants, fellowships varying both as to amount and duration have been granted to 688 persons, including 48 Latin-Americans. Though selections are determined "solely on the basis of accomplishments, past and prospective," a remarkable symmetry is revealed when the appointments are viewed as a whole.

For instance, almost precisely one-half of the fellows were born in rural areas, the others listing centers of more than 5,000 population as their birthplaces. Similarly, with only slight variations, the number of fellows born in the various States is directly proportional to the population of the States at the date of their births. Again, 17.5 per cent of the fellows came first to the United States as immigrants, while 13.7 per cent of the national population was foreign-born in 1900. In sum, the generalization is borne out that no one region or group has a monopoly on these fellowships, or for that matter, on high natural talent.

Another interesting section of the analysis considers the fellows from standpoint of training. Of the 525 appointed as citizens or permanent residents of the United States, 116 have no college degrees. The remaining hold among them 1,050 degrees, more than 90 per cent of which were awarded by one of four universities—Harvard, Columbia, the University of California and the University of Chicago. Inasmuch as the foundation's advisory board is composed of scholars and artists whose estimates of academic values are not open to question, the outstanding excellence of these four institutions is once again confirmed.

The Agreement With France.

The trade agreement with Canada afforded the first major test of the practicability of the Administration's reciprocal tariff policy. The importance and extent of the mutual concessions embodied in that pact, concluded with our second-largest customer, did much to silence skeptics.

The agreement with France now provides further convincing evidence that tariff reciprocity is not necessarily a high sounding phrase applied to minor reductions in duties in exchange for small favors. The French trade agreement, indeed, is in its way quite as epoch-making as that with Canada. It is not only the first reciprocal trade pact with a large industrialized European nation. It is also the first comprehensive commercial agreement with France that we have concluded since the Revolutionary War.

The concessions made by France consist largely of liberalization of quotas applicable to American imports. Our counter-concessions take the form of pronounced reductions in duties on a long list of French products, mainly luxury goods and liquors. While the amount of trade affected is not so great as in the Canadian treaty, it is worth noting that both countries have agreed to permit freer entry of various commodities competing directly or indirectly with domestic products. A great deal of skillful maneuvering has undoubtedly been necessary to reach a satisfactory agreement, without arousing the violent opposition of industries unfavorably affected by the terms of the treaty.

Mutual assurances of most-favored nation treatment removes a serious threat of trade warfare, resulting from American charges of unfair discrimination and French complaints of our extraordinarily high tariffs. The removal of these grievances will of itself greatly improve our trade with France, apart from the substantial specific concessions which contribute to trade expansion. The provision permitting modification or termination of the treaty on 30 days' notice is a necessary safeguard in this period of fluctuating currencies, with devaluation of the franc seemingly imminent.

A large measure of the credit for the successful inauguration of the reciprocal trade agreements policy goes to Henry F. Grady, chief of the Trade Agreements Division of the Department of State, whose resignation takes effect on August 1. Careful and expert preliminary study has been required to equip our negotiators to meet the complicated problems that arise in dealing with the representatives of other countries. This work has been carried on by the organization headed by Dr. Grady during the past two years, in collaboration with the Treasury and the Department of Commerce. His return to the University of California, to resume the deanship of its college of commerce, will be greatly regretted.

Fortunately, his successor, Harry C. Hawkins, the present assistant chief of the division, is a "career" man with specialized training, administrative experience and tactful personality which admirably equip him to carry on the work of his predecessor. Quiet efficiency has within a short period of time yielded substantial results in the trade-agreements field. No doubt it will show the way to future accomplishment in this very important administrative undertaking.

Missing The Point.

Opposition to the juvenile court bill by the executive committee of the Federation of Citizens' Associations will be a bitter disappointment to the many self-sacrificing citizens who have worked indefatigably to improve the present obsolete system of handling local juvenile delinquents. If the committee had discovered some serious defect in the bill, its criticism would have been welcome. But its attitude is so far out of line with modern thought in handling children who run afoul of the law, that the reason for its presentation is obscure.

As spokesman for the committee, George E. Sullivan complained that the bill is drafted "with the consistent idea that all power should be placed in the judge of the court." Where else could authority over delinquents reasonably be placed? The chief purpose in the enactment of a new law is to take juvenile cases out of the atmosphere of a police court and place them under the jurisdiction of an intelligent judge who can turn each situation to the best advantage both of the child and society.

Flexibility of procedure is essential to permit the smooth functioning of such a system. The court should have a clinical aspect under which the causes of childish offenses may be analyzed and corrective methods prescribed. There is not much place for a prosecutor in such a plan. When Mr. Sullivan protests against the virtual elimination of the corporation counsel's office from the set-up, he seems to forget that in modern courts children are no longer prosecuted.

The improvements sought for the District's Juvenile Court can not even be considered experimental. The bill before the House District Committee has been patterned after the most successful State laws now in operation. It ought to be discussed on its own merits, as a means of keeping children out of the criminal class, and not as an attempt to make this specialized tribunal a more effective police court.

Italy And The League.

Whatever his actual intentions, Premier Mussolini is evidently not averse to having the world believe that the withdrawal of the Italian delegation from Geneva will be followed by Italy's resignation from the League.

The strategy is obvious. It is to bluff the League nations into recognizing Italy's conquest of Ethiopia and into dropping sanctions which, if continued, could easily destroy all the potential value of Italy's military victory in East Africa. And it is always possible, should the bluff fail to work, for Italy to carry out her threat and actually resign.

Since the first open preparations for the Ethiopian war the attitude of the Fascist government toward the League has been a curious mixture of outward contempt and realistic appreciation of the benefits Italy derives from its membership at Geneva. Premier Mussolini, an admirer and disciple of Machiavelli, has never disguised his hostility to the principles upon which the League rests. But he has never been averse to using the League machinery when it suited his interests to do so.

The League stands for international cooperation; the inner core of Fascism is a fanatically narrow and unyielding nationalism. The League stands for the abandonment of war as an instrument of national policy; Mussolini has repeatedly extolled war as a desirable arm of statecraft. The League stands foursquare on the principle of just and honorable dealings among nations; Fascism refuses to admit that the will of its dictator should be fettered by any ethical considerations. Yet even while he poured the vials of his wrath on the Geneva organization, even when he declared that Italy would go forward with its plans "with Geneva, without Geneva or against Geneva" Mussolini was careful not to sever the link binding Italy to the League.

The plain fact is that Italy has derived very considerable advantages from its membership in the League and has far more to gain than to lose by retaining that membership. It occupies a permanent seat on the Council and therefore enjoys full equality with Great Britain, France and Russia, the other permanent members on the League's directing body. In consequence Italy has been in a position to know at first hand what is taking place in the inner councils of the League and to make its influence felt, if only to prevent any development that could be regarded as contrary to its own interests. It is difficult to believe that Rome will lightly abandon such advantages.

Certainly there is no reason to believe, in view of the Council's forthright decision to continue sanctions, that Italy's resignation would of itself force their abandonment or the recognition of Italy's ownership of Ethiopia. Aside from certain South American nations that carry little weight in European affairs, the attitude of League members on the sanctions question has indeed stiffened rather than the reverse since Ethiopia was "annexed."

In the diplomatic poker game which, Rome is now playing with Geneva, the League's stack of blue chips is by no means smaller than that in Il Duce's corner.

Another Country Heard From.

The merry month of May was once noted for flower-filled baskets and dances on the village green. Later shirt-sleeve parades and the singing of the "Internationale" ticked April off the calendar. Now it seems that it is the vital statisticians for whom May has the greatest calendric significance.

Because five little girls in Canada chose to be born of the same parents on the same day, they have already become wards of the King, movie stars, and wealthy in their own right. The excitement over them has been so continuous since May 28, 1934, that a good deal of it has splashed over for the quadruplets born this week in much-harassed New Jersey.

Hardly had a proud if puzzled nation settled back to muse on a fate which deposits four more mouths to feed on the doorstep of a $20-a-week laborer than word came from Nicaragua that Senora Sinforosa Martinez has given birth to sextuplets. It is reported that all of them died except one, but even that does not detract from this practical application of the doctrine of the rights of small nations.

The competition which links Callandar, Little Ferry, and Poza Azul is almost beginning to overshadow the race between the Normandie and the Queen Mary. But it's the coincidence which marks May as the month in which all these phenomena occurred which is most interesting. After all, this is only the middle of the month. Every expectant father had better cross his fingers for the next 17 days.

A Clinic For Statesmen.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Dr. Campbell, director of the Boston Psychopathic Hospital, seems to have the germ of a good idea in suggesting a special clinic for "legislators and statesmen"—a distinction doubtless drawn without intentional malice, for despite the cynical definition of a statesman as a dead politician, the world still has a few statesmen left.

The present Administration is great for experimenting. Perhaps some members of the Brain Trust could be persuaded to let the psychopaths look into their minds and break the news as to just what is in store for the country if it has another four years of the New Deal.

Too Much Money.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After reading Mr. Henderson's defense of the park changers, I'd say what the question now needs is a final arbiter. It is every critic's right to impute noble aims, infallibility of judgment and pretense of superior technical wisdom to the group styling itself the Park and Planning Commission or fine arts or whichever is to blame for the dose inflicted on the parks.

My observation is half the objection comes not from aged stick-in-the-muds with rooted sentiments and recollections, but from the so-called progressive younger element, of which I deem myself a member. The overwhelming weight of ordinary common sense condemns the excesses committed in the passion for change, especially in some of the smothered-with-concrete small squares.

Isolated examples of squares benefited by addition of walks is not lacking. They'd be improved if they were turned into gas stations. But the small area at Seventh and New York avenue, 50 per cent concreted in a cart-wheel design, and Fifth and Massachusetts avenue, stabbed with needlessly wide swaths of hard walk, are fine examples of "how not to." The classic example at Nineteenth and Pennsylvania avenue needs no comment.

Through it all stalks the taint of too much money. Enthrone that million as the culprit of the piece. With less to squander in typical New Deal style, there'd have been less to disburse to the cement business. The wholesale renovizing and formalizing—now widely hailed by some well-meaning adherents who are coming in strong on the rebuttal after the public has overwhelmingly expressed its condemnation—would have been restricted of necessity by the re-arrangers.

I. H. LATIMER.
Washington, May 12.

Votes For The District.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of May 11, Anna E. Hendley comments adversely upon my recent letter in The Post opposing votes for the people of the District and their representation in Congress. I am not a native of Washington, though that is beside the question, but I have resided here since 1914, and will continue here the rest of my life.

While innumerable reasons can be advanced against the proposition to give the District the status of a State in respect to voting and Congressional representation, one alone is sufficient for me, namely, our elections would be absolutely controlled by the 165,000 negroes in the city in combination with scalawag white, and as sure as night follows day we would be represented in Congress by negroes, or such whites, or both. To deny such a result is indicative of a naivete worthy of the nursery. If this be conceded, how can it be denied that it would be detrimental to the social, economic, and financial interests of the city? The present character and caliber of Congress is at such a low ebb that it is unwise to depreciate it still further by such additions.

Personally, I am perfectly willing to sacrifice the privilege to vote if necessary to save myself from being represented in Congress as suggested. The lady refers to our denial of the right of representation in Congress as "un-Americanism." There are hardly two words in our language more abused, or the constant use of which are more tiresome than "un-Americanism" and "Americanism." As a matter of fact, there are superabundant Americanisms that it would be much to our interests and to the general welfare to get rid of.

Water, Please.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every day in passing Dupont Circle I look in vain to see the water flowing from the lovely fountain that adorns the center of the grounds.

Even the beautiful figures seem to say, "We are so tired of holding this empty bowl. Why can we not have some water to refresh us and other passersby?

Origin Of The Symphony.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I ask the courtesy of your hospitable and fair-minded column to point out an error that appeared several days ago in a letter to The Post signed Harry L. Lewis. In writing about the National Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Lewis says:

> The orchestra was formed by a bunch of Washington musicians, and after it was organized Mr. Kindler was invited here to conduct.

The facts are as follows: In January, 1930, an orchestra was formed by a group of musicians for the purpose of giving three experimental concerts on a co-operative basis, and Mr. Rudolf Schueller, of Cleveland, was asked to come here to conduct it. He directed this organization in one concert, January 31, 1930, but not to the satisfaction of the musicians, who then invited Mr. Hans Kindler to conduct the last two experimental concerts, which took place March 4 and April 8, 1930.

Artistically these last two concerts were highly successful, and after Mr. Kindler's departure, subsequent to the third concert, several meetings were held to further a plan for a permanent orchestra. However, neither funds nor organization could be achieved, and during that same spring of 1930 this orchestra was disbanded, the whole thing was dropped and definitely finished—as had happened three times before, notably with the orchestras assembled by Reginald de Koven, Heinrich Hammer and Kurt Hetzel.

After the collapse of this very praiseworthy effort on the part of the musicians themselves, interest in the idea of a symphony for Washington was kept alive by the press, and by Mr. Kindler's occasional visits during the summer of 1930. But it was not until February, 1931, that Mr. Kindler came back to Washington with a carefully thought-out plan for the practical beginning of a brand-new orchestra, and succeeded in interesting a sufficient number of people to start it.

The result was the organization, by Mr. Kindler, of the present National Symphony Orchestra, which gave its first concert November 2, 1931. This shows the lapse of approximately one year and a half (April 2, 1930, to November 2, 1931) between the last concert of the three organized by the musicians and the first of the National Symphony Orchestra organized by Mr. Kindler.

The present National Symphony Orchestra has been in existence for the past five years and should not be confused in anyone's mind with former attempts.

I feel that I am qualified to give this information, as I was on the committee of the three experimental concerts of 1930, attended the meetings, and was one of the signers of the letter that concluded its affairs, and I have been on the board of directors of our present National Symphony Orchestra Association since its beginning in 1931.

MARY HOWE.

B Street History.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post this morning, under "When B Street Was Cut," the writer states that Gov. Shepherd "put several hundred men to work and cut B street through the Capitol grounds."

In order to keep things straight: B streets are not now, nor ever have been, part of the Capitol grounds. The Capitol grounds to the east of the Capitol extends between the A streets, north and south, with First on the east.

The cutting that gave Congress some trouble was through First street, which left them up above the grade about 10 feet. This made it necessary for the whole area to be lowered, and this lowering, of course, demanded new steps under the east entrances. The fish pond was removed, Washington Monument found a new place, and the street car tracks had to be relocated. The squares between A and B streets, both north and south, were purchased and became parts of the present park.

BENJAMIN F. LARCOMBE.

Ethiopia And The Kellogg Pact.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Italy's rape of Ethiopia is the lasting disgrace of the United States unless it is quickly corrected. As one of the originators of the Kellogg-Briand Peace Pact, the United States was morally obligated to call a conference of the 63 nations bound by the pact.

Prof. Shotwell's proposal on May 11 for a new League of Nations based on the Paris Pact, now that the League has failed, comes too late. There is little merit in such a suggestion. The League of Nations Associations should, admitting frankly the failure of the League, join in an effort to apply the Paris Pact to the present catastrophe.

Let them admit that a cleverly conceived false propaganda has been accepted far too widely. It is amazing how this false propaganda has been generally accepted by the peace organizations supported by the Carnegie funds. Why can not their lawyers show them how badly they are being fooled by war financial interests?

One author claims that the Kellogg pact is weakened by reservations stated in the report of the Foreign Relations Committee. That is not true. The report said that the right of self-defense was in no way curtailed by the pact or impaired by the terms or conditions of the treaty, and that each nation is the sole judge of what constitutes the right of self-defense.

These interpretations or explanations cannot be considered reservations. For at the end of the report the committee said:

> This report is made solely for the purpose of putting upon record what your committee understands to be the true interpretation of the treaty and not in any sense for the purpose or with the design of modifying or chancing the treaty in any way or effectuating a reservation or reservations to the same.

Benefits of the proposed conference would be: 1. It would agree upon a law and the principles to be used in determining when a nation has violated the pact and what specific penalty, financial or otherwise, should be meted out, if any, to an aggressor. 2. It could determine what should be done to a nation claiming a conquered land as the spoils of an aggressive war undertaken in violation of the pact. 3. It would permit the nations to enact an international code to remedy existing social, economic and political injustices. 4. It might provide for a gradual disarmament down to the amount of military forces actually needed for national defense. 5. By gradual development it will build a security based upon just law which will promote international commerce otherwise impossible.

The Paris Pact conference would be superior to a world conference called to form a new improved League of Nations, for two reasons: (a) The Paris Pact conference would be better able to provide for remedying various injustices between the nations. (b) The nations at the pact conference, having renounced war, would not have to reopen the question and would be better able to provide for an international police force after an international code of law and world court had been established.

Where The Wilds Were Tamed

"THE circus is comin'!"

That's good reason for returning thanks to Heaven. Depressions may linger long; a circus always stimulates—and always goes too soon. Presidential campaigns rouse as many enmities as do civil wars: under the circus-canvas, political animosities are forgotten.

Thus sang Juvenal in Rome: "Two things (the people) keenly desire—bread and the circuses." So might this columnist sing in Washington—if carping readers wouldn't charge him with plagiarism.

He often wonders whether the stern sociologists realize how great a debt society owes to the circus. He often wonders what the world would do if the circus should not only fold its tents like the Arabs, but, having stolen away, never return.

* * *

Today, this wonder leads to recollection of how the half-brother of the circus, the Wild West Show, has pretty much disappeared—and leads us to speculate upon that subtle distinction between these two types which accounts for the survival of the former.

* * *

By "Wild West Show" we don't mean the rodeos:

We mean the old Cody-Crawford Wild West Show. We mean the Deadwood Coach beset by redskins. We mean the Annie Oakleys shooting as never women shot before—as never, alas, women have shot since!

And we beg to remind you that Washington was the spot where this flower withered. The date was 1931.

* * *

The Miller Brothers—Joe, George and Zack—created "The 101 Ranch" in 1925. They had $300,000 cash-capital behind them, "the finest ranch in Oklahoma and two oil gushers doing better than 900 barrels a day, at a time when oil was selling at three dollars a barrel."

But it couldn't win. Its very inclusion of Jess Willard—at a $100,000 salary—was a recognition of weakness, and ill-luck dogged the showmen.

Monoxide poisoning (not a locobull) killed Joe in 1927. In 1929 an automobile (not a broncho) slew George. Lawsuits speedily accumulated. Soon business—all business, but that of Ranch 101 especially—grew worse and worse. By the summer of 1931, creditors were so clamorous that Zack cut short his Lancaster (Pa.) engagement and made a desperate two-day attempt to retrieve his fortunes by the capture of Washington.

* * *

Do you remember?

"Within the canvas"—so does Winifred Johnston tell the story in the Southwest Review—"thermometers registered 110 . . . But the orphans of the city, guests of the management . . . felt the heat less than did the tired performers . . . Once more the Deadwood Coach set out on its perilous trip. Once more outriders fell from startled mounts, Indians swooped down—"

So, however, did the creditors—soon.

That night, while valiant cowboys dashed to the rescue of the Coach, a dozen deputy U. S. marshals attached the box-office and the light-plant.

* * *

Washington certainly did its best for the 400 stranded performers. The management, on its side, offered to take the "ranch" back to Oklahoma, paying $2 a day loading-wages and 50 cents a day, plus food, en route.

But, no—into the jaws of economic death rode the Four Hundred. They besought the courts to restrain the show's impedimenta until back-salaries were paid.

For a long fortnight, the tents remained, the performers living in them. Around circled ever-increasing flocks of creditors. "The heat of August turned to heavy rains; the show-grounds became a mass of mud; sanitary conditions began to alarm the authorities." And, since one suit always breeds others, of course everybody now rushed into court.

* * *

Ruin resulted. While the employes melted into invisibility, imported workmen moved tents and fixtures—as far as the other side of the Maryland line. There the train was stopped by six constables "armed with a suitcase of attachment-papers." Said the defeated manager:

"Oh, well, you're doing us a favor by taking the property off our hands!"

* * *

"The rest is silence."

* * *

Miss Johnson is inclined to lay the decline of the Wild West Show to the automobile, depression and the movies. That, we feel, doesn't explain everything; the classic circus has survived the attacks of all these forces.

We've called the Wild West Show the half-brother of the circus. Perhaps it wasn't really of the blood royal—perhaps it was an illegitimate brother, on the distaff side.

* * *

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

The Modern America.

There is nonchalance in our house,
Unconcern now fills the air;
For we haven't any worries
And we do not know a care.
Every problem linked with living
We have turned against the wall;
Life no longer means a struggle—
Uncle Sam takes care of all!

II.

Once if ants got in the sugar
We would drive the things away—
Now we quickly shift the matter
To the good old U. S. A.
Now when mice invade the pantries
And become an awful pest
We refer it to the Congress
And Our Country does the rest!

III.

When the chickens quit their laying,
Once we waited and stood pat—
Now we yell: "Oh, Mister Hopkins!"
And he soon attends to that!
If the cows fall off in milking
We don't fret or fume or stew—
We parade and carry banners:
"Fix Our Cows Up P. D. Q.!"

IV.

If the auto's full of carbon—
If the plumbing springs a leak—
If the baby has the colic
Or the rent is due this week,
There is nothing gained by fretting
And we do not give a damn—
We put all our troubles blithlely
Up to good old Uncle Sam!

V.

Now my boy's about to marry
And he hasn't got a cent;
Let He simply puts his future
Right up to his Government!
They want six or seven children
And their haste is nothing strange—
It is just a proposition
For the Nation to arrange!

VI.

As for me, I've got lumbago
And a touch of rheumatiz,
There is something out of kilter
With my liver, heart and giz;
But I do not have to diet
Or to do what doctors say—
I can get myself done over
By the WPA!

Surprise!

("Mr. Kasper, father of the quadruplets, seemed stunned when he reached the hospital."—News item.)

'Twas a balmy summer evening,
Old Kasper's work was done;
He hurried home and found there
Were four instead of one!

Neuralgia Is Treated By Alcohol Injections

Kansas City, May 13 (AP).—Injection of alcohol into a facial nerve for the diagnosis as well as the relief of neuralgia was described today before a divisional meeting of the American Medical Association by Dr. Francis C. Grant, of Philadelphia.

A highly controversial subject involving a disease which often afflicts persons of 50 or over, the method drew immediate criticism from Dr. Walter E. Dandy, of Baltimore, who has "a great horror for alcoholic injections."

Girl Dies After Inhaling Top of Cigarette Lighter

Philadelphia, May 13 (AP).—The metal cap of a cigaret lighter she inhaled into her lung nearly three weeks ago caused the death of 16-year-old Pauline Lane today.

Temple University Hospital said no operation was attempted there because a lung abscess developed from the inch-long piece of metal. There was a sudden fatal hemorrhage.

The girl arrived from Knoxville, Tenn., last Thursday after two operations there.

Greek Strike Failure, Says Metaxas; 100 Held

Athens, Greece, May 13 (AP).—More than 100 persons were reported arrested tonight after mild disturbances between street car motormen and police as a 24-hour general strike closed.

"The general strike did not succeed," Premier John Metaxas declared. "The public was practically unaffected due to government control."

Several new clashes resulted from high feeling among dockworkers at Piraeus, the port of Athens. In the capital, strikers stoned street cars and smashed a few shop windows.

Red Men, Pocahontas Lodges Plan Convention

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 13.—Tuscarora Tribe, No. 50, Improved Order of Red Men, and Tippecanoe Council, No. 17, Degree of Pocahontas, will be hosts next week to the great council of West Virginia and the Great Council of the Degree of Pocahontas.

Officers of the two groups that will entertain the conventions are: Tippecanoe Council, Rhoda Butts, Minnie Kline, Lula DeHaven, W. F. Herzer, Laura McDonald, Bertha Henshew, Nellie McBee; Tuscarora Tribe, W. H. Horner, Homer Mason, C. S. Grubb, Harry Hess, G. R. Williams, E. A. Wilson, J. N. Morrison. The committee on arrangements is composed of G. R. Williams, J. W. Chambers and C. C. Kendricks.

China's Currency

Disastrous Effects of Silver Purchase Act Being Overcome By New Managed Money System But Future Still Uncertain.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg.

Shanghai.

With the Manchurian interlude and the bombardment of Shanghai, the Silver Purchase Act forms one of the darkest chapters in China's recent unhappy history. For although the act was rushed through the Congress to the accompaniment of loud assurances that it would bring untold prosperity to China's 400,000,000, thus benefitting the American trader, its only effects thus far has been to break the country's economic backbone.

The soaring prices on silver found an immediate reflection in rallying reports. In the wake of the Act came severe deflation, which paralyzed China's economic organism. The Chinese dollar, always a plaything of financial winds, began to totter under the pressure of domestic and London speculators.

As the world price of silver set new high records, it became profitable to export the metal. The flight of silver reached calamitous proportions in the autumn of 1934, when in four months preceding October 14, a little more than $200,000,000 left China. In Shanghai, the financial heart of the country, the silver stocks fell from Ch. $544,000,000 at the end of June to Ch. $317,000,000 six months later.

With the financial world in the grip of a panic, the Government had no alternative but to take its first step on the road to a managed currency. On October 15, 1934, a 10 per cent duty was clamped on the exports of silver, in addition to a variable equalization charge, designed to eliminate the disparity between the prices on silver in China and abroad. Silver, however, continued to circulate freely in the country.

But with the American silver lobbyists still hard at work, the measure was of little avail. While the Chinese dollar was worth U. S. $0.37 in October, 1934, it rose to $0.42 a few months later.

Government Unable To Check Smuggling.

At the same time, the gap between the local and world silver prices continued to widen, reaching at one time 45 per cent. Smuggling of the metal became so profitable that no efforts of the Government could check it. Nipponese and Koreans were especially proficient in the trade, arriving in Peiping and Shanghai with pocketbooks stuffed with yen, and leaving with their specially tailored vests loaded with thousands of silver dollars. Late last year there were cases when several hundred smugglers booked passage on a single Japan-bound ship. The Japanese consular authorities, alarmed by Nanking's reported dallying with Great Britain, made no active effort to put an end to smuggling.

Paralleling the exodus of silver was a severe contraction of currency and credit, which further pushed the index of prices downward. The rate of interest rose early last year to 26 and even 30 per cent per annum. The value of stocks and bonds tobogganed to record lows. The disastrous fall in the value of real estate resulted in the collapse of Mr. Frank Raven's American Oriental Banking Corporation and the affiliated organizations.

The complete breakdown of the Chinese monetary system was prevented only by the heroic efforts of the three government-controlled banks: the Central Bank of China, the Bank of China and the Bank of Communications. A special Ch. $24,000,000 loan fund, created to assist industrial, commercial and banking enterprises in financial straits, was also of signal assistance.

China Compelled To Drop Silver Standard.

However, more draconic measures were required. In October, 1935, speculators, many of whom were reported to be high-placed government officials, who were "in the know," precipitated a panic by frantic purchases of foreign currency. Therefore the government's announcement, issued on the night of November 3, 1935, taking China off the silver standard, was not unexpected.

The decree provided for the following:

1. Compulsory exchange of silver for the banknotes of the three Government-controlled banks, which became full legal tender.

2. The centralization and control of note issues and their reserves in the hands of a Currency Reserve Board.

3. Stabilization of exchange at the then existing level, through the unlimited purchase and sales of foreign exchange by the three banks.

4. A reorganization of the Central Bank of China, to make it an independent central reserve bank, somewhat on the pattern of the American federal reserve system.

The decree also provided for the creation of a special institution to handle mortgage business and for the amendment of the legal code so as to make real estate more acceptable as security for loans, thus increasing the liquidity of the commercial banks.

What role Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, Chief Economic Adviser to the British government, now sojourning here, played in the Chinese financial drama will probably never be known.

Your correspondent has it from reliable sources that the British economist was in constant consultation with finance ministry officials just prior to the promulgation of the decree.

Nanking Faces Great Difficulties.

If Sir Frederick's part in the reforms was uncertain, the next step of the British government left no doubts as to its anxiety to help Nanking. In an order-in-council, issued on the morning of November 4, the British Ambassador extended to Britons the provisions of the Chinese decree, prohibiting the payment of debts or other obligations in silver.

Although the Washington administration took no official steps to help China in getting out of the hole dug by American congressmen, the Treasury purchased through the National City and the Chase Banks 60,000,000 ounces of silver at 65 cents an ounce. This provided the Chinese government with a substantial reserve fund abroad, enabling it to keep the dollar at a fixed level.

In cooking their financial stew, the Nanking chefs are facing enormous difficulties. First, and most important of all, is the indubitable fact that thanks to factional jealousies and foreign intrigues China is not a unified nation. Nanking's authority extends only over eight or nine provinces, most of which lie in the rich Yangtze valley. South China has paid little heed to Nanking's pleas for co-operation.

The attitude of Japan, always uncertain, presents a factor whose influence on the stability of the Chinese dollar cannot be underestimated.

The maintenance of a managed currency requires a balanced budget. This the government, despite its pledges, has and will find difficult, if not impossible, to achieve. The continuous anti-communist campaigns annually drain the government's coffers to the bottom. With the loss of northern customs revenues, Nanking will find it increasingly difficult to secure the required funds. The expenditures have to be pruned, but practically nothing has yet been done in this direction.

The maintenance of a managed currency also requires exceptional skill and experience. A false step may once again result in a speculative orgy and the collapse of the dollar.

Success Meets Nanking's Efforts.

YET, WITH ALL these difficulties, Nanking's measures thus far have had manifest success. The following evaluation of the currency reforms by Mr. Soong is thoroughly sound, lacking the usual boundless optimism of official statements.

"The new monetary system," said Mr. Soong, "met with a reception that was surprising to many students of monetary history who had been unduly influenced by exaggerated reports of the conservatism of the Chinese people and statements regarding their monetary mentality. The country woke up to a new currency system on November 4, and within three days the success of the measure was assured.

"A return to the silver standard, with its incessant fluctuations and disturbances to our economy, would indeed be a mistake too serious to contemplate unless in the meantime silver had become acceptable as a currency basis . . ."

Five months have passed since the promulgation of the decree, and the results, one must admit, have been entirely satisfactory. Exchange has remained stable. The index of prices in Shanghai rose from 94.1 in October to 105.4 in February. Exports, for the first time in 60 years, have exceeded imports in December and January, although both were distressingly low. Customs revenues, which bear the strain of China's foreign loans have picked up, and after months of deficits have shown a surplus in February.

WPA Articles By Mrs. Meyer Interest Senate

Facts Exposing Conditions in Westchester County Praised in Capitol.

Revelations of WPA relief conditions in Westchester County, New York, presented in a series of articles by Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer, now appearing in The Post, immediately drew the attention yesterday of the Senate Appropriations Committee considering the $1,425,000,000 relief bill. The first of the series of articles, ticles which appeared yesterday morning, also occasioned much comment among members of Congress.

When the Senate Finance Committee met to resume its discussions of the relief bill, a copy of The Post was sent for and Mrs. Meyer's disclosures discussed. There was a suggestion that a thorough-going investigation of conditions in Westchester County be made.

Mrs. Meyer's series, meanwhile, was the subect of wide comment in both House and Senate lobbies, with the Westchester County WPA episode generally cited by members as typical of "politics in relief conditions" charged to exist on a far-flung frontier.

Democratic members of both Houses, less prone than their Republican colleagues to comment "for publication," frequently admitted in privacy that the "Votes at Any Cost" doctrine is a fundamental weakness in relief, as now administered.

Following are a few of the comments on Capitol Hill:

Valuable Contribution.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan:

"This is one more valuable contribution to the mounting evidence that the Relief Administration has been politically scandalized all over the country. In view of the pious nonpartisan protests of the President and his high associates in command of relief, I am totally unable to understand why this pyramiding indictment is met in the Senate with a stolid refusal to permit investigation and ventilation."

Senator Frederick Hale (Republican), of Maine:

"Mrs. Meyer has revealed a very shocking situation in Westchester County. I think that if this is true in one place, the same situation probably applies on a good many other projects throughout the country."

Representative Robert L. Bacon (Republican), of New York:

"Mrs. Agnes Meyer has done a national public service by exposing this disgraceful political set-up of relief in Westchester County. Unfortunately, this is not an isolated case. If it were not for the political wolves who are absorbing so much of the overhead of relief, more of the relief dollars would reach the unemployed, for whom they were intended. We should have relief for the unemployed, not for the politicians. The cost of caring for the unemployed might be reduced by half by the single act of purging the Federal relief machinery of political patronage.

No Doubt of Truth.

Representative James W. Wadsworth (Republican), of New York:

"Mrs. Meyer's recital of the WPA situation in Westchester County is of absorbing interest. That she speaks the truth about it, there cannot be the slightest doubt. It presents a ghastly picture—one which I am convinced is repeated in a great many other counties scattered all over the country. This dirty condition is inherent in the system, espoused and administered by the Administration. It will persist, not only in Westchester, but in other places until these people are voted out of power."

Representative John Taber (Republican), New York:

"It is too bad that the general character of the work of the WPA, as exemplified in Mrs. Meyer's article, is not better appreciated in Congress. One must remember that the thing she is describing is just one instance of what occurs on virtually every WPA project—a complete and deliberate demoralization and breakdown of public service. This is the reason why Federal control must stop if we are ever to recover."

Representative Andrew L. Somers (Democrat), New York:

"I see in this article the germs of a great deal of truth. The indictment she makes against the Administration in this case no doubt can be substantiated. But when we stop to consider the immensity of the problem, and the time in which it has had to be advanced, I think we have done about as well as could be expected of any Administration, regardless of party allegiance."

Offers Plan.

Representative Vito Marcantonio (Republican), of New York:

"I agree with Mrs. Meyer that Federal administration of relief is reeking with politics. However, I do not agree with her solution. I do not believe in turning relief back to the local authorities. My plan is to turn administration over to a board comprised of one-third unemployed, one-third social workers and one-third appointees of the Administration."

Representative Daniel A. Reed (Republican), of New York:

"Mrs. Meyer is only revealing what is happening in all parts of the United States. The House Ways and Means Committee, for example, heard testimony by one Pittsburgh relief official that 50 cents of every relief dollar is being wasted."

Pilot in Air Crash Reported Improved

Carlin Peyton, 28, Alexandria pilot whose plane crashed Monday in the Potomac, was reported recovering in Alexandria Hospital last night.

The other occupant of the plane, J. E. Lyons, 32, of 1819 North Capitol street, was not injured.

Investigation of the accident was started yesterday, when Department of Commerce officials received a report that the passenger was allegedly protesting the low-altitude stunt flying when the crash occurred.

Efforts will be made by fellow Alexandrians to obtain recognition and reward for Carlton Padgett, 9 West Walnut street, Rosemont, who plunged into the river and rescued Peyton, who was unconscious and fastened by a safety belt into his plane.

Votes—at ANY Cost

Midland Avenue Playfield, where he was suddenly told that there were too many supervisors and was discharged. Immediately, however, his place was filled by a Democratic garbage collector who was not a relief case. After giving F.— M.— relief for a time, the town of Rye secured him a job on the sea wall, but here again he was discharged May 8, while other men, one of them a general foreman, a nonrelief steamfitter by trade, was kept on. Again, this man, F.— M.—, a Republican, received $93.50 on the sea wall to feed his seven children, although he was made to do foreman's work, while the Democratic proteges got $130. In case President Roosevelt is still looking for an ideal example of the forgotten man, I nominate F.— M.— for the place.

Nor can President Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins pretend that they are ignorant of this chicanery. Aside from the fact that Gov. Lehman, one of President Roosevelt's closest friends, lives in our county, several letters have been written them with explicit complaints. Perhaps they never saw them, but the safe arrival of these letters cannot be denied as I have myself seen the postal receipts.

As soon as the withholding of pay and the ruthless discrimination began, a group of white-collar workers consisting of architects, engineers, statisticians, and other technical workmen formed themselves into a "Westchester Employes Association," chiefly to demand the pay schedule due them and used in New York City, and to secure their arrears of pay. To a certain extent they were successful, for during December and January, when most other WPA workers received nothing, this organized group forced WPA officials to make a few belated payments although not at the rate they petitioned for. As a result these men, many of whom are highly respected business men, were denounced in the press by Mr. Bryan as Communists and some of them were promptly discharged. They were told that they had been guilty of "insubordination," a favorite evasion of Mr. Heyd's when he dismisses people. (This word unconsciously betrays the false idea which these would-be Mussolinis have of themselves). Whereupon these white-collar men petitioned the President on February 24 as follows:

"It is with regret that we * * * request that you execute your powers to have the WPA distribute the security legislated by the Congress in a diligent manner without discrimination and as promptly as possible.

"Our endeavor is simply to secure the rights provided by our Government.

"1. Our group is suffering beyond imagination.

"2. They and their dear families are having their gas and electricity turned off.

"3. They are getting along with insufficient food.

"4. They are losing their homes and being dispossessed.

"5. Their morale is being broken down terribly.

"For the cause of humanity and security of our people we feel you will put forth your sincere efforts in our behalf."

These citizens told me that they received to this letter a cold acknowledgment referring the matter back to the politicians responsible for their acute distress.

To Mr. Hopkins the same group made the following requests on February 20th:

"1. All compensation defaulted and due to date.

"2. Same rates of pay for respective classifications as now prevail on WPA projects in New York City.

"3. Provide sufficient projects.

"4. Have a thorough understanding with your subordinates that they are public servants and not autocrats, and that any of them responsible for the gross irregularities now existent should be reprimanded by demotion or dismissal."

Editorial Describes Conditions.

In the letter to the President was inclosed an editorial from the local White Plains Reporter of February 11th entitled "The Indignation March," describing accurately some of the conditions. I introduce this editorial in part as it reviews the whole development. Unfortunately the situation today is, if anything, worse than it was in February.

The Daily Reporter—February 11, 1936.

"THE INDIGNATION MARCH."

"Around Christmas time this newspaper pointed to disgraceful scenes enacted at the old high school here, as Works Progress Administration workers, taken off the relief rolls with promises of rehabilitation, milled about the corridors in fruitless quest for pay checks long due them. It was necessary that the local welfare department tide the men over Christmas Day with food orders, but for which scores of WPA workers' families might have gone hungry.

"In the weeks that have ensued since the Works Progress Administration began its effort to rehabilitate the unemployed by taking them off the dole and putting them at work on Government-financed projects, the situation has passed from the disgraceful into the dangerous stage. The indignation march of Saturday morning, participated in by about 300 WPA workers from the Gedney Field, Court street and Dupont avenue projects, was a visible sign of the feeling of practically every one of the more than a thousand White Plains men who are on such projects, and of the many thousands employed on projects of similar nature throughout Westchester County.

"Saturday was the men's day off. They were not going on strike. They were not out to make a disturbance. The 14 police that were on duty at the old high school on their arrival found nothing to do. There would have been no trouble had the police not been there. The men were on a peaceful mission, protesting for what every fair-minded American citizen will agree is due them—fair working conditions, and wages paid regularly.

"To dismiss the indignation marchers as troublemakers, to call them Communists, as some probably will or already have, serves only to fan the flame of discontent that is approaching the flaring point at the stupid manner in which the top people of the WPA at Albany regard the unfortunates who have been forced on Government relief through the force of economic stress beyond their control, or anybody else's.

"Until the Works Progress Administration came into the picture there were no public disturbances, no mass meetings of protest, no such muttering and complaining among the unemployed as there is today.

"The Works Progress Administration, a brilliant scheme conceived by President Roosevelt, and financed with a grant of $4,500,000,000 appropriated by the Congress, plus a couple of billions more as the share of local communities through the Nation, has changed all this in this section at least. Apparently the heads of WPA at Albany have no concern at all for the men who are taken from the relief rolls and put on their projects. They care not whether they eat, or are clothed and fed. They forget that these men have families, and that the failure to pay them removes from them the slight feeling of security that was theirs when they were on the relief rolls. The plain truth of the matter is that the Works Progress Administration scheme in the State of New York has broken down because of the autocratic attitude of the men put in charge of it."

The credit for the orderly non-political picture which this editorial describes as existing before the advent of WPA belongs to our local County Work Bureau, which consisted of four commissioners, eminent private citizens, drafted by the board of supervisors. The executive staff from 1931 to date was under the direction of a resident of the county, well-known as an expert on county and local planning and qualified by training and experience in public administration. His subordinates, with a few exceptions, were men drawn from the ranks of the relief workers themselves, but chosen on the basis of proven ability. The few others were specially chosen because they were all experienced executives or professional experts and specially qualified foremen. What the political affiliations of these men and women may be had never so much as been discussed throughout the four years during which the bureau functioned. The very thought that politics had any place in the relief situation was promptly rejected as unfit for a civilized people. For our county, relief was a technical job in need of the most highly skilled professional leadership.

But the most sinister aspect of WPA racket is not the support of their henchmen in unnecessary jobs for which the taxpayer must suffer. The WPA is being used in the most calculating way to build up in this country a Fascist organization of which Hitler himself might be envious—if it works. In order to achieve this the great numbers of Democratic field men consider themselves a skeleton organization whose duty it is to reach out among the relief workers and the population generally for the formation of new Democratic clubs in every city, village and town. Three weeks ago the workers received a blue card ordering them to report at the various clubs and pay a dollar in dues. This card I could no longer secure as the men had either surrendered them at the meeting or thrown them away. In one case within my knowledge a man who refused to attend was dismissed.

Mrs. Gloria Spreckels Wins Divorce at Reno

Reno, Nev., May 13 (AP).—Testifying behind the locked doors of District Judge Benjamin F. Curler's courtroom, Mrs. Gloria Debbevoise Spreckels won dissolution today of her marriage eight months ago to Adolph B. Spreckels, heir to a California sugar fortune.

Bryan Refuses Reply to Attack On WPA Jobs

Westchester, N. Y., Chief of Unit Denies He Made Statement.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

White Plains, N. Y., May 13.—"I wouldn't even honor such an article with a reply. I won't get down in the mud-gutter of politics for Mrs. Meyer or anybody else."

That was the declaration today of John Buckley Bryan, regional director of the Works Progress Administration, when asked if he wished to answer charges made by Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer, chairman of the Westchester County Recreation Commission, in articles now appearing in The Washington Post.

"Mrs. Meyer is the living proof of my contention," Bryan continued, "that the WPA cannot afford to employ people who are antagonistic to its purposes. If I had to hire people like Mrs. Meyer I wouldn't even get to first base. She gives direct proof that we must have loyal employes if we are to succeed."

Denies Statement.

Mr. Bryan was asked directly if he admitted the statement attributed to him by Mrs. Meyer: "Franklin D. Roosevelt is the man who gave us this money, and I would be the dirtiest kind of dog-traitor if I didn't see to it that people who are 100 per cent for him receive first consideration."

"I never made such a statement either to Mrs. Meyer or to any friends of her's or anybody else," he replied.

"But I am glad to see that she has changed her views from the time she made her town hall speech a month ago. At that time she said none of us was qualified, that we were all a bunch of chiselers.

Too Busy for Politics.

"Now I see that she says that I am an 'engineer of note,' which is more than I would say for myself. She said in her town hall speech that we were all a bunch of cheap politicians with no executive ability whatever. I thank her for the reference to my being 'an engineer of note.'

"But as for answering her articles, absolutely no. I am too busy to get mixed up in a lot of politics. I have a job to do and I intend to do it.

"This is undoubtedly the opening gun of the campaign but I don't intend to take time from my job to answer such things. Mrs. Meyer is proving by her own words what a mistake it would be to put people like herself, antagonistic to our purposes, where they could harm our work."

Girl, 6, Hit by Auto, Dies On Way to Hospital

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 13.—Ethelyn Faith Evans, 6, died enroute to a hospital here last night of injuries sustained when struck by an automobile as she was trying to cross a State highway in front of her home at Darkesville, south of here.

Edward W. Dellinger, of Middletown, Va., driver of the car which struck the child, was in jail here today in default of bond. A manslaughter charge was lodged against him and a hearing was set for Saturday.

A brother, with the child, tried to stop her from crossing the road by grabbing her garments, but failed. The motorist took the child to a hospital here.

Last week another call for meetings was sent out, this time on postal cards and one of these I reproduce.

★ BROOKSVILLE DEMOCRATIC CLUB ★

A meeting of the Brooksville Democratic Club will be held Thurs. May 7, at 8:00 P. M., at the Polish United Club, Locust Avenue.

What arouses my curiosity is the relationship of these new clubs to the old county Democratic organization. In our county the two groups seem to understand each other, but I can see how WPA with its vast supply of funds could readily crush any but the strongest local machines in case the regular organization refused to go along.

To bolster up this attempt to create a Democratic renaissance, a new paper called the Standard Democrat, with offices at Mamaroneck avenue, White Plains, is about to be launched. At least I hope it will be launched for timekeepers are already busy selling subscriptions at two dollars apiece to the relief workers as of May 15. I reproduce one of these subscriptions which had been squeezed out of a poor devil who gets about $65 a month and supports out of that a wife and some children. This same relief worker who had treated himself to the Standard Democrat showed me Harry Hopkins' circular letter No. 64 informing him that it wasn't absolutely necessary. Here is a quotation from the letter that has sardonic implications.

THIS IS YOUR RECEIPT. NO OTHER BILL WILL BE SENT.

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER

Please enter my subscription to "THE STANDARD DEMOCRAT" a weekly newspaper published every Friday noon at 76 Mamaroneck Avenue, White Plains, N. Y.

My subscription is to run from Friday, May 15 1936 to Friday May 15, 1937, for which I agree to pay the sum of Two ($2.00) Dollars in advance.

THE STANDARD DEMOCRAT
Lavina C. Taylor,
Circulation Manager
Dem Chairman
Greenburgh

"The question of whether or not to contribute to any political party is a matter entirely for the voluntary decision of said employes." Hopkins in other words sidesteps the whole issue and leaves the relief worker a prey to the wolves. If Hopkins means business why doesn't he send out word that he will put in jail the first fellow who is caught cracking the Democratic whip over the helpless relief worker? He does not do it because he knows precisely what is going on and that he is powerless to stop it. That at least is the kindest interpretation.

Another little game that is going along merrily just now is a dinner that is being given for Mrs. Lavina C. Taylor in order to get $200 to go to the Democratic convention. The following letter is being mailed right and left with two tickets inclosed:

Dear Friend,

The inclosed tickets are self-explanatory, and I hope you will honor us with your presence. This dinner is to be given Mrs. Taylor in order to help defray her expenses to the national convention. May we count on your help? Will you please make your reservation definite, no later than May 15? Mail your reservation to the chairman or at least your intention, as we must know definitely, address Mr. Thomas J. Brady, 76 Mamaroneck avenue, White Plains, N. Y. Room 21.

(Signed)
THOS. J. BRADY.

Mrs. Taylor, who is a Democratic leader of Greenburgh, is also circulation manager of the newspaper-to-be.

After wading around in the muddy waters of political intrigue day after day, it was refreshing to find that the procurement division in the local treasury office is not only efficient but scrupulously honest.

To the credit of our Westchester Democrats be it stated that there are well-founded rumors of violent protestations before the State committee on the whole disgraceful WPA situation. Far be it from me to state why nothing came of it. Albany is not part of my story.

Is it any wonder, considering the elaborate and wasteful Democratic machine which has been built in Westchester, that the Administration insists upon having all of the $1,500,000,000 for WPA? The organization has been spending $1,000,000 or more every month in Westchester County alone. If money is being as wastefully spent by WPA in other counties in the United States, it is not hard to understand that another $1,500,000,000 is needed to carry on.

Tomorrow I shall give an account of the WPA pay roll scandal. It is one of those stories that would be funny, were it not for the human misery involved, the tragedy and tears.

How a Baby Grows

By Dr. Arnold Gesell, M. D.

The Second Three Months Part Four

The Baby Comes into Command of the Muscles Which Support His Head and Move His Arms. He Reaches for Things. The series of four pictures below show the same infant at 20 weeks of age as his eyes are attracted to the cube that he was unsuccessful in picking up at 16 weeks of age. He sights the cube in the first picture and brings one hand toward it. He is now learning to co-ordinate rapidly, but is often unable, at this age, to grasp the cube with his hand every time he attempts to do so. TOMORROW: The Second Three Months, Part Five.

Troops Called As Students Riot In Puerto Rico

Winship Closes All Schools as Youths Trample on American Flag.

By the United Press.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, May 13.—National Guard units under command of Col. Raul Esteves were mobilized today and all San Juan schools were ordered closed as Gov. Blanton Winship took energetic steps to quell student riots.

The American flag was trampled by groups of students who raided several schools and smashed windows and furniture. The groups were augmented by adult sympathizers who seized the opportunity to hold a pro-republic demonstration and display ill-will toward the American Government.

Capt. Rafael Diaz, police official, was brought from Arecibo to replace Chief Martinez Chapel of the San Juan police. Diaz criticized his predecessor's alleged weakness in face of the increased disorders and indicated he would use stern measures to check the rioters.

Guard Mobilized.

Gov. Winship ordered the guard mobilized and school classes suspended after conferring with Lieut. Gov. Jose Padin. The Governor said he was resolved to restore order and would employ every legitimate means to avert further disturbances.

Additional police guards were stationed at La Fortaleza, official residence of the Governor, after demonstrators paraded there to cry out against him. Several shop windows, including those of the Plaza Provision Co., an American grocery, were broken by the mob, which also stormed the police chief's car.

The disturbance began when high school students discovered someone had cut down the school flag pole from which the lone-starred flag of the "Puerto Rican Republican" was flown. Indignant, the students entered the high school and wrecked classrooms. They then organized city-wide demonstrations and began to parade through the streets. Persuasive tactics of the police failed to halt them.

Previous Demonstrations.

High school and university students, the majority of whom profess sympathy for the Nationalist Party independence program, have participated in several anti-American demonstrations during the last year.

Anti-American agitation was intensified with announcement by Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, recently that he planned to offer a bill to Congress providing for a vote by Puerto Ricans on independence from the United States.

The students, as well as many Nationalists, appear to have accepted this as a definite independence gesture by Washington and apparently accept freedom of the island as an accomplished fact.

Completion of Bridge To Reopen Highway

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hancock, a., May 13.—A main highway from Berkeley Springs, via great Cacapon, will be opened Monday or early next week with the completion of a temporary bridge over the Cacapon River at Great Cacapon, replacing the bridge carried away by the March flood.

A large force of men has been working on the temporary span two weeks, and its completion is expected by Saturday night. Travel through Berkeley Springs had been blocked by washed away bridges.

Caused Fatal Fire

Lunch Hour Saves 155 As Plant Floor Caves In

Hagerstown, Md., May 13 (AP).—The fact that 155 employes of the Southern Shoe Co. were out of the factory at lunch saved them from death or serious injury today, when the second floor collapsed under the weight of many tons of leather.

Police, firemen and volunteers searched through the wreckage for several hours in search of other persons who might have been crushed, but found none.

Warren Levy Boosted.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, Va., May 13.—The board of supervisors of Warren County yesterday adopted the annual county budget for the next fiscal year, carrying an increase in the tax levy of 5 cents for county administration and an increase of 5 cents for the county school operating fund. The total amount of the budget is $111,030.07.

LOSE FAT THE EASY WAY

Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

Here's a way to get rid of ugly fat that works hand in hand with Nature. Millions of people are losing millions of pounds of flabby flesh and getting back slender figures, without the need of starvation diets or back-breaking exercises.

Medical science has discovered that one of the causes of too much fat lies in a little gland. It is the duty of this tiny gland to make about one drop and a half every day of a vital fluid. This helps the body "burn" up food and excess fatty tissues just as a good draft of air helps the furnace to burn up coal without forming "clinkers." If this little gland doesn't make this drop and a half of fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat.

Doctors correct this condition by feeding this little gland the substance it lacks—and Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on this same method. Millions are using them with success. They are prepared by a world-famous medical laboratory. Their formula is published in every package so you know what you are taking.

So don't waste time and money with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Go to your druggist today and get a box of Marmola. Try this simple, easy way to get rid of excess fat. —Adv.

Torch Dancer Fires Cabaret; 4 Die, 12 Hurt

Draperies Ignited During Act; Causes Stampede at Night Club.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, May 13.—A torch in the hands of a swaying dancer ignited the draperies of a crowded little night club and started a fire and a stampede today in which four persons died and twelve were injured.

A screeching crowd of 60 persons trampled Josephine Dickerson, 22, hat check girl, to death as it fought through smoke and flame to the one available exit.

In the hall through which the crowd rushed from the second-floor club to the street the bodies of three other victims were found. Their clothing was charred. They had been trampled.

Police Inspector Charles Dullea said he would inspect every night club in town to see whether similar fire hazards existed.

Besides Miss Dickerson, the dead were Mrs. Elsie Marler, 32, Petaluma, Calif.; Robert Pattison, 31, Berkeley automobile salesman, and John R. Manson, 32, a University of California graduate.

Low Tax Rate to Prevail.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Williamsport, Md., May 13.—This town's tax rate of 55 cents on the $100, one of the lowest of any incorporated town in Maryland, will remain unchanged for another year, the mayor and council have decided.

Culbertson on Bridge

A great many players adopt a technique as declarer that is comparable to the one used by the ostrich. They bury their faces in their own cards, lifting their heads only to peer at the dummy. They are either deathly afraid of their opponents or, perhaps, feel that nothing can be gained by watching the cards they play.

This is exactly opposite to the technique used by experts. An expert studies his own hand and dummy thoroughly and, having fixed the cards at least roughly in his mind, watches for the defenders' follow-suit cards and discards as keenly as though each were a separate clew to a murder mystery. The declarer in today's hand was the ostrich type.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | 1 spade | Pass | 2 dimds. |
| 2 hearts | 3 dimds. | 3 hearts | Double |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

It would have been wiser for North to have shaded honor requirements and to have opened the bidding with one heart than to have come in at the two level, where he might have been massacred. West's double of the less-than-game contract was aggressive, but not greatly to be criticized, considering his singleton of partner's bid and reasonable strength in three suits. East, despite his dislike for the double, had to trust his partner, since the double of a three bid denotes exceptional strength, inasmuch as failure to defeat the contract results in a game for the opponents.

East opened the spade king and followed with two more high rounds. On the second round West discarded the seven of clubs and, on the third round, the deuce. But declarer paid no more attention to these discards than if he had not been at the table. As a matter of fact, West's discards were bad, and gave an opportunity (which was not capitalized) for the fulfilment of the contract. Possibly he hoped that his partner had a solid four card suit, and that he would be able to get rid of all his clubs so that he could ruff that suit immediately. But when dummy's ten spot became established on the fourth round, East decided to make his partner kill that good trick by a ruff. West duly ruffed, but was over-ruffed, and now declarer led a small heart to the king and another back to his ace, leaving West with only a high heart. A diamond to the ace put the lead in dummy and, at this stage, the declarer was "home," had he not made a terrible play. He led the queen of clubs! West covered with the blank king and East's ten thereby was promoted to a full trick.

The veriest novice should have realized that after West's two club discards nothing could be gained by leading the queen of clubs. Either West did not have the king or had it unguarded. In both cases a small club was the proper play and, had it been made, the doubled contract would have been fulfilled.

Jewish Appeal Raises $62,000 For D. C. Fund

150 Workers Agree They Will Continue Canvassing for Gifts.

The United Jewish Appeal in Washington has raised $62,000, it was announced yesterday at the final drive meeting at the Jewish Community Center.

Although the campaign for European relief and Palestine rehabilitation is officially ended, the 150 or more workers who attended the luncheon meeting agreed to continue their canvass for funds until every prospective contributor had been reached.

Isidore Hershfield, co-chairman of the drive, who presided at the luncheon, announced that more than 2,100 contributions had been received to exceed last year's total by 500. He expressed the hope that the workers would bring in an additional 500 donations before the drive books are finally closed.

Louis E. Spiegler, drive director, and Morris Simon, chairman of the special gifts committee, thanked the drive workers for their achievement this year, pointing out that nearly twice the sum raised in 1935 already had been collected.

Seven million dollars is being raised throughout the United States this year for the two causes represented in the local united drive. Reports from throughout the country indicate that the appeal for funds is meeting with generous response in all Jewish communities. Edmund I. Kaufmann, Morris Cafritz and Isidore Hershfield are co-chairmen of the local campaign.

G. U. Cadets Drill For Awards Today

Preceded by a luncheon in honor of prominent military guests, annual competitions of the Georgetown University R. O. T. C. unit will be staged on the Hilltop campus at 2 p. m. today.

Assistant Secretary of War Harry Woodring and Maj. Gen. Albert J. Bowley, Third Corps Area commander, with his staff, will be the chief reviewing officers, and an Army board headed by Lieut. Col. J. G. Ord, commander at Fort Washington, will judge the competitive events.

The Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president, will have visiting military officials and the R. O. T. C. staff of the university as his guests. Included also are the heads of various patriotic and veteran associations.

A Washington student, Fred R. Tansill, will command the cadet battalion as it marches in review. In the event of rain, prizes will be awarded in Gaston Hall.

A competitive company drill will feature the events, followed by platoon and individual drills to determine the best men in the unit. A score of honor cadets also will be awarded prizes.

The 'Merchant'

"THE MERCHANT OF VENICE." The Children's Community Theater presents the drama by William Shakespeare in five acts and ten scenes, under the direction of Helen I. Burton, with settings and lighting by Harold Snyder. At the Roosevelt High School May 13. Reviewed Wednesday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Attacking a production of Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice," as a play to be lived upon the stage and not as a sacred piece of literature which neither hands nor tongue should profane, the Children's Community Theater last evening in the auditorium of Roosevelt High School virtually romped through as engrossing and ingenious a free translation of the famed drama as one would care to see.

It was another of Helen I. Burton's productions where the children become so imbued with the spirit of their parts that the play just goes one, the players being practically inspired robots from which flow the proper words and the action to befit the lines.

While the dramatic intensity of the play itself and the relief in which the characters are drawn are considerably greater than in "The Taming of the Shrew," the group's earlier work, the youthful players contributed praiseworthy performance, which, relatively speaking, was considerably above that of some more experienced companies.

The outstanding performance of the evening was that of Frances Shiflet as Shylock, for her a role of fascinating opposites. Far from a Shylock in voice, Miss Shiflet more than compensated for her youth by the sincere and intense manner in which she painted the Jew in bold, almost bloody strokes.

Portia Well Acted.

Portia was the fragile Antonina DeLuca, who, as many an actress before her, rose to her dramatic heights during the trial scene. Here, what she omitted from the "Quality of Mercy" speech, she returned in the manner of its playing.

The trio of romances were consummated by Milly Lou Linton and Peggy Nairn, as Graciano and Nerissa; Gene Mendelsohn and Dorothy Ann Washington, as Lorenzo and Jessica; and Jean Holzbeierlein and Miss DeLuca, as Bassanio and Portia.

Charles Herndon, as the Duke of Venice; Mariah Grove, as Launcelot Gobbo; Pauline Hurley, as Antonio (and Old Gibbo), and Juanito Isherwood, as Tubal, contributed other excellent readings.

Lyman McCrary to Play Dedication on Organ

Lyman McCrary will play the dedicatory recital on the Adelaide R. Probert memorial organ in St. John's Church, Olney, Md., tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. He will be assisted by Grace Powell, violinist, who will play a "Larghetto" by Handel. Mr. McCrary's program is as follows: Trumpet Tune (Purcell), "When We Stand in Deepest Need" (Bach), Fugue in G minor (Bach), "Deck Thyself, My Soul" (Brahms), "Now Thank We Our God" (Karg-Elert), "Sppringtide" (Grieg), "Ronde Francaise" (Boellmann), "Elevation" (Vierne), "Grand Choeur" (Hollins).

BAKER.

Government employes want the world to know that Uncle Sam's big appropriations benefit them only to the extent that it takes more employes to do the Government's work. So far as the individual Government worker is concerned, his lot is regarded as less satisfactory than it was before.

The reason is held that, while there must be great expenditures for relief, for farm aid and for the many other emergency Governmental activities, there is at the same time a tremendous pressure for economy. And the victim of this drive for economy, so Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, points out, is the Government employe himself, particularly those in the old-line agencies.

When the cuts are made in Government expenses, they are generally made at the expense of personnel, at least to a certain extent. At the peak of the economy wave, no promotions were permitted in the service. That prohibition has gone into the discard, but so great is the pressure for economy that, so far as the bulk of Government workers is concerned, it might as well still be in effect.

Take, for example, the custodial service of the Postoffice Department, which has charge of maintenance work in postal buildings. In the next fiscal year, this service will have 400 more buildings to look after than it had last year, and Congress has given it somewhat more money, but Congress lopped off $800,000 from the amount the department thought was needed. Custodial employes for the most part are paid only the minimum pay of their grades, and when appropriations are cut in this fashion, there is not a very good chance of getting more than the minimum.

Babcock thinks it vital that the public should know that Government employes, far from profiting from Government expenditures, are worse off because of them. He also calls attention to the danger of loss of morale and loss of valuable employes, unless some opportunity is afforded for advancement. This opportunity at present exists only in a very limited degree, he asserts, and in the long run, unless the condition is corrected, everyone will be the loser.

Agriculture Dramatic Club.

The Agriculture Dramatic Club will present three workshop productions of one-act plays at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow in the Agriculture auditorium. Music will be furnished by the department orchestra under the direction of Dr. Walter Bauer. The plays are:

"Suppressed Desires," directed by Harry Humphrey (P).

Catherine Bauer, specialist in the Suburban Resettlement Division, Resettlement Administration, will address members of Lodge No. 206, A. F. G. E., on the Wagner-Ellenbogen housing bill at 8 p. m. today at 1328 G street northwest.

Diary Guest Tickets.

If F, P or C follows your name in this column, call in person on the Federal Diary editor today only between 3:30 and 5 p. m. You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: F, Loew's Fox (stage, Mitchell and Durant and other acts; screen, Cary Grant and Joan Bennett in "Big Brown Eyes"); or P, Loew's Palace (Miriam Hopkins, Merle Oberon and Joel McCrea in "These Three"); or C, Loew's Columbia (Shirley Temple, Guy Kibee and Slim Summerville in "Captain January").

Unscheduled Bout Follows Boys Club Fete Postponement

It rained on the seats. The ring got wet. People who attended yot wet. The celebrities scheduled to be present didn't come because they didn't want to get wet. The boys got soaked, too.

So they called off the first anniversary of the Boys Club of the Metropolitan Police at the clubhouse, 472 I street southwest, gave everybody rain checks and told them to come back some future night—yet unannounced. All the guests went home and—

Missed the event of the night.

Because up on the second floor a boy named Tommy ("Wildcat") Wright, and another boy named Calvin ("Bearcat") Mormon—both in the 75-pound class, of 10 years. tangled it up.

It wasn't even on the schedule, and not more than a dozen guests saw it, but it was a honey.

Down on the street below, the ring which had been set up was like wet sailcloth. The seats dripped rain. The real fight was to have been held there. J. Edgar Hoover, Department of Justice, was to have attended. And Petey Sarron, the fighter, too. There was to have been music and entertainment and speaking—if it hadn't rained.

But you can't beat kids.

A thousand were there, soaked through to the skin. Many crowded in the little gym upstairs and watched "Wildcat" and "Bearcat." There was a flurry of leather and scurry of feet that was as good as Madison Square Garden. Their little fists flew like pistons. They got hit and came back for more, smiling like little men or wildcats.

Yes, everybody missed a swell fight.

Nye to Discuss Crisis.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, and David Popper, member of the research staff of the Foreign Policy Association, will address the Capital City Forum tomorrow night on "Phases of the International Crisis."

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Concert by the United States Marine Band Orchestra (Capt. Taylor Branson, conductor) in the Barracks auditorium Wednesday night. Winfred Kemp, barytone soloist. Program: "Hail, America" (Drumm), "Carnival" Overture (Dvorak), "The Culprit Fay" (Hadley), "The Dome of the Capitol" (Siegfried Scharbau), "A Victory Ball" (Schelling), Overture to "Tannhaeuser" (Wagner).

Some time ago Representative Samuel B. Pettengill, of Indiana, wrote a poem of patriotic tenor, which began "I have not yet found the cadence of the song of the Capitol's Dome," enumerated sundry historical, geographical and national elements in that persistent song, and closed "I know that song will go on." To this text Siegfried Scharbau, who holds the rank of principal musician in the Marine Band, composed a setting for barytone solo and orchestra, which was given its first performance last night under the composer's direction.

The work proved to be interesting primarily for the ingenuity with which irregular free verse, not particularly ductile to musical treatment, has been made flexible by a variety of rhyths and frequent changes in time signatures. The vocal line is declamatory, somewhat in the Wagnerian tradition, and deftly written so that its tessitura very rarely suffers interference by the instrumental voices. In consequence of this care in scoring, the text is at all times distinctly audible.

Mr. Scharbau has an excellent sense of instrumental values and color combinations, and his scoring is adroit and effective. Occasionally, for the purpose of underlining the patriotic theme, he has made sparing use of familiar folk melodies, only a phrase or two as a hint to the auditor's mind. The music has vitality, no small part of which springs from the rhythmic subtlety of the writing. The climaxes are skillfully built, and the entire score reveals sound musicianship.

There was disappointment in store for those who expected to hear the fifth symphony of Sibelius, which has been announced for this concert. Henry Hadley's rhapsody, entertaining as it is, and the spirited Dvorak overture, did not compensate for the absence of the masterpiece.

Hazen Is Inducted Into Tribe of Sioux

Amid drum beats and war whoops, Hazen was selected for induction as an honorary chief in the Sioux tribe at elaborate ceremonies in front of the District Building yesterday.

But it was made plain that Hazen is not yet a real, honest-to-goodness chief. He is merely a candidate. Final induction rites are tentatively scheduled for Friday of next week. Meantime, tribal leaders must hold council to select a fitting name for Washington's head man.

A total of 26 Indians participated in yesterday's fete. They were from the Indian Stomp Grounds on Mount Vernon Memorial boulevard near River Bend, set aside for their use from May 1 to November 1 while an Indian self-help project and educational program is pursued.

The Indians also went to the Franklin Administration Building to tender their services to school officials sponsoring the annual Community Center's children's circus, at Central High School Stadium May 23.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Hollywood, May 13.

Barbara Stanwyck is playing a scene for the flicker, "Marry the Girl." The set is an empty apartment, all the furniture having been moved with the exception of the piano. A group of furniture movers is gathered about Miss Stanwyck, who is at the piano. She is being evicted from the apartment and the furniture is being taken away. It is a cold and dismal day, and to make it appear so, there is studio snow on the window panes. Director Leigh Jason gives the signal, Miss Stanwyck starts emoting and the studio snow starts falling outside. It is nice to watch a snowstorm.

STANWYCK.

Barbara, at the piano, begins to sing, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," and the piano movers, who have been drinking beer, join in, forgetting to take away the piano. It is loud singing and all the performers on the set are enjoying themselves. Watching it, it is a scene in which you know that the actors and actresses are having fun.

The flicker tentatively titled "Chinese Gold," has gone into production. This is the picture which is Clifford Odets' initial contribution to the screen. The opening shot shows a street in China, and a Chinese gentleman, his face grim, is to come riding a bicycle, full speed ahead, down the narrow street.

• • • •

Odets is on the set. He confers with Director Milestone between scenes. Odets has completed his task, which was to write the scenario, but he is very interested in how pictures are made and comes on the set daily. Odets says that he believes in motion pictures and that great things can be done on the screen. He wants to learn the technical things about pictures.

Gary Cooper, who has the lead in this flicker, comes on the set and plays with the small monkey called Peppy. They are to get acquainted before playing scenes together. Peppy has an important role in this picture.

The man who owns Peppy is verp proud of him. "He's the best monkey in the business," he says. Right now Peppy is playing in three pictures. "Follow the Fleet," "Here Comes Trouble," and "A Message for Garcia." "Show me another actor who is playing in three pictures right now," he boasts. His salary for Peppy is $150 a week.

REA Measure Terms Adopted By Conferees

By the Associated Press.

Congressional enactment of the $410,000,000 rural electrification bill neared yesterday when House and Senate conferees, after a long dispute, reached an agreement on the measure.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, author of the bill, said he was well satisfied with the agreement, which would authorize a 10-year program of extending power facilities to farm families.

The chief dispute, which had held up the agreement for weeks, was over a House provision for loans to private power companies. A compromise was reached permitting such loans, but directing that preference should be given loans to municipalities, farm organizations and non-profit groups.

The Senate provision for nonpartisan appointment of employes of the proposed permanent Rural Electrification Administration was approved.

Under a compromise, the conferees agreed the interest on loans should be equal to what the Federal Government had to pay during the year previous on 10-year credit.

The Rural Electrification Commission would be lent $50,000,000 by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation during the first year, under the compromise bill, and appropriations of $40,000,000 a year for the next nine years would be authorized.

Mrs. Parsons Wills $90,000 to Husband

In a will written in her own hand, Mrs. Alice D. Parsons, for many years prominent in civic affairs, left her entire $90,000 estate to her husband, Dr. Charles Lathrop Parsons, executive secretary of the American Chemical Society, it was shown yesterday when the instrument was filed in the District Supreme Court.

Mrs. Parsons was survived by four children, all of whom expressed themselves as satisfied with the provisions of the will, and to the appointment of their father as executor.

Through Attorney Godfrey L. Munter, the petition explained that all of the estate was made up of cash, stocks, bonds, and other securities. Mrs. Parsons lived at 3414 Newark street, northwest.

Statuary Smashed, Youths Are Sought

New York, May 13 (AP).—Juvenile vandals were sought by police tonight as suspected wreckers of five pieces of statuary designed by George Gray Barnard as part of the huge World War memorial on which the noted sculptor has been laboring for 18 years.

Barnard discovered the vandalism Saturday when he went to the abandoned powerhouse he had selected as a studio because if its roominess, but did not make known his loss until today.

A marble statue called "The Refugee," which the aged sculptor valued at $10,000, had been pushed over and smashed to bits.

The other figures smashed or damaged all were full lsize plaster models, of which there were no duplicates. A 90-foot plaster model of "The Rainbow Arch," with 35 heroic figures, was not touched.

Senate Group Offers Drastic War Tax Scale

Bill Is Designed to Reduce Profits During Conflict; Cuts Small Incomes.

By the Associated Press.

A war-time tax bill intended to scale down profits during conflict to a point even below peace-time levels was turned over yesterday to the Senate Finance Committee by a sub-committee.

The drastic measure represented some modification of still more sweeping levies on war profits originally proposed by the Senate Munitions Committee.

Chairman Connally (Democrat), Texas, of the sub-committee, said of the new measure:

"While the bill does not take all profit from individuals and corporations—because the committee determined that it was impractical to do so if the successful prosecution of war was to be had—the bill does cut from the income of individuals and corporations all increased profits attributable to war and sets a very low basis of profit as compared with normal operations in time of peace."

90% on High Incomes.

The proposed rate structure would levy income taxes ranging up to 90 per cent of high incomes.

Personal income tax exemptions, under the measure, would be reduced to $1,600 for a married person and $800 for a single person, with a normal tax rate of 10 per cent. Exemptions for each dependent would be $250.

The surtax on net income would range up to 80 per cent on incomes over $50,000, while for corporations a top rate of 77 per cent would be assessed against retained net income of 23 per cent or more.

The bill would impose corporation taxes upon the basis of undistributed earnings—along lines of the pending general tax measure—and would lower exemptions from personal income taxes.

The munitions committee bill would have taken all individual profit above $10,000 and made a similar stiff levy, based on percentages, on corporate income.

To Insure War Success.

Besides taking the profit out of war, Connally said the bill was designed to insure the Government the "most effective conduct of industry in order to make successful the efforts of the Government in the prosecution to victory of any war" in which it may become involved.

"The substitute measure," Connally said, "carries into effect the sentiments expressed by the President when he said, 'The time has come to take the profit out of war.'

"The proposed act effectively and upon a practicable basis will accomplish the long and insistent demand of the American people that in time of national crisis or stress no citizen or corporation may be allowed, merely because of the existence of war, to reap enhanced and inordinate profits from the blood and sacrifices of those who fight the battles of the Republic."

Steel Workers Decide to Form Industrial Body

To Launch Drive; Vote Is 'Not a Lewis Victory,' Tighe Declares.

By the Associated Press.

Canonsburg, Pa., May 13.—The country's biggest steel union voted today to launch an organization drive in the steel industry under its own direction along the one-big-union plan advocated by John L. Lewis.

By a vote of 53 to 31, the convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers settled the long dispute over the question which found Lewis backing the industrial plan against the opposition of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. Green supported a plan of craft unions for the industry.

The Amalgamated's 78-year-old president, Michael F. Tighe, said after the convention adjourned that the vote should not be considered "a Lewis victory."

He declared the Amalgamated would push its unionization drive through a committee to be chosen by the organization and said the door was open for co-operation by both the Federation and Lewis' committee for industrial organization.

Tighe said, "The action means the Amalgamated is going to assume its rightful and proper position in the labor world, not subservient to anyone."

The veteran president said the convention did not act directly on either Lewis' plan, as submitted, or the federation plan of craft unions.

The resolution authorizing the drive made no mention of acceptance or rejection of $500,000 which Lewis' committee offered to finance a start for a unionization drive. Tighe said it would be accepted only if the Lewis committee agreed to go along with the campaign under the leadership of the Amalgamated.

The resolution stated:

"We seek the co-operation of all national and international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor."

Such co-operation, it added, would include:

"Any and all rights or claims of jurisdiction in the steel organization to be permanently waived in favor of the Amalgamated."

California Makes Bid For Summer Capitol

Santa Barbara, Calif., May 13 (AP).—Businessmen formed the White House of the Pacific Association today to support Representative John S. McGroarty (Democrat), of California, in his proposal to have the President establish a summer Capital on the Pacific Coast.

McGroarty has introduced a bill in the House calling on the President to spend at least two or three months each year in the Far West, with the State of California providing a site for a summer White House.

Bank Head Accepts Stuart Resignation

The resignation of Charles E. Stuart, vice president of the Export-Import Bank of Washington, tendered on Monday, was accepted yesterday by R. Walton Moore, chairman of the bank's board of trustees.

The resignation leaves the bank without president or vice president, it was noted, since George N. Peek, formerly an AAA chief, resigned the presidency some time ago.

Stuart's resignation takes effect May 31. He pleaded necessity to return to private business. Mr. Moore, in a letter made public last night, expressed regret.

Paper Reports Vallee To Wed Judy Stewart

New York, May 13 (U.P.).—Rudy Vallee will marry Judy Stewart, black-eyed former Broadway chorus girl, when his marriage to Fay Webb Vallee is dissolved by a divorce action now before California courts.

The Mirror said that Miss Stewart, who has been on friendly terms with the crooning orchestra leader since September, spent last weekend at Vallee's Maine camp, and tonight was en route with the singer to New York. The girl's mother said she "couldn't deny" that her daughter would be Vallee's third wife.

Inflation Bill Killed

continued, "and I have always been interested in all legislation which looked to their best interests, but as a Representative upon the floor of this House, pledged, not only to the farmers but to all classes, I cannot undertake to vote for a bill which makes a clear discrimination in favor of one class against other classes of our people in this country, and the people whom I represent neither want nor expect me to do so."

The Speaker's action in taking the floor and reading a letter from one outside the Government was largely responsible, Administration leaders indicated, for the reforming of opposition lines and the ultimate defeat of the bill.

Byrns Criticized.

Speaker Byrns was roundly criticized in some quarters for his action, and Green was accused of "impudence" for attempting to tell Congress how to vote on farm legislation.

The strategy of Administration leaders in yesterday's debate was based on attempts to split the farm and city vote—to picture the bill as discriminatory in favor of the farmers because it did not provide similar treatment and low interest rates for city home owners.

Time and again Administration speakers hammered away on this theme. They included, besides the Speaker, Chairman Marvin Jones (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, and Representative Hatton W. Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

Proponents of the Frazier-Lemke bill fought desperately to combat this strategy. They conceded several amendments of minor character in an attempt to eliminate arguments against the bill. Among the more important was one limiting the loans to 80 per cent of the appraised value of the farm loan instead of 100 per cent of the "fair value." Another amendment eliminated farm animals as a basis of value for making loans.

Representative Lemke (Republican), of North Dakota, author of the bill, offered an amendment to give the proposed currency issue a 20 per cent gold backing, similar to the usual Federal Reserve notes, but his amendment was overruled on a point of order made by Majority Leader Bankhead. Steadfastly, Lemke and his associates maintained that an amendment giving city home owners the same low interest rate as farmers could not be put into a farm bill.

Recalls Aesop's Fable.

Representative Jones, chairman of the Agriculture Committee that reported out the bill months ago with the recommendation that it pass, compared Frazier-Lemkeites to Aesop's dog with a bone, who, crossing a stream, saw his and the bone's reflection in the water and dropped the bone in trying to capture the shadow.

"If we are not careful," he said, "we may lose the farm benefits brought by this Administration in our attempt to reach for something more. Aesop's dog fable is just as true today as it was 2,000 years ago," he declared. "Only 30 per cent of the American people are farmers, and we've got to show a disposition to be fair to hold what we have."

He praised the farm mortgage activity of the Farm Credit Administration and twitted opponents of the Frazier-Lemke bill in their failure to give credit to the F. C. A. for saving thousands of farmers from eviction.

He accused Lemke of opposing the AAA substitute—the new "soil conservation" program and, turning to Lemke, he said:

"Are we going to take our philosophy from a man who apparently does not believe in the philosophy of this Administration?" Administration Democrats cheered him as he took his seat.

Representative C. G. Binderup (Democrat), of Nebraska, made the closing argument for the bill. Two pages brought in a large chart and, with a schoolroom pointer, Binderup proceeded to give a lecture on the operations of the Federal Reserve system and the Federal Land Bank system.

Waving a $10 bill in one hand, Binderup explained the way in which Al Capone, during prohibition, was able to put up commercial paper and within 48 hours obtain $1,000,000 in currency from the Federal Reserve Bank and the Treasury.

"We want you," he said, "to finance the farm homes of the Nation. Give the farmers the same chance Al Capone had."

Administration leaders countered with a "chalk talk" before a blackboard by Representative Samuel B. Pettengill (Democrat), of Indiana, but the House was tired and member listened inattentively.

Coughlin Assailed.

When the formal debate was concluded and the clerk began to read the bill for amendments under the five-minute rule, many members took occasion to attack Father Charles E. Coughlin, backer of the bill. Representative Emanuel Celler (Democrat), New York, accused Coughlin of attempting to "browbeat" Congress into voting for the measure.

Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), New York, offered an amendment to raise the interest rate embodied in the Frazier-Lemke act from 1½ per cent to 2¾ per cent, but it was defeated. He said he believed adoption of the lower interest rate "might tend to change our entire form of Government."

Chairman Jones offered an amendment to broaden the scope of the bill and to strike out all after the enacting clause so that a less drastic farm mortgage scheme could be substituted, but he was overruled on a point of order made by Representative Gerald Boileau (Progressive), Wisconsin.

As the clerk proceeded with the reading of the bill, House members became constantly more impatient, shouted down amendments, and made so much noise that is was impossible to hear speakers. Finally, at 5:15 p. m. the reading was completed, the bill was engrossed, the title was read a third time, and, at the demand of both sides of the House, a rollcall vote was ordered.

Thebaut-Lockwood Wedding Ceremony Set This Afternoon

Mrs. Chester Lockwood, whose engagement to Mr. Jules Mathieu de Rochefermoy Thebaut was announced recently, will be married this afternoon at 4:30 at St. Matthew's Church. A small reception at the Shoreham will follow the ceremony.

Mrs. Lockwood and her fiance were guests of honor at a cocktail party given yesterday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Crosby Boyd.

Katherine Snyder Wed to R. E. Shands

Ceremony Is Performed by Ze Barney Phillips.

Miss Katherine Conyngham Snyder, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Snyder, of McLean, Va., was married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon to Mr. Richard Eppes Shands, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Shands, of Washington. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. Ze Barney Phillips officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white silk marquisette with long sleeves and a slip trimmed with lace from her mother's wedding dress. Her tulle veil was held in place with a tiara of old rose point lace. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Her matron of honor and only attendant was her sister, Mrs. B. M. Coleman, who wore a gown of gray silk marquisette trimmed with large chartreuse flowers, a large natural colored straw hat trimmed with chartruse velvet ribbon. She carried a bouquet of mixed spring flowers.

The best man was Dr. Alfred Rives Shands, jr., of Duke University, N. C., brother of the bridegroom. For her going-away costume, the bride chose a navy blue and white tailored silk dress and a small navy blue hat. After a wedding trip of two weeks to Bermuda the young couple will reside in Washington.

California Society Plans Excursion

Moonlight Boat Ride Is Set for June 6.

Famous Doll Venerable Visitor To Old Gardens in Georgetown

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

One of the venerable visitors to the Georgetown gardens, open last Saturday and this, was Mehitabel Ann Powers, who sat for her picture with little Miss Miriam McLean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. McLean, and Mrs. R. F. Whitehead, of the Georgetown garden tour committee.

Mehitabel Ann knows old gardens. Her china blue eyes have looked on many of those famous in Virginia and she viewed those of Georgetown with an unchanged expression—the same she has always worn, for Mehitabel Ann is a doll.

She is approaching 100 years of age, but her hair is as black, her eyes are as blue and her cheeks as red as they were in her early youth. No one knows her exact age for no records were kept in those days, but Mehitabel Ann has been the beloved champion of little girls of the Towsey, Powers and Page families for several generations.

She now belongs to Miss Virginia Page, of Berryville, Va., who permitted her to come to Georgetown only for the garden tour. After her brief holiday she will be returned to her trunk to remain until another occasion important enough to warrant her gracing it by her pesence.

She had a new dress in which to pose for her picture. It was a blue and orange print, with which she wore new white stockings and new black velvet shoes. The shoes would have had little velvet ribbon bows, but the photographer arrived before they were added to the costume. Mrs. Whitehead was the designer responsible for her gown, stockings and shoes.

About 1850 Miss Elizabeth Smith, of Smithfield, Clarke County, Va., became the bride of Mr. Oliver Towsey, of Cincinnati. Across the mountains by stage coach and down the Ohio River by canal boat, went the young bride and bridegroom, accompanied by Becky, the little slave girl, who had to go too "because ef'n she didn't there wouldn't be nobody to fasten up Miss Lib's gowns."

A few years later, via the same route went Mehitabel Ann, to be the doll playmate of the oldest of the four little Towsey girls, each of whom owned her in turn. Then, when all the Towseys were too old for dolls, back came Mehitabel Ann, in a trunk full of outgrown Towsey dresses, to be played with by the four little Powers cousins in Virginia.

Miss Forester To Be Married

Will Become Bride of J. B. Crane Tomorrow Afternoon.

Miss Sara Virginia Forester, daughter of Mrs. Hampton Nicholas Forester, and the late Mr. Forester, of Sumter, S. C., will be married at 2 o'clock tomorrow to Mr. James Barton Crane, son of Dr. and Mrs. Barton Crane, of this city. The wedding will take place in the garden at the home of the bridegroom's parents. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. James Taylor, of Central Presbyterian Church.

Miss Irene Forester, the sister of the bride, will be her maid of honor, and the best man will be Mr. Paul Magee. Little Miss Joan Colladay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Colladay, will be the flower girl. The bride will be given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Hampton Nicholas Forester, jr., of Sumter.

Church Will Honor Dr. and Mrs. Bird Tomorrow Night

Members of the congregation of the Church of the Pilgrims will entertain tomorrow evening at a reception in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Reid Bird. The affair, which is to be in the church house, will be in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of Dr. Bird's pastorate.

Distinguished guests from the Capital and from out of town will attend the reception.

D. C. Pen Women Arrange Art Tea

The District of Columbia League of American Pen Women will entertain Sunday from 3 to 6 o'clock, at an art tea featuring the paintings of Louise Spain Brice. Miss Grace Sahm, chairman of the art group, will be hostess, assisted by Bess Heath Olmstead, president, and other members of her division.

Mrs. Brice was winner of a prize in the Pen Women's group at the art exhibit held recently at the National Museum. She is a graduate of the art department of the Woman's College of Alabama.

For three years she was in charge of the art work for Given & Given, Honolulu, later doing commercial art work in El Paso, Tex. She came to Washnigton last Summer.

Mrs. Lydia Van Hagen Will Present Review

Mrs. Lydia Van Hagan will present next to the last of her series of ten reviews, "World Events as Reflected in Current Literature," tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. in the supper club room at the Shoreham Hotel.

"The Living Jefferson" by James Truslow Adams, will be reviewed in detail.

"Arctic Adventure," by Peter Freuchen, and several new novels will be discussed briefly.

Announce Birth of Son.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sloane, of Warrenton, Va., announce the birth of a son on Monday at Doctors' Hospital, New York. The boy will be named George Ingalls Sloane, after Mrs. Sloane's father, the late George Ingalls.

For Love or Money

By Rob Eden

Brenda Fayre is 22, pretty and distraught. She has agreed to work for Walter Jason, "promoter" and salesman of gold mining stock. Although Brenda does not like the sound of her work—which is to be companion for Walter and, on occasion, to accept invitations from his prospective customers—she takes the job because she must have money to support her invalid sister, Lally.

Lally can move only in a wheel chair but, despite her handicap, she does most of the housekeeping for herself and Brenda. She is entirely dependent on her sister, except for company. For company she has Peter, a canary; her balcony garden and thoughts of the young man in the apartment above, Val Sargent, who—she knows—is writing a novel.

Chapter Three.

SHE CAUGHT the sound clicking typewriter keys through the noise of the evening traffic and the loud jangle of the dinner hour. Turning her eyes up to the floor of the balcony upstairs, which was the top floor of the Corwin, she smiled.

Peter chirped, and his chirp

sounded exactly like the clatter of the keys upstairs.

Little Things.

As if she would forget! Even Peter's answer was indignant, for he knew his mistress very well. The very first thing that Lally would tell Brenda when Brenda got into the house and her hat off and her bundles down, was that when she had been working in the garden around noon, the man who occupied No. 619 upstairs had passed below on the street and had gaily waved his hand. Val Sargent was his name. Lally and Brenda had known his name for two months, almost as soon as it appeared on his mail box, which was above theirs. For two months they had heard his typewriter at odd hours day and night, but only in the past week had they identified him, although neither of them knew him.

It was the little things that happened during the day, when Brenda was gone, that made Lally's life exciting. Little things such as the telephone next door ringing, their own door bell ringing, a visit from the manager, the woman across the street replacing her brown draperies with cretonne curtains, and Mr. Val Sargent waving from the sidewalk.

Felt Out of Place.

Half an hour later, when Brenda was home, Lally was calling excitedly to Peter. "Did you hear that, Peter? Did you? Did you hear Brenda say that she was going to get $50 a week? We'll be rich, Peter! That's as much as Roger got! Isn't that marvelous!"

Brenda had nothing to say about the clothes. Her opinion wasn't even asked. She sat quietly while Miss Rush and Walter and the saleswoman commented on this garment and on that. When she was asked, she got up obediently, went into the dressing room with the saleswoman and tried on a dress or a suit.

When she appeared wearing it, Walter and Miss Rush would look at her critically, then look at each other. If they liked the garment, it was put on a table beside Miss Rush.

In the modernistic dressing room lined with mirrors and furnished with a pale green, heavy piled velvet chair and a slim chromium table, Brenda's black dress hung forlornly on a hanger. It was out of place and she knew it. She felt out of place, too, in her cheap rayon slip. The saleswoman with her crisp, short manner frightened her.

Price Tags High.

So did the price tags on the clothes which she was trying on. One hundred and ten dollars for this plain gray flannel suit—with a blouse. Ninety-five dollars for that simple dress which lay on the table outside the dressing room, navy blue crepe with a tiny childish collar of white pique. One hundred and sixty-five dollars for that black chiffon dinner dress farther down on the pile—unadorned even by a clip.

There were other things on the table, too. A black dull leather handbag with $10 on its price tag, a navy blue bag costing $12, a fine little black moire evening bag to go with the black chiffon dress, the clasp of fine seed pearls, $20. Three or four pairs of shoes, size 4-B, which was Brenda's size; dull black kid oxfords for the gray suit, navy blue pumps for the blue dress and slender sandals with fine straps for the chiffon dress. These had almost flat heels and would cost Mr. Jason $22.50.

There was a big, circular cape of soft, black velvet with a hood that came up over Brenda's hair. One hundred and fifty dollars and she could wrap it around her slim body almost twice. It was lined in white heavy satin and the satin was to be monogrammed in black near the hem with her initials.

So Expensive.

There were hose, so sheer they looked like cobwebs. Three or four hats, one a model which was priced at $35, and which was to go with the gray suit, a fine-grained felt hat, the brim bound with narrow black grosgrain ribbon. There was a batiste blouse, all tucked by hand. This was $40.

Walter and Miss Rush didn't once look at a price tag. They looked first at the things as the saleswoman brought them from hidden racks, then they picked out what they wanted Brenda to try on, and then they studied the clothes when they were on her. If they were suitable, they were placed on the table.

"It won't do, Ethel," Walter would say when Brenda was in front of them, modeling. "It looked all right before, but on her—it's terrible."

And the girl would go back to the dressing room with the saleswoman and wonder what was wrong with the dress, because she thought it was all right.

Sometimes Miss Rush would make the comment, instead of Walter. "Wrong color for her hair, Walter. "We'll have to watch that hair. It's gaudy with some colors. Better stick to blacks and grays."

Older Than Brenda.

Brenda didn't like Miss Rush and her brisk ways. She didn't like the way Miss Rush looked at her, her lower lip thrust out a little and her eyes narrowed.

"Miss Rush, whom I call my secretary, but who is really my partner," Walter had introduced them before they left the office to outfit Brenda.

Miss Rush had acknowledged the introduction with a swift nod of her head, and announced that she was ready with her list. Walter and Miss Rush discussed the list in the tonneau of his chauffeur-driven car on the way to the shop and the girl was completely ignored.

Ethel Rush was older than Walter. Brenda thought she must be 40. Her hair, which was almost jet black, didn't give her age away, but her face did. Although it was perfectly cared for, almost too well cared for, the skin was beginning to show a little flabbiness, and there were many fine wrinkles under the small dark eyes, and deeper lines that ran from her thin nose to her mouth.

Miss Rush was not a pretty woman, but she was attractive, well preserved, rather thin. Her black dress was severely, but beautifully, cut; her black straw hat was business-like, becoming, and the furs she carried were sables, fine soft skins. The cigarettes she smoked she took from a platinum case, initialed "E. R." in small gold letters.

It was with such ease that she settled the question of the clothes that Brenda didn't want Lally to know about, and the job that Lally wasn't to know everything about, either.

You'll keep your things in my apartment and use one of my rooms as a dressing room. You'll come in every morning at 10 and get your calls there. My maid will help you dress. If there's nothing for you to do you can remain there or go, as you please. You'll have a phone in your flat, however, through which we can reach you when you aren't at my apartment. Your sister will understand that, won't she?"

"Yes," Brenda said. "She'll understand that and she'll take messages for me."

In the smart gown shop Brenda modeled clothes for two hours. Then there was another hour of standing for alterations while the garments were being fitted. She was tired when she was finished and into her own black dress again. Miss Rush was tired, too. There were puffy circles under here eyes and more lines in her face. She looked over 40. Walter, though, was fresh and cheerful as he made out a check for $1,600 and handed it to the saleswoman. Brenda saw the check and heard the saleswoman's gracious words of thanks.

Sixteen hundred dollars for two dinner dresses, one suit, two street dresses, four hats, one wrap, four pairs of gloves, three bags, a blouse, four pairs of shoes and a dozen pairs of hose! Sixteen hundred dollars!

"A nice wardrobe, Walter," Ethel commented casually as they left the shop.

Both Women Silent.

Jason left them outside the shop, and Miss Rush and Brendo used the car to return to the Tower Building. On the way, neither of them said anything. It was only when they were in Miss Rush's private office later that Walter's secretary and partner spoke. Her voice had taken on some sharpness and her nose seemed thinner.

"You'll be with us six months, Brenda," she said as she took off her hat and laid it on a table. "After that all, we have an investment in you—the outfits that were bought for you today. So, it's no more than fair that you sign an agreement positively to remain with us for six months. We agree to keep you six months, pay you $50 a week and commissions and you agree to remain six months. We have contracts with everybody who works for us."

Signs Contract.

She took a sheet of paper from the top drawer of her desk. It was a company letterhead, and typewritten in the middle of the white sheet were the words: "I, Brenda Fayre, agree to remain with the Jason Enterprises for the term of six months."

Brenda read the words once, then twice, and it seemed to her that the simple sentence became more complex as she looked at it. It seemed that there were other words not written on that paper, but which she saw plainly behind the ones that were there. To her the contract read, "I, Brenda Fayre, knowing that Walter Jason and Ethel Rush are crooks, and perhaps thieves, and that what they are doing is outside the law, have decided to become one of them, and will be one of them to the best of my ability for the term of six months."

So those were the words that were swimming before her eyes as she took the fountain pen Miss Rush handed her, and quickly signed her name on the paper, and in her brain were singing those same words when she saw her name in black ink on the paper.

Brain in a Whirl.

Her brain was still whirling with them as Ethel Rush took the paper, folded it quickly, walked over to one of the filing cabinets and put it away.

"There's nothing for you to do today," she said when she came back to the desk and sat down in her own chair, "but I would like to have you get familiar with the offices and the staff. Grace Ivar, the girl we passed in the reception room, will take care of you. Jus tell her I want her to show you around."

Brenda rose and went to the door. There was a question she wanted to ask, but Miss Rush's head already was bowed over some papers, and she was scratching same notes on the margin, so the girl went out quickly.

Real Capitolian Greets Feminine Guests to City

By Hope Ridings Miller.

IT MAY BE MONTHS—even years—before a feminine newcomer to the Capital City sees another "real Washingtonian," but she will meet one right off, if she goes to the Y. W. C. A. to inquire about available rooms here.

Virginia Carter Wingfield, born in Washington, is Rooms Registry Secretary at the "Y". Has been, for the last three years. Knows all there is to know about living quarters for transients and permanent guests. She spends a number of hours each day interviewing women—not only those who want a place to live, but housekeepers with rooms to rent. Her experiences along this line have given her a slant on the local housing problem that few native Washingtonians ever have.

She watches convention calendars as closely as the proverbial merchant, she said, "because when any woman's organization—such as the D. A. R.—is having its annual get-together here, we are swamped with applicants for rooms. April is generally a big month with us. May and June also usually bring a large quota of visitors to our door; but so far, we haven't had so many this month. We're having a chance now to rest up from April."

Problem Acute.

One of the most acute housing problems ever arising at the Y. W. C. A. headquarters came Easter week-end, according to Miss Wingfield. "Both our residences—the one on E street and the Elizabeth Somers place on M street—were packed," she explained. "And when I tell you we called 88 houses on file (that is, houses listed with us and investigated by us) to find a place for four women, you can realize how crowded the entire town was. Well, on top of all that, one night after 12 p. m. 13 women arrived here at administration headquarters (where we have no bedrooms) to get rooms for the night. Later, a woman who had walked from 11 p. m. until 2 a. m. looking for a place to sleep came in; and still later—at 4 a. m. to be exact—two girls arrived from Brooklyn by bus!

"What did we do? We took care of them—on some emergency cots set up for the night, I remembered the April before, when we were confronted with similar problems."

Feminine newcomers flock to the "Y" from all parts of the United States and from other countries as well, she said. "Recently we had two guests from London. After trying the hotels without success in obtaining rooms, they came to us, very much surprised to find Washington so crowded. They had expected to obtain hotel accommodations without any difficulty."

Long Letter.

Miss Wingfield told of a letter recently received from four women who wanted to visit Washington on little money. They asked 25 questions, regarding the cost of meals, rooms and amusements; and wanted to know where the Y. W. C. A. is—if within "easy walking distance" of the Congressional Library, the Capitol and the Lincoln Memorial. Their final request was for a sample menu of meals to be had at the "Y." Miss Wingfield's letter in reply filled three pages, answering each question in full, and carried with it folders supplying all information desired.

Of all the women who cause Miss Wingfield headaches, however, are those who come to Washington on a visit bringing their pets—a cat, a dog or a canary bird—with them. "No housekeeper wants a hound occupying one of her rooms, even for a night. Or a cat, either. So the outcome is generally that the woman has to be parted from her pet, which becomes a paying guest at some animal hospital here."

Special Committee.

Despite complications entailed by pets and by haste in placing visitors, the problem of caring for transients is less difficult than finding suitable permanent rooms for applicants, Miss Wingfield averred. "We have a special rooms registry committee, headed by Mrs. Frank Ballou, to investigate all rooms offered for our list," she said. "Added to that, we interview each housekeeper. We make a special effort to find a suitable, comfortable place for the younger woman, whose entire outlook on Washington will be somewhat colored by her living quarters."

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

What Are Fistulae?

There are a number of pipes or ducts in the body that are provided for special purposes. One of these tubes (the trachea) leads downward from the throat, connects with the bronchi, and carries air to and from the lungs. Another (the esophagus or gullet)—approximately nine inches in length—dispatches food and fluids into the stomach. Shorter ducts pass saliva from the glands into the mouth. Two very important tubes are the ureters, along which urine travels to the bladder.

All in all, there are scores of ducts and tubes—a veritable system of plumbing via which the house (the body) is supplied with needed fluids (secretions), or enabled to rid itself of waste products.

Sometimes, because of disease, canals will be created that are not a part of nature's design, just as a stream at flood tide may plow a new channel. Each is called a fistula, from a Latin word meaning "a pipe," and there are many places in which these connections can be produced. Occasionally a passageway will develop between the stomach and the colon as the result of an ulcer or an injury. Now and then a gallstone will perforate through the gall bladder and bring about an opening to the outside of the body or join the gall bladder with the stomach. Not infrequently a fistula will arise from an abscess in the lung, ulcerating through to the chest wall.

Commonest Type.

One of the most common and stubborn of all these artificial canals is known as a rectal fistula. This starts somewhere in the lower portion of the bowel and appears on the skin of the buttocks as a raised, firm swelling that is painful and inflamed. The condition may first be mistaken for a boil. Sooner or later the abscess will open and drain. The beginning of the affair lies back in the rectum, where infection finds lodgment, inflammation is set up, and the pus there formed starts burrowing, seeking an outlet. The contents of the abscess are prevented from emptying into the rectum itself because inflammation has closed the initial site of the infection. From the puncture in the skin the sinus, on careful investigation, will be found to course upward to a point close to or into the rectum. After discharging for a time the external wound usually heals, only to break out again in the same or an adjacent area. The remedy lies in surgical removal of the entire tract up to the point of origin.

Fistulae frequently develop from tuberculous foci in the bone. Pus from the spine, the hip joint, the shoulder joint and many other locations will burrow along lines of least resistance. Sometimes it is difficult to trace the source of a pus discharging sinus, and a few years ago the injection of bismuth paste was advocated. An X-ray film was then made and the extent and the tortuous nature of these drainage canals was thus disclosed.

A distressing type of fistula is that which occurs as a result of childbirth, in which pressure causes a loss of tissue between the bladder and the birth canal. This situation has been recognized for centuries, but there appeared to be no remedy, even in surgery, until the ingenuity of J. Marian Sims, then of Montgomery, Ala., devised the silver wire suture which insured healing. It was Sims' success with this operation and his removal to New York City that inspired the founding of the Woman's Hospital.

Modern surgery, however, has pointed the way to the conquest of most of these abnormal channels. In other words, good engineering on the part of surgeons has located the sources of infection and the best plan for obliteration of the ducts.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

One Who Manifests Objective Insight Into His Own Mental Problem May Dismiss Fear of Losing Mind.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Since you seem to help others in so many ways, I would appreciate it if you would give me the name of a psychologist who would charge very little for his or her services. I really don't know if I am having twinges of conscience over my wrongdoings (if they are wrongdoings; I am sure I don't know what is right or wrong any more) but I do know if I keep on thinking in circles as I have been doing that I shall go mad.

• • • •

Then I wish there were some way for me to make friends with nice boys and girls of my own age. I am 20 years old. Girls don't like me very much for some reason, but I seem to have great appeal for older men and boys. When I go out with them they insist on frequenting cocktail bars and in drinking, and while I don't care for things like that, once I am there I go rather haywire.

• • • •

Habit is hard to break, but I know if I could become interested in athletics and other wholesome sports and diversions I could forget about myself, my twinges of conscience and everything else. Anything you can suggest will be appreciated. At the rate I have been going, I change boy friends about every two weeks. Thank you. R.

A Source of Help.

DEAR R.: Why don't you talk over your problem with Miss Beulah Smith, director of the Washington Life Adjustment Center, 1464 Columbia road northwest, telephone ADams 1033? It may be that Miss Smith, who is herself a psychiatric social worker, can put your mind at rest and solve your problem for you with a little kindly sympathetic counsel. If she finds the problem requires more detailed and scientific consideration that she is prepared to give, she will put you in contact with the proper source of help, and I am sure the matter of fees can be satisfactorily arranged. For persons unable to pay, the Life Adjustment Center provides free service. Others are directed to private practitioners. Problems similar to yours are all in the day's work of the Center, so you need feel so hesitancy about unburdening your conscience entirely. In Re Misunderstood Men.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I take issue with the letter from "R. V." published in your column of May 9, in which the writer sided with "Sphinx," who had previously stated his inability to "see anything especially wrong or unfair in (a man's) seeing a lot of one girl, even if marriage isn't in the picture . . ." It is very apparent that "R. V." is an arrogant male with no sisters, and a male who is feeling very sorry for himself for some reason or other.

• • • •

No doubt there are women so selfish and spoiled that they deliberately collect scalps for the sport of it, but surely such women are easily recognizable for what they are, and in these days in Washington at least they are very much in the minority. It is a well-known fact that eligible men are few and far between in this part of the country and that attractive marriageable women outnumber men five or seven to one. Men in this vicinity do not wish to tie themselves down to marriage with one woman, for fear some snappier number may come along. Once married, it might be inconvenient for them to break away in the direction of the newest attraction, so they prefer to stay free.

• • • •

Yet these wary males feel themselves legitimately entitled to take up the time of the girl who happens to appeal to them most at the moment, and most of them have no scruples about implying to the girl that she is being courted with serious intent, so that they in turn may be treated as the "one and only man" in the girl's life. This set-up lasts as long as the man is enjoying himself.

• • • •

Loneliness is a dreadful thing, and many girls would rather feed on the crumbs of some man's company than spend all her evenings by herself. Personally, I would rather read a good book.

Every man seems to believe that, since the ratio of women to men is seven to one, he is entitled to his full quota, and so he sets about enjoying the society of at least that many. Taking them in turn, he gives each one her "break" so long as she is the most interesting woman on his immediate horizon. But let a more attractive woman cross his path and he promptly ups and leaves, letting her predecessor hold the bag.

• • • •

Another thing I have observed: This city is overrun with "misunderstood husbands," men who have been hurt and who, consequently, are separated or divorced from their wives. I have seen too many cases of blubbering males seeking out nice respectable girls to tell their troubles to; telling these girls they wish they might have met them before they were married, "because things would have been so different then;" monopolizing their time and talking of marriage to them, but nevertheless keeping warily clear of any definite entaglements, because they "do not wish to be hurt again."

• • • •

There is no denying that a second marriage should be considered long and seriously, if it is to follow upon a first unhappy marriage which led to separation and divorce, but I object to men using such argument as a self-defensive "line" which permits them to spend their time in pleasant gullible company while mopping up sympathy and keeping one eye peeled for a fairer companion on the horizon with whom to start all over again their little drama of sorrowfully seeking understanding. Sincerely, NOT SO OLD.

Tongue in Cheek.

DEAR NOT SO OLD: I have no doubt both "Sphinx" and "R. V." had their tongues in their cheeks somewhat when they penned their respective stands on the subject here discussed. While speaking from a certain amount of serious conviction, yet I am inclined to suspect there was an element of deliberate provocativeness, of smiling irony, underlying their statements of opinion. Let us not, therefore, take their pronouncements too seriously.

However, your comment is interesting and intelligent and tells a deal of not-very-flattering truth about men. M. H.

F. C. Thompson Indicted; Books Short $14,000

He Was Cashier 14 Years; Grand Jury Returns 33 True Bills.

Frederick C. Thompson, for more than 14 years cashier of the Washington office of the Railway Express Agency, was indicted by the District grand jury yesterday on a charge of embezzling $9,680.11. A shortage of more than $14,000 was indicated on the company's books, witnesses informed the grand jury.

Thompson, 52 years old, left the city last January 28, leaving a note in which he allegedly stated he had been taking money from the company. Two days later he returned to the city with the avowed purpose of "facing the music."

Through Attorney Joseph D. Kelly, Thompson got in touch with company officers and told them he had discovered a shortage of $8,000 in 1925, a shortage he denied was his own. In a desperate effort to recoup this, he said, he took other monies and bet on the races in the hope of winning enough to repay the loss. He proved a poor "guesser," according to his own story, and his losses soon exceeded the amount of the original shortage.

Yesterday the grand jury returned 33 indictments. In one, the jurors charged Charles Thornton (Doc) Bean, alias Charles Ash, with the cleverly executed robbery of $24,000 from the Woodridge-Langdon Bank in 1932. A second member of the gang that executed the affair, police said, was Eddie Dee, who was killed in an attempt to rob an armored truck in Philadelphia last summer.

Other indictments yesterday accused Marie Harris, Josephine H. Fields, Robert Sears, and James Washington, all colored, with first degree murder. The Harris woman allegedly shot and killed James Wilson, also colored. Josephine Fields is alleged to have fatally stabbed Otis Norton, colored. Sears and Washington are accused of shooting William Dansby, colored, in a craps game.

Those indicted were Russell H. Carley, nonsupport; Stanley G. Gray, William N. Watson and Charles Lee Pattin, joyriding; Leona Godsey, Clara Henson, James M. Mills, Florence Brown and James H. Pleasant, housebreaking; Medicus Robinson, receiving stolen property; Herbert J. Harmatz, William M. Harmatz and James C. Smith, grand larceny.

James C. Smith, false pretenses; Sylvester Johnson, James Caruso, Nathaniel Palmer, Alexander Lewis, Thomas Logan, Isaac Lee, James Dean, James E. Brown, Eugene J. Veney, Standard T. Hawkins, Charles T. Bean and James P. Martell, robbery; Walter Banks, assault with a dangerous weapon; John Leek, Ellis Wright and Albert Anderson, violation of the liquor taxing act of 1934.

Robert Wells, violation of section 194, United States Penal Code; Louis Beeman, embezzlement; Frederick C. Thompson, embezzlement; Henry T. Wier, violation of section 851-b, D. C. Code; Earnest Johnson and Thomas W. Bradley, violation of section 73, title 18, U. S. Code; Oscar C. Kirby, Hazel V. Swink and Erwin E. Loeffler, violation of section 338a, title 18, U. S. Code; James Stedman, second degree murder; Robert Sears, James Washington, Josephine H. Fields and Marie Harris, first degree murder.

Those against whom the grand jury ignored charges were Herman Nicholson, assault with a dangerous weapon, and Mortie Kennedy, robbery.

Mechanical Man Will Explain Machines at Texas Centennial

By the Associated Press.

The Labor Department has ordered a seven-foot mechanical man to make a four-minute speech on men and machines.

Thought up by Miss M. A. Klein, in charge of the department's exhibits, the cog-toed mechanical man is nearing completion in a Pittsburgh factory, where more than 500 gadgets have been placed in his innards.

His ghost-writer, Verne A. Zimmer, division of Labor Standards, is going up there tomorrow to hear him speak his piece before being shipped to the Texas Centennial as part of the department's exhibit.

The man's eyes light up as he starts to speak. His lips move. He points out the advantages and disadvantages of machines in industry insofar as the effect on labor is concerned.

To his left, he explains, with another oratorical gesture, is a second revolving device—showing what the machine has done to take drudgery out of office, factory, and home; to provide cheap and more rapid communication; to spread knowledge; to provide more efficiency in business; even to safeguard the public from being killed by trains.

The synchronization is all done by a recording device, a cylinder like a thick pancake on which one little indentation starts the whole mechanism moving. After talking four minutes, he keeps still for fifteen minutes—then starts talking again, presumably to a new crowd of listeners.

Riots Mar Session Of Spanish Cabinet

Madrid, May 13 (AP).—Scattered disorders were reported in Spain tonight as Premier Santiago Casares Quiroga's new cabinet held its first session.

One man was killed at Vigo in a disturbance which started when a carpenter refused to join a strike and took refuge in a house. His fellow-workers surrounded the place and in the subsequent confusion a passerby was wounded fatally.

The cabinet agreed to summon the Cortes (parliament) into session Tuesday, when the ministerial program for fulfillment of the Popular Front pledges is to be presented.

Other disorders were reported in the eastern province of Teruel, where farm workers began a general strike. The governor of Valencia Province received reports of the burning of 12 churches and religious buildings.

Youth Arrested After Shooting At Policeman

Posed as CCCWorker Seeking Food; Seized in Rock Creek Park.

A youth who posed as a CCC worker was under arrest yesterday because he fired a pistol at a policeman who had been summoned to investigate his presence by Mrs. Lillian Davis, 4807 Colorado avenue northwest.

Mrs. Davis, who is the wife of Dr. David Davis, well-known Washington physician, told police she was working in her garden when he approached and asked for something to eat, explaining he was hitchhiking to a nearby CCC camp.

The woman said she told the youth to go into the house and ask the maid for food. She said she became suspicious a moment later when it occurred to her that CCC employes are furnished railroad fare. She could not find the man when she went into the house. Becoming frightened, she called the police.

Policeman G. W. Cook, of the Sixth Precinct, said he saw a young man run from the Davis home as he arrived. The youth, running toward Rock Creek Park, fired one shot at him, Cook stated, and he returned the fire, Cook said. Cook shot at the fleeing figure four times.

After an hour's search Park Policemen S. J. Kitchen and W. J. Hammond arrested a man in the underbrush whose trousers matched that of a brown checked coat left behind in the flight. He was identified by Cook and Mrs. Davis.

At the Sixth Precinct, where he is being held for investigation, the youth said he is Roy Oden, 20, of Bethesda, Md.

200 Hitler Bodyguards Jailed in Revolt Plot

London (Thursday), May 14 (U.P.). The London Daily Herald, in an undated dispatch published today, reports that more than 200 members of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's personal bodyguards were arrested and placed in concentration camps during recent weeks, suspected of plotting against Hitler and the Nazi state.

Heinrich Himmler, head of the Storm Troops, was charged with interrogating the prisoners, the Herald said, adding that he himself is being shadowed constantly by the Gestap, Nazi secret police.

In the Bond

House Won't Reimburse Stolen D. C. Funds.

Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, and Maj. J. R. Lusby, District disbursing officer, will have to spend uneasy hours over the threat of having to make good $3,299.90, it appeared yesterday.

The House District Committee refused to report favorably a bill authorizing the General Accounting Office to allow credit for that amount to wipe out a deficit created by an embezzlement by Joseph W. Frenzel, one-time head of the District audit division.

Both Donovan and Lusby pleaded for the bill, explaining that they might be held liable in case of a suit against their bonds, but Representative Ellenbogen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, objected that approval of the bill would establish "an undesirable precedent." Frenzel served an 18-month sentence on the embezzlement charge 9 years ago and subsequently committed suicide after completing his term.

Yarnell Named Head of Navy's Asiatic Fleet

Replaces Admiral Murfin, Who Assumes Pearl Harbor Command.

Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell will relieve Admiral Orin G. Murfin as commander-in-chief of the Asiatic Fleet about October 1, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

Admiral Yarnell's present post as commandant of the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard will be assumed by Admiral Murfin.

The appointment of Lieut. Harold M. Sylvester as assistant public works officer at the Anacostia Naval Air Station has also been approved by the Navy Department, it was learned.

While in his new command, Admiral Yarnell will be designated a full admiral. Admiral Murfin, in turn, will resume his permanent rank as rear admiral when he takes over the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard.

Born in Iowa.

Born in Independence, Iowa, in 1875, Admiral Yarnell was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1892 and to the Naval War College in 1913. At the outbreak of the World War he was in command of the U. S. S. Nashville, and from December, 1917, to August, 1918, served as aid on the staff of the Commander of the United States Naval Forces in European waters.

For his service during the war he was awarded the Navy Cross, made the Companion of the Order of the British Empire and awarded the diploma of the Grant of Dignity of the British Empire.

For two years after the war he served in the office of naval operations, then assumed command of destroyer flotilla 1 and destroyer flotilla 9, squadron 1 of the Atlantic fleet. He became commander of destroyer squadron 1 in 1921. On subsequent assignments he served as chief of staff, commander destroyer squadrons of the Atlantic fleet, as commandant of the Hampton Road (Va.) Naval Air Station, in command of the aircraft squadrons of the scouting fleet and as engineer-in-chief and chief of the Bureau of Engineering.

In 1930 he served as naval adviser at the London Treaty conference.

A year younger than Admiral Yarnell, Admiral Murfin was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1897. During the war he was in charge of the United States mine bases in Scotland, receiving the Distinguished Service Medal for his work.

In 1925 he studied at the Naval War College, the following year being assigned to the office of naval operations. He served as assistant chief of the Bureau of Navigation in 1927 and in 1928 was ordered to command the battleship West Virginia.

Subsequently he was assigned as commander train squadron 1 of the fleet base force, commander of cruiser division 3, scouting force; judge advocate general and commander of battle ship division 3 of the battle force.

District Is Second In Municipal Costs

Washington was the most expensive city to govern of any city between 300,000 and 500,000, with the exception of Rochester, N. Y., in 1934, Census Bureau figures revealed yesterday. The cost here was $71.37 per capita, as compared with $87 in Rochester.

During that year Washington paid no interest on its public debts, but this was balanced by the fact that Washington did not profit, as did other cities, from distribution of county funds or civil subdivisions. The total cost was $40,925,537.

Expenses of the Washington government were almost triple the total in Indianapolis, Houston, Louisville and Portland, Oreg.

Of this expenditure, operation and maintenance of general departments cost $34,424,841, and operation of public service enterprises, including the water department, cost $902,105.

Brundage, jr., official of the Washington Gas Light Co.; secretary, Randy Myers, Y. M. C. A. official; treasurer, Vergne Potter, proprietor of the West End Laundry; lion tamer, William Leach; tail twister, John Tunis.

These new directors were named: Chester Caywood, John Waters, Bert Piers and Hugh Kaiser.

Meeting Is Told Of Art's Effects In Boiler Room

Minnesota University Dean Speaks; F. A. Whiting Makes Talk.

How art met a test of practicality and emerged successful was told yesterday at the meeting of the American Federation of Arts by Dean Melvin M. Haggerty of the Minnesota University School of Education.

The question came in a telephone call to the school's art department from the municipal power plant at Owatonna, Minn., asking for guidance in the painting of the plant's boiler room.

Such advice was given, Dean Haggerty said, with the result: "An attractive workroom with a red floor, walls green below and cream above and silver-faced boilers."

"This incident may seem trivial and amusing," said the dean. "In Owatonna we do not think so. We believe that art springs from just such problems."

F. A. Whiting, president of the federation, in discussing "American Resources in Art" said realization that the ultimate resources of art in America can only be the American people and their way of living is imperative.

"If we want art in the broad sense of the word, we must make the average American living more worthy and beautiful," Whiting said.

Mrs. Brown Dies; Washington Native

Mrs. Margaret McGinness Brown, 75, died yesterday in Providence Hospital slightly more than a month after her husband, Walter P. Brown, was struck and killed by a street car as he was leaving the hospital where he visited her.

Funeral services will be held Friday from St. Gabriel's Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

District Bloc Committed To Roosevelt

Opposition Fails to File for Philadelphia Representation.

Capital Group's 6 Votes All for President, Says Colpoys.

All six District votes will be cast for President Roosevelt at the Democratic National Convention at Philadelphia as no opposition delegates filed yesterday.

John P. Colpoys, United States marshal and local State central committee chairman of his party, announced all of the 17 convention delegation candidates were committed to the President.

Col. Henry Breckinridge, New York lawyer who opposed Mr. Roosevelt in the recent Maryland primary and was overwhelmingly defeated, apparently made no effort to have any of his friends announced as prospective delegates before the dead line expired last night.

"It's going to be a Roosevelt delegation from top to bottom," Colpoys declared. "It's a good representative list of real Washington residents, too."

Roper Heads List.

Secretary Daniel C. Roper, long a District resident, headed the list of convention delegation candidates. Others who announced included:

George E. Allen, District Commissioner; Robert W. Woolley, lawyer and former Interstate Commerce Commission member under President Wilson; Mr. Colpoys, Mrs. Evelyn C. Condon, Women's Democratic National Council president; Leslie C. Garnett, United States Attorney; Malcolm S. McConihe, realtor and builder; John Walsh, Robert Scott, Melvin Hildreth and Joseph Cotter, lawyers; Miss Mae Helm, assistant Corporation Counsel; Arthur Clarendon Smith, business man; George P. Marshall, laundry owner; Watson Miller, American Legion leader; James Beyer, retired carpenter and State central committee member for half a century, and Walter Bramhall, young Democratic leader.

Colpoys predicted some plan would be worked out before the primary under which all 17 candidates could be elected as either delegates or alternates. In the past the practice has been for the District to have 12 delegates with half a vote each.

All Paid Fee.

"All of these men and women," he said, "paid the $200 entrance fee and we hope everyone of them will be sent to the convention with us so we can help to make Philadelphia Democratic."

Indications were the delegation would not be formally instructed for any candidate for national office, but would be required to vote as a unit on all issues, the majority vote within the delegation deciding how the six votes should be cast in each test.

Mr. McConihe was assured of election as national committeeman when no one entered the field against him. He will succeed John F. Costello, who declined to run for re-election.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman will be unopposed for re-election as national committeewoman.

The primary slate also will include candidates for the 22 posts on the State central committee. There probably will be no competition for the jobs.

Yesterday Maj. Joseph Fegan, of the Marine Corps, announced that Edmund S. Lowe, whose portrayal of Sergt. Quirt in "What Price Glory" brought him screen fame, has been appointed a captain in the volunteer Marine Reserves.

The appointment places Lowe on an equal footing with all Marine captains — particularly with one named Flagg.

Puts Himself in Sweatshop for Art's Sake

Biddle Paints Self Running Sweatshop Sewing Machine

Panel at Justice Building to Carry Faithful Likeness of Philadelphia Artist; Friends Depicted in Other Panels of Mural.

For the sake of art, George Biddle, of the wealthy and socially prominent Philadelphia Biddles, has placed himself in a sweatshop for posterity to see.

This became known yesterday when the famous American painter was discovered applying the finishing touches to a self-portrait in the sweatshop panel of an elaborate mural he is executing in the Department of Justice building.

"Isn't that a likeness of yourself, the fellow with the sad expression at the sewing machine," Biddle was asked.

"Why, yes, it is," he replied promptly.

Further questioning brought out that the standing figure behind Biddle was Stuart Chase, economist and author of "A New Deal" and other books, and the golden haired woman alongside Chase was his wife.

In the same group are a little undernourished girl and two old ladies. But they were drawn from imagination, not real life, the artist declared.

Likeness Faithful.

Biddle's mustache, dour look, thinning hair and ascetic appearance in general are faithfully reproduced in the panel, which is one of five he is painting on the fifth floor of the Justice building.

The mural is entitled, "The sweatshop and tenement of yesterday can be the life ordered with justice of tomorrow." The three center panels, which are finished, depict the "justice of tomorrow." On either side will be the sweatshop and tenement panels, the latter yet to be started.

In the happy genre groups may be recognized Francis B. Biddle, the artist's brother, who formerly was chairman of the National Labor Relations Board; Edward B. Rowan, chief of the Treasury's painting and sculpture section; Malcolm Ross, publicity director of the NLRB, and Mrs. Ross, and other friends and neighbors of the muralist.

Harvard Schoolmates.

He and Chase were companions at Harvard University a little more than a quarter century ago.

"There is no special significance to be read into using my friends for models," said Biddle. "This is commonly done by artists. When I find a friend whose face seems to fit into some picture I have in mind, I ask him to pose for me.

"That's a much more practical plan than trying to find a professional model to fit every character. Some of my characters, of course, are drawn from my imagination."

Auto Workers In 4th Plant Join in Strike

Union Now Claims Several Scores Out; Employers Vote Open Shop.

Mechanics in a fourth automobile agency walked out yesterday and increased to several more the number of garage employes on strike here.

Resolutions calling for maintenance of the open-shop policy were adopted by an executive meeting of the Washington Automotive Trade Association.

While Chester Warrington, spokesman for the trade association, declined to elaborate on the organization's action, the inference was plain that the owners would cooperate to avoid union recognition.

Oliver N. Garrison, business agent for the International Association of Machinists, predicted the strike would spread to the shops of other dealers.

His figures on the number already participating were from these shops: Stanley H. Horner, Inc., 1015 Fourteenth street northwest—the last to be affected—23 employes; R. L. Taylor Motor Co., Fourteenth and T streets northwest, 12 to 14 employes; Ourisman Chevrolet Sales Co., 610 H street northeast, 23 employes, and Mandell Chevrolet Co., Thirteenth street and Good Hope road southeast, 23 employes.

With one exception, employers agreed on the union figures. A Taylor official said only seven or eight men were out there.

Union leaders charged many employers sought to pay their men on a piece-work basis. They demanded a flat 90-cent an hour wage for mechanics, 50 cents for helpers and a 44-hour week.

Meanwhile, concerences for a settlement were sought by Howard T. Colvin, Labor Department conciliator.

Monoxide Gas Kills Elevator Salesman

Stephen Sills, 34, a salesman for an elevator maintenance firm, was found dead from monoxide gas poisoning in a garage at the rear of his home, 2717 Woodley place northwest, early this morning. Police said the garage doors were closed and Sills was lying in the front seat of his car. The motor was not running, although the ignition key was turned on.

The discovery was made by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Krucoff, parents of Sill's wife, Mrs. Rose K. Sills. The couple returned home, smelled gas and went to the garage which is underneath the rear of the house. There they found Sills. Although the car's motor had stopped, the gasoline tank was half full, police said.

Police were told that Sills left his home about 8 p. m. apparently in good spirits, saying he was going to the theater. His parents-in-law did not see him again until they discovered his body in the garage, they told police.

Penal Intrigue, Graft Inquiry Ended in House

Mrs. Norton Cracks Whip When Schulte Group Fails to Report.

A threatened investigation of charges of political intrigue, favoritism and petty graft at the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va., yesterday faded out after Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee, cracked the whip over a sub-committee named several months ago to make the inquiry.

Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, chairman of the sub-committee, lost all of his enthusiasm for a hearing he had proposed after Mrs. Norton demanded proof of the general charges against Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of penal institutions, and Elwood Street, director of public welfare.

Schulte told Mrs. Norton that the sub-committee was not prepared to submit its report. A short while later, he told newspapermen that the hearing scheduled for Thursday had been postponed indefinitely because of the absence of several sub-committee members.

Asked when a meeting of the sub-committee may be called, Schulte said:

"I don't know. I'm going to be out of town next week and some of the members will be tied up the rest of the session. We won't be able to do anything until next year."

Sponsors of Col. William L. Peak, superintendent of the District Reformatory, immediately predicted that the collapse of the inquiry definitely places him out of the running for the post now held by Capt. Barnard.

Although he has substantial Congressional backing, it is expected that the District Commissioners will appoint an outsider during the recess between the seventy-fourth and seventy-fifth Congresses.

Mrs. Norton, although a supporter of Peak, was indignant over what she termed a premature disclosure of under-cover inquiry of the District penal institutions.

Schulte earlier in the week said the sub-committee would summon Street, Barnard, and possibly some guards and prisoners from Lorton in an effort to determine the truth or falsity of reports that Barnard and Peak are carrying on a bitter personal feud to the detriment of the reformatory's administration.

2 Army Airmen Die In Canal Zone Crash

The War Department was notified yesterday of the death in an airplane accident near France Field, Canal Zone, of Privates George H. Hobden and Norris B. Marable.

The pair were killed when their parachutes failed to open in time when they were forced to leap from a bomber whose engine had failed. Three others in the craft landed safely.

True Story

Fishing Boat's Captain Is Robbed of $20.

Shafter Evans, of Crisfield, Md., captain of the fishing boat Columbia, probably can tell some tall tales about fish, but he was deadly serious when he walked into the Harbor Police Station yesterday.

Capt. Evans told police he had docked at the Municipal Fish Wharf and about noon two white men and a Negro came up to him and asked if he would like to play a little cards.

"Those men looked like city slickers to me," Evans said, "so I refused to play with them. They grabbed me then and took $20 in bills from my pockets."

Evans furnished police a description of the men and the license number of the automobile they used for a getaway.

'Walk Light' Gets First Test; Pedestrians Aid in Success

Washington pedestrians co-operated yesterday to make Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer's walk-light experiment a success—so successful that plans are under way to install similar signals at various downtown intersections.

At Twelfth and F streets northwest—one of the city's busiest corners — the new walk-light was turnedo on yesterday for the first time. Pedestrians literally walked a chalk line to demonstrate that all walkers aren't "jaywalkers."

White arrows pointed the way, painted on the street to divide pedestrian crosswalks into two lanes. Van Duzer said he was "greatly encouraged" to see how the lowly pedestrian kept to the right and obeyed signals.

The experimental light was turned on at 9:30 a. m., soon after the rush hour. Left turns at the intersection were banned. Downtown shoppers found the light worked something like this:

When the "go" signal for motorists appeared, it was accompanied for 14 seconds by a right turn arrow. And when the right turn signal went off, the walk light came on for 18 seconds. As the caution, or amber, light flashed, warning motorists of a change in signals, the walk light disappeared. But before the caution light went out, pedestrians in the center of the street had ample time to reach the opposite curb before the traffic flow changed.

"I believe," said Van Duzer, "this new light will prove successful. It has already. It may slow up the pedestrian a little, but it is safe. It is better to lose a minute than spend months recovering from an accident."

U.S. Workers Ask Inquiry In Car Death

RFC Employes Urging Action After Driver Is Exonerated.

Wife of Victim Asserts Couple Was Refused Hospital Care.

An investigation to determine why Charles Jackson, 44, Negro messenger in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was denied admittance to Gallinger Hospital for treatment of critical automobile accident injuries from which he later died, is being sought by RFC workers, it was learned last night.

A coroner's jury yesterday held accidental the death of Jackson May 4. He died in Emergency Hospital, where he was rushed from his home three days after he was denied admittance to Gallinger Hospital.

Emory F. Best, 17, of 1320 Fairmont street northwest, driver of the car that struck Johnson and his wife, Carrie, May 1, in the 1400 block Belmont street northwest, was absolved of blame.

Jackson and his wife were knocked down in front of their home, 1406 Belmont street, when they alighted from another car. They were taken to Garfield Hospital for treatment.

Dr. J. R. S. Siau, of the Garfield staff, testified at the inquest he had treated the couple. Mrs. Jackson sustained slight cuts and bruises, he said.

Jackson, Dr. Siau testified, was treated for six fractured ribs, a collapsed lung and a possible fracture of the skull. The lack of room for the injured man made it necessary that the man be transferred to Gallinger.

Cites Treatment.

Mrs. Jackson, who went to Gallinger Hospital with her husband in a Board of Public Welfare ambulance, told the jury the house physician at Gallinger told them they were not seriously injured and should go home. She added that an admittance slip made out at Garfield Hospital stating her husband's injuries was given the doctor at Gallinger.

She said the physician merely stated they were drunk and not in urgent need of hospitalization.

On the stand, Dr. Siau said Jackson was "severely and critically injured, but there was no room in Garfield Hospital for the man."

Jackson returned to his home in a taxicab. He was placed in bed, where he stayed until his condition became so critical he was taken to Emergency Hospital in a private ambulance May 4. He was pronounced dead a short time later from the injuries diagnosed by Dr. Siau.

Edwin A. Rubeck, 32, of 1312 L street northwest, a bus driver, was exonerated by a coroner's jury after an inquest into the traffic death of Edward A. Crawford, 66, of Chevy Chase, Md.

Four Permits Revoked.

Four driving permits were revoked and 27 others suspended for periods of from 15 to 45 days yesterday after a meeting of the Board of Revocations.

Those who lost their licenses are Donald Carter, 4954 Ashby place northwest, 60 miles; Charles S. Logsdon, 4512 Eighth street northwest, 65 miles; Perry K. Scudder, Capitol Heights, Md., 50 miles; Joseph C. Waddy, 2314 Ontario road northwest, 50 miles.

Richard C. Moore, 204 Seventh street southwest, had his permit suspended for 45 days when he was convicted of second offense speed of 48 miles.

Thirty-day suspensions went to Elisha C. Boxley, 1157 Twenty-first street northwest, 44 miles; Albert C. Brown, 957 Randolph street northwest, 40 miles; James E. Green, jr., 1924 Naylor road southeast, 46 miles; Samuel James, 72 H street northwest, 46 miles; Sidney Jefferson, 922 Barry place northwest, 42 miles; Raymond A. Johnson, 1406 Perry place northwest, 40 miles; Joe K. Mace, 444 New Jersey avenue southeast, 40 miles; Charles A. Merritt, 121 Twelfth street northeast, 40 miles; Harry L. O'Meara, 1320 E street northeast, 44 miles; George A. Oplous, 1922 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, 40 miles; James W. Orme, jr., 3509 Macomb street, 40 miles; Harold R. Thomas, 4730 Eighth street northwest, 44 miles; Theodore Whitley, 1227 Six-and-a-half street northwest, 42 miles.

Fifteen-day suspensions went to Sidney J. Allen, 4113 Seventh street northwest, 35 miles; David H. Bartow, 4550 Connecticut avenue northwest, 35 miles; Edward A. Fay, 5510 Broad Branch road northwest, 38 miles; Bernard C. Jameson, 1132 Penn street northeast, 36 miles; Harvey J. Jones, 1366 H street northeast, 36 miles; Ralph W. Manuel, 145 D street southeast, 36 miles; Vincent F. Petrona, 907 Webster street northwest, 38 miles; Julius T. Richards, 1215 Geranium street northwest, 35 miles; Alden K. Smith, Clarendon, Va., 38 miles; Julian P. Stadtler, Army War College, 38 miles; Levin S. Twilley, 3145 Sixteenth street northwest, 36 miles; John A. Wells, 1930 New Hampshire avenue northwest, 35 miles; Richard G. Whiting, 317 Aspen street northwest, 38 miles.

District Schools House Bees; Students Study Insects' Habits

Glass-Covered Hives Placed in Classrooms so That Industry and Communal Life May Be Observed and Object Lessons Gained by Pupils.

To find your way to a District public school, locate a bee on a blossom and when he has loaded up with nectar just follow the bee line he makes.

The result may be that the beeline leads to some classroom and a glass-covered hive into which young pupils may gaze in wonder at a swarm busy storing honey.

Education moves ahead, it seems. Almost on the heels of the announcement that one school, Anacostia Junior High, has abolished home work, comes information that the busy bee is on exhibit in schoolrooms.

Perhaps the idea is that the students should, by suggestion from observing the bees, make the most of their time in class. A good example was chosen.

But in reality, the bee idea is a scientific one and the students' observations are to give them first-hand knowledge of the communal and industrial life of the insects.

Is there a hint of "communism" here, Mr. Blanton.?

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen disclosed that anti-bee sentiment has by no means developed to a high pitch among Washingtonians.

"It's true we have had a complaint or two," he said. "One came in here a few weeks ago. But the Commissioners didn't do anything about it. But that won't keep bees on the outside from flying—and swarming anywhere they choose.

Maj. E. W. Brown, superintendent of the Metropolitan Police, has a communication on bees, too. But it's not a complaint. It is a letter from a Maryland apiarist, who would like to know about any unwanted bees that swarm in the District. He'd like to take them to his bee farm.

Gardeners Fear Stings.

The protests that have reached the ears of police come principally from gardeners. Now that the flowering season is here the bees are so active, and there are so many of them, that it's nearly impossible to get any gardening done for fear of a hovering bee bent on a sting.

But the school bees, it was carefully pointed out, are not the stinging type. They are "friendly."

"Why, I saw a bee man pick them up with his bare hands," said one teacher, "and he didn't get a single sting."

Eleven of the "observation" hives are being distributed now. The science department has 90 more of the hives ready to house more bees if the project works out.

There is no question about the popularity of the bees with the children.

"They work together so well," said one third grader gleefully, "and really they don't mean any harm. They won't hurt you if you don't scare them."

Bank Holiday Favored.

The House District Committee yesterday agreed to report favorably a bill declaring December 26, next, a legal holiday, so that Washington banks may remain closed the day after Christmas.

Model Aircraft Will Be Shown At Smithsonian

Entries in Scale Contest Close Tomorrow, With Judging May 22.

Tomorrow at 3:30 will be the deadline for entries in the annual scale contest of the District Model Aircraft League, it was announced yesterday.

Diminutive duplicates of planes which ply the Nation's airways are to be judged and exhibited in the Smithsonian Institution. Planes entered—they must be accurate scale models—will be judged May 22. Then they will be placed on exhibit until May 28 or 29 when the youthful contestants reclaim them.

Paul Garber of the Aeronautic Section of the Smithsonian reported yesterday that already a number of exceptionally good models have been delivered to him. He said interest is higher than ever in the annual exhibit which is sponsored by the Department of Playgrounds and sanctioned by the National Aeronautic Association.

Aviators of tomorrow—boys who someday hope to fly the ships they now model—are building the planes. Contestants are divided into two classes: juniors, under 16; seniors, 16 and over.

Under the wings of real-life planes the dwarfs will be placed. One group will be placed under the "Polar Star," famous exploring plane; others under other historic shios in the museum.

The Department of Playgrounds is assisting John Williams, supervisor of model aircraft. Garber is acting as technical adviser, receiving and cataloguing the models.

Foxhall Village Playfield Site Stirs Row in Opposing Camps

A dispute among Foxhall Village residents over a playground site for their children this summer rested yesterday in the hands of Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools.

The boys and girls have been playing in a wooded area near Forty-fourth street, a section so far from home for most of them that mothers are afraid to let them go there.

As a remedy three groups of residents recently petitioned the Board of Education to convert vacant land next to Rose Lee Hardy School to play use. This ground, it was pointed out, is board-controlled property, and would provide a convenient play site.

At the same time, the board has protests from property owners living across Foxhall road from the school against the playground proposal.

In favor of the proposal are members of the Society of the Little Gardenia of Foxhall Village, the Rose Lee Hardy Home and School Association, and the Foxhall Village Citizens Association.

Doctor

In Line for Raise Labeled 'Care of the Dead.'

The Capitol chuckled yesterday. The laughs were because of the spot the Senate picked for an amendment to the Navy appropriation bill to give Dr. George W. Calver, Capitol physician, the rank and pay of a rear admiral.

New Impasse Is Threatened On Lump Sum

Stand for $2,700,000 May Delay Supply Bill Indefinitely.

A deadlock over size of the Federal contribution to the District government appeared imminent yesterday after House conferees had held a special hearing to fortify themselves for another attack on the Senate restoration of the Budget Bureau figure of $5,700,000.

Following the lead of the Senate managers, the House conferees yesterday summoned L. H. Parker, Congressional tax expert, to question him regarding the tax analysis he prepared for the Washington Board of Trade and submitted to the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations.

While members declined to discuss the hearing, it was indicated that they agreed to stand firm for the $2,700,000 House-approved lump sum payment.

Should the House conferees remain adamant on this point, the 1937 District supply bill may be tied up indefinitely or not enacted at all. In such an eventuality, a continuing resolution would be adopted in the closing days of Congress and the District would be authorized to operate on the same fiscal basis as during the current year.

Representative Ditter, only Republican member of the House sub-committee, predicted that an agreement will be reached between the two groups before adjournment, but he declined to suggest on what basis.

He revealed that he had insisted upon the $2,700,000 figure in sub-committee after Representative Blanton, acting chairman, and his colleagues had proposed cutting the amount by $5,000,000 or down to $700,000.

No date has been set for the next Senate-House conference, and the next parley may wait until the conclusion of Senate hearings on the deficiency bill.

'Tobacco Road' Is Back Sunday For Brief Stay

Famous Drama of Georgia Brush Country Faces Stiff Film Bills.

Henry Hull, star of the original New York cast, supported by the same excellent company that appeared here with him the week of April 5, will return to the National Theater for another engagement of one week, beginning next Saturday night, in "Tobacco Road," Jack Kirkland's dramatization of the novel of the same name by Erskine Caldwell. Opposite the star, Mary Servoss appears as his half-starved wife, and Leon Ames in the important roles of "Lov." The single scene depicts a roadside shack in the brush country of rural Georgia. There there will be the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. A popular scale of prices will prevail throughout the return engagement.

"The Dancing Pirate," Pioneer Pictures' new production coming to the screen at RKO-Keith's tomorrow, with Charles Collins in the title role and Steffi Duna and Frank Morgan leading the support, is said the represent the finest achievement to date in the field of natural color photography. Executed in its entirety—and it is the first musical production that has been so treated—in the new miltiple-tone Technicolor process, this swashbuckling tale is reputedly the one that will establish color as the screen's inevitable medium. As an added attraction, the fourteenth issue of the "March of Time" will be included in the bill. Short subjects will be added, including the Pathe News.

John Boles will be the star of the new week's bill at Loew's Fox Theater in a double sense. Not only will he be seen in the leading role of "A Message to Garcia" on the screen, but also on the stage, in person as headliner of the vaudeville portion of the program. "A Message to Garcia" is a thrilling story of the Cuban war for liberty, based on the popular writing of the same name by the late Elbert Hubbard. Wallace Beery and Barbara Stanwyck are the costars of the picture. Other acts in the living portion of the entertainment beginning tomorrow will include Collins and Peterson, those prize zanies, who sing and play the trumpet; Sybil Bowen, recently of Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book," and the Don Costello Revue. The Fifth Avenue Music Festival also will be a feature.

For the week beginning tomorrow at the Warner Brothers Earle Theater, the major screen feature will be "The Case Against Mrs. Ames," costarring Madeleine Carroll and George Brent. On the stage, the bill will be headlined in person by Gracie Barrie and Cliff "Ukelele Ike" Edwards, late of George White's "Scandals." The film feature relates a grippingly poignant story of a mother's fight to retain the custody of her child. Others on the stage program will include the Lime Trio, "The Golliwogs," and the Lathrop Brothers and Virginia Lee, "dance stylists." Newsreel and orchestral contributions under Freddie Clark will complete the entertainment.

Janet Gaynor and Robert Taylor will be costarred for the first time on a local screen at Loew's Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. "Small Town Girl," adapted from the story by Ben Ames Williams, will be the vehicle of their romantic association. Among the supporting players may be mentioned such favorites as Binnie Barnes, Lewis S. Stone, Andy Devine and Elizabeth Patterson. The bill will be augmented by a varied list of short-reel subjects and a new issue of the Metrotone News.

A screen adaptation of George M. Cohan's stage comedy of "The Hometowners," presented under the title of "Times Square Playboy," will be offered as chief film feature of the new week at Metropolitan Theater, succeeding the long-run "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town." Warren William, June Travis, Barton MacLane and Gene and Kathleen Lockhart are the principal members of the cast. Selected short-reel subjects and a full 15-minute newsreel will augment the bill to be inaugurated tomorrow.

"Ecstasy," the Czechoslovakian film production, starring Hedy Kiesler, will begin the fourth week of its current run at the Belasco Theater on Saturday. The program is completed by supplementary short-reel subjects of varied interest and the Pathe News.

Katharine Hepburn is the star of "Little Women," the revival now occupying the screen at the Little Theater. In her support are Joan Bennett, Spring Byington, Paul Lukas, Frances Dee, Jean Parker, Douglas Montgomery, John Lodge and Henry Stephenson. Beginning next Sunday, the attraction at this house will be a revival of "Of Human Bondage," starring Leslie Howard, with Bette Davis.

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," with Sylvia Sidney, Henry Fonda, Fred MacMurray, Beulah Bondi, Fred Stone and "Spanky" McFarland, will resume its downtown run at Loew's Columbia tomorrow. Executed entirely in the new Technicolor, this subject presents one of the most beautiful screen studies in the history of the cinema. Packed with exciting action and faithfully adhering to the John Fox, jr., novel and stage play, "The Trail" may be relied upon to please any taste.

With the arrival of real summer temperatures, Glen Echo Park, the Capital's nearby, open air, free admission amusement center is affording good times for the entire family 12 hours out of every 24. All of the 50-odd amusement devices are in full operation, dancing is enjoyed every week night to MacWilliams' 12-piece orchestra, the rides offer thrills and the new motorboats are proving extremely popular. The Crystal Pool is scheduled to open on Wednesday, May 27.

Seaside Amusement Park, at Chesapeake Beach, Md., only an hour from the National Capital, will inaugurate its thirty-seventh summer season on Saturday of this week. As in the past, this popular resort will offer all of the pleasures of the seashore—salt-water bathing, fishing, dancing, boating, picnic facilties in shady groves and all manner of amusement devices—miniature railway, coaster, skooter, airplane swings, Custer cars, fun hall, the kiddies' whip, etc.

About The Showshops

"SMALL TOWN GIRL." Although lacking most of the elements of cinematic greatness, here, nevertheless, is a picture that has been so artistically produced, so judiciously cast and so faithfully adapted from the novel upon which it is founded as to take its place among the most entertaining and most satisfying of the season's comedy-romances.

BELL.

For the first time, Janet Gaynor and Robert Taylor have been teamed, in the title role and the part of the rising young surgeon, Dr. Bob Dakin, respectively, and none who views the film, I think, will deny that both do the best work they have brought to the screen in many a long day. There is never a moment during the action when one becomes aware of any conscious "acting" on the part of the principals. This probably is due as much to William A. Wellman's skillful direction as to the thorough ability of his players—Binnie Barnes, Andy Devine, Lewis Stone, Charles Grapewin, Elizabeth Patterson, Isabel Jewell, Frank Craven, Nella Walker, Robert Greig, Edgar Kennedy, Willie Fung and James Stewart, to recite the foremost names on the picture's generous roster.

One of the distinct advantages possessed by "Small Town Girl" is its fine change of pace as the mood and spirit of the story settles down into a serious consideration of an acute problem in the lives of several people after having gotten off to a frolicsome start on the rah-rah day of the Harvard-Yale game, with all of its attendant roistering after the rooting up of the goal posts. In these opening sequences the dialogue is something to gladden the ear. There are laughs in every speech and a spontaneity in the action that will be found irresistibly fluent and flip.

There will be a detailed review of this subject in this space following its Friday opening on the screen at Loew's Palace. In the meantime, put it on the list of pictures you want to see, if that intangible and nebulous quality known colloquially as "class" means anything to you. Then, there are always the Gaynor and the handsome Taylor. You'll be surprised!

Dots and Dashes.

The new screen version of the Edna Ferber-Florenz Ziegfeld "Show Boat" will follow "The Dancing Pirate" at RKO-Keith's on Friday, May 22 . . . That is, unless the natural color "Pirate" release, featuring Charles Collins, proves as big a popular hit as "Jock" Whitney hopes it will and forces an extension of the Fifteenth street engagement . . . The point is, however, that whenever it gets here, "Show Boat," will reveal a new and fascinating Irene Dunne in what is described as the finest picture that ever came off the Universal lot . . . I wonder if they have forgotten "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," or if the charming Miss Dunne really is that good? . . . Peter Lorre, by the way, probably will be seen in a new "Hunchback" in the near future . . . He has unique notions of what tragedy is and how to play it, which would seem to be fulfilled in the role of Quasimodo in the Hugo story, immortalized in celluloid by the late Lon Chaney . . . Chaney's physical disfigurement was so punishing a make-up job that he could only appear before the cameras 30 minutes at a time without being unstrapped for muscular relief . . . Lorre's impersonation, I suspect, will be more psychological than physical . . . Rose Robison Cohen's Children's Studio of Speech and Dramatic Art will present a program of one-act plays in the Burlington Hotel Saturday afternoon at 3:30 . . . And the accomplished Sylvia Kaplowitz writes in to say, "I am presenting 20 of the cleverest young accordionists that any teacher ever had the good luck to instruct, Friday night at 8 in The Playhouse, 1814 N street. Is it too much of an imposition to ask you to attend? . . . Don't be sylly, Sylvia! . . . The Roadside Theater has acquired a well-stocked and unexpected wardrobe department . . . Edith I. Allen, designer-technician, went to New York to buy electrical equipment and paint, against the opening of the season June 15, with "Around the World in 80 Days," and came back with three huge packing cases of skirts, gowns, bodices, hats, feathers, trimmings, other garments, etc., etc., besides . . . Much of this finery was once worn by Eva Le Gallienne . . . The overwhelming problem of relief is the subject of one of the principal "clips" in the new issue of "The March of Time," opening at RKO-Keith's tomorrow . . . What the Administration would like most is a little relief from relief!

A "Scandalite" Returns "Home"

Having scored the hit of her life in a combination of her own and Lyda Roberti's roles in the George White "Scandals," recently closed, Gracie Barrie, whose excellent likeness appears above, returns tomorrow to the stage of the Earle Theater where she served for many weeks as singing mistress of ceremonies, following the long term of service of Maxine Doyle. Gracie has played the Earle many times since, and on this appearance will share headline honors with Cliff "Ukulele Ike" Edwards, who also was one of the mainstays of the "Scandals," when it played here at the National. That was 'way back the week of December 9.

Footlight Club.

"THE TAVERN." The Footlight Club of the University of Maryland presents the comedy-drama in three acts by George M. Cohan, directed by Ralph Williams. At the University of Maryland May 13, 14 and 15.

As its final production of the year—and the thespian swan song of six of the cast—the Footlight Club of the University of Maryland last evening presented George M. Cohan's whimsical comedy-drama, "The Tavern."

With the unwanted—and unwonted—co-operation of Jupiter Pluvius, the elements contrived with the players to offer the proper atmosphere for the drama, which takes place on a dark and stormy night.

As the Stranger coming to the lonely tavern, whose coming precipitated the philosophical dialogue and the action, was Fred Haskin, jr., who here continued to maintain his earlier reputation of a lad who knows his way about the stage. Mr. Haskin hit and sustained a consistent level of characterization.

Bill Johnson was seen as the landlord in whose haven of succor the strange proceedings take place. His son was depicted by Jerome Sachs, and Sam Leishear played the half-witted hired man, Zach.

Others in the company included Dick Hunt, as the governor; Millie Heran, as Violet, whose accusations are applied with an amazing catholicity; Millie Chapin, as the hired girl in love with Zach; Ruth Kreiter, as the governor's daughter; Robert Litschert, as her fiance; Leon Yourtee, as the sheriff; Tom Wharton and Leonard Prosner, as the sheriff's men, and Jerry Hardy, as Stevens.

Under the direction of Ralph Williams, the players gave an interesting reading of the play.

Data on Labor-Saving Devices Asked by House

A resolution calling upon Secretary Perkins to report to the House on labor-saving devices and their effect upon employment was approved today by the House Labor Committee.

It would direct compilation of a list of all such devices put in operation since December 21, 1920, and still in use with improvements, and of an estimate of persons unemployed at the time of completion of the list as a result of use of each type of machinery, with a report with recommendations by the end of the next Congress.

Breezin' Along.

New York, May 13.

Pierre Root offers Shep Fields' band and Vocalist Mary Jane Walsh . . . Quite a story in this Walsh eyeful, who comes from Davenport, Iowa, and is a graduate of Trinity, at Washington, D. C. . . . Her first radio broadcast originated from Davenport, which is a sleepy little town, and the sponsor of the program insisted on an organ accompaniment . . . Only organ in town, apart from the churches, was in a mortuary chapel, so Miss Walsh undoubtedly is the first radio starlet to break into radio via this unusual route . . . She sang two songs from the chapel, both of them unconsciously humorous, considering the locale . . . First was "Lover, Come Back to Me" . . . Second was even better: "Handle With Care" . . . But she forgot the vocal topper: "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead, You Rascal You."

Local scribes are getting umbrellas—cute publicity stunt on "One Rainy Afternoon" . . . Harriet Hoctor, Irving Berlin, Joan Marsh, Willie and Eugene Howard and Jim Barton, Phil Baker, Milton Berle, Benny Fields, Ray Bolger, Nick Lucas and his band, Chuck and Chuckles, Ella Logan, Irene Rich are the first acceptances for the Dan Healy affair Sunday at the Majestic.

Max Baer's debut as a band leader is hardly news . . . He's been on the floor before . . . Eli Lloyd Hoffman acidly wonders if Baer will sing on one knee? . . . Janice Jarratt, the ciggie model, has signed a Universal contract . . . The Texas girl left a few hours ago for the Centennial, where she'll pose for publicity ads before going to the Coast . . . Mrs. Sam Goldwyn, Eva Ortega, the Rainbow Room thrush; Virginia Howard, in the "Three Men on a Horse" cast; Ethel Somerville, the model; Jack Oakie and Lennie Hayton all are products of Public School 9, at Eighty-second and West End avenue.

A fire buff is the smoke-eaters' description of a youngster who hangs around engine houses and trails the firemen to blazes . . . Engine 54, on W. Forty-seventh street, has the most unusual of all fire buffs, because he combines fotography with his idolatry of the engine men . . . He rushes to fires with them, takes pictures and then rushes back to his dark room . . . By the time the engines get back from the conflagration, he has the pictures waiting on the captain's desk . . . A large proportion of the populace can't resist the exciting screech and roar of fire engines . . . Willie Stevens, in the Hall-Mills case, was a fire-engine-chaser . . . They assumed that Willie was a crackpot because of this, but when he came to the witness stand, he was terrific.

Last nite I parked the car at Fifty-fourth and Tenth avenue, and when I returned from the Fox Movietone Studios, he had disappeared . . . It is possible that my little radiator-cap sitter may finally have shot his arrow into the air and gone to retrieve it . . . This is a possibility, but the probability is that some youngster swiped him and is holding him for ransom . . . I do not want to call in Police Commissioner Valentine or J. Edgar Hoover on this case, y'understand, because the Sullivans are not whistle-blowers . . . But wherever he is, I'll give $5 to ransom him and no questions asked . . . Sentimentality? Not entirely . . . you see, he cost $30.

Far be it from me, periodically, to bore you with my automotive troubles, but this is the story of a wrenched-off friendship and thus a legitimate wail . . . For the past two years, I've had a little old-fashioned chap sitting out on the radiator of my car . . . Old-fashioned, because he has been sitting there with a bow-and-arrow in his hand, and a William Tell personality in this era of Tommy-guns definitely is dated . . . The affection formed for this little companion was quite understandable . . . He never suggested that I was driving recklessly, never complained of the heat of the radiator on which he sat loyally, leaving his hot-seat only on the occasions when gas station mechanics lifted him off bodily to pour in water . . . He was in every respect a nice little fellow, and a right guy.

Newsom Gets Right to Hurl Oftener

Hurler Wins Revolt for Assignments Three Times a Week.

Pitcher Claims He's More Effective When Used Frequently.

By Shirley Povich,

Chicago, Ill., May 13.—Buck Newsom, who considers himself virtually unemployed when he pitches only every fourth day, has staged a successful one-man revolt against the management of the Washington club.

Manager Bucky Harris today capitulated to Newsom's demands that he be allowed to pitch thrice weekly, after the big right-hander had strenuously complained that his pitching talents were being wasted by extra days of rest.

"I'm at my best with only three days rest," said Newsom. "Other pitchers may need four days, but I don't," he added modestly. "My control is off unless I'm in there pitching every third or fourth day. Look at the box scores if you don't believe it."

The books bear Newsom out. In two pitching performances last week he was both wild and ineffective after four days' rest, but in his third outing, last Sunday, he shut out the Red Sox with six hits and walked only two batters, despite only two days of rest.

Manager Harris offered Newsom no counter arguments. "Maybe you're right," he told Buck. "If you think you're a better pitcher with less rest it's okay with me. You won't hurt my feelings if you go in there and win three games a week."

Again to Use Wind-up.

Last week Newsom had also won another point with Harris. That was the repeal of the managerial order against his windmill wind-up that Harris had deemed so much waste motion.

"I didn't feel natural without that wind-up," said Newsom. "A fellow can't change the habits of a lifetime in a couple of months. That wind-up bothers the hitters and helps me, so add it up. Notice how I shut out them Red Sox the first time I went back to it."

Granting Newsom's wish, Harris has given him the pitching assignment against the White Sox tomorrow. The turn ordinarily belongs to Pete Appleton inasmuch as Newsom pitched last Sunday, but Buck is insistent that he be worked every third or fourth day.

Washington's one-game winning streak has now existed for three days. Preserved by rain that fell in the third inning yesterday, the Nats' streak was in cold storage today when Chicago weather forced the postponement of hostilities.

When Buddy Myer pronounced himself again physically fit yesterday Manager Bucky Harris lost no time in restoring him to the Nats' infield, despite the brilliance of Red Kress at second base. Harris is eager for Myer to resume his 1935 status as the club's most valuable player and thus Kress finds himself again on the bench, his sensational performances of late notwithstanding.

Hoyt Gives Up 1 Hit, 1 Walk, But Loses

Bees Bow, 4-3 in 10-Inning Although Hurler Sets Down 15 in Order.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, May 13.—Waite Hoyt yielded one hit and gave only one base on balls in six innings of relief pitching today, but it was that hit and walk that gave the Boston Bees a 4-to-3 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates in ten innings. It was the second ten-inning game played by the two teams in as many days, yesterday's contest ending in a 6-to-6 draw.

Relieving Bill Swift at the start of the last half of the fifth with score deadlocked at three-all, Hoyt retired the next 15 Bees in order. Danny MacFayden, who also replaced John Lanning on the mound for Boston in the fifth, coaxed a pass out of Hoyt to start the Bees' half of the tenth, however. Bill Urbanski sacrificed perfectly, and when Baxtor Jordan shot a hot grounder through Arky Vaughan, the game was over.

Curtis Cup Rivals Coy About Trophy

U. S., British Teams Stage 'Alphonse-Gaston' Act.

By the Associated Press.

Southport, England, May 13.—It looks like the Curtis Cup, international golfing trophy, will spend the next year out in the rain unless the rival American and British players call off their "Alphonse and Gaston" act.

First the Americans insisted that the British should take the cup inasmuch as the recent cup-match at Gleneagles ended in a draw at 4½ points to 4½. The British, however, are not so sure that would be "playing the game." They're going to leave it up to the international match committee.

"My personal feeling," said Mrs. Phillip Hodgson, chairman of the executive council of the Ladies Golf Union, "is that the Americans haven't lost the cup and should take it back with them.

"We appreciate their generosity, but I don't think we should accept. We've never won the cup and I think we ought to wait until we do."

Scott Victor Over Normant Quarles

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Richmond, Va., May 13.—Cowboy Howard Scott, of Washington, D. C., punched out a clear-cut decision over Normant Quarles and won a unanimous decision tonight in the main bout of a card staged at the Auditorium before a throng of 2,000 fans. Scott weighed 133½ pounds and his opponent came in at 135. It was the first time that any ringman ever won two consecutive decisions over Quarles.

Lakewood, N. J., May 13 (AP).—Late this afternoon, after Joe Louis, Jimmy Braddock and most of the others had left the former's birthday party here, Gov. Harold G. Hoffman popped in for a surprise visit.

Louis was hurriedly summoned from his cottage and with Promoter Mike Jacobs posed for pictures. Turning to Jacobs after the shooting, Gov. Hoffman said: "I guess a lot of people over here would pay to see Joe go to work on me."

Werber Poles Home Run as Sox Win

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, May 13.—With Bill Werber driving in all of their runs with his first homer of the season, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 1, today for their third victory in four starts against the world champions this year.

Werber's blow came in the fourth inning with Schoolboy Rowe on the mound and Jimmy Foxx and Eric McNair occupying second and first, respectively. Al Simmons' single, sanwiched in between a pair of charity trips to first, and a double play gave the Tigers their only run in the last half of the same frame.

Rube Walberg and Rowe, opposing the Red Sox for the first time this season, started on the mound, but neither finished. Rowe left the game at the end of the sixth with a sore arm, while Walberg was taken out when the Tigers threatened in the middle of the fifth inning. Roxie Lawson and Fred Ostermueller finished, the latter checking a ninth-inning rally in which the champions put two men on the bases with none out and then loaded the sacks with two down.

4 New Feuds Brighten Outlook For National League's Season

By Scotty Reston.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, May 13.—In the National League, where the boys admire nothing so much as a well-timed punch in the nose, they are well on their way to a happy season of playful bloodshed.

Already there are four promising battles under way, not counting the old ones which are joyfully carried on from one season to another and have cumulative value.

Dick Bartell, the Giants' shortstop, and Van Lingle Mungo top the swinging record at present. They had a battle at the Polo Grounds when Bartell claimed that Mungo tripped him in a play at first base. Of course, Van Lingle said he did no such thing, but Bartell took a punch at him anyway. This brought a special squad of policemen to Ebbets Field the next time the two teams met.

Then there was the little squabble between Casey Stengel of the Dodgers and "Lippy Leo" Durocher of the Cards under the Ebbets Field grandstand yesterday. Flatbush is still celebrating this because the warrior-manager, having something of a weight advantage but being a little older than his opponent, cut Leo's lip and rolled on top of him.

Two other feuds have not reached the fighting stage—yet. Dizzy Dean, removed for some time now from Tex Carleton, his old sparring partner, does not seem to have settled all his problems with Virgil Davis, the big Cardinal catcher. Davis is not starting behind the bat when Dizzy pitches. If this feud by any chance happens to fall through, Dizzy has Joe Medwick to fall back on, or, failing in this, there are 50 or 60 other fellows in the league. Jimmy Wilson of the Phils or Al Todd of the Pirates for example, who will gladly accommodate the elder Dean.

Larry MacPhail, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, red-headed actually and temperamentally, is the front-office storm-center of the league. He was back in the news recently because of the suspension of Paul Derringer, the ace Cincinnati pitcher, for failure to slide home during a game with the Giants.

Reilly Fails To Sign Up Gevinson

Twomey Refuses Offer of Parley by Pilot of Miller.

Manager Ready to Give $1,000 for Control of D. C. Boy.

By Bill McCormick.

Matt Twomey, the amateur trainer who is credited with bringing Lou Gevinson as far as he has come in the ring game, yesterday kissed away what was generally considered a golden opportunity to advance the local Olympic featherweight alternate into the big time.

Twomey refused even to confer with wily Pete Reilly, considered by most experts the best manager in the beak-busting business, after the man who has controlled the 126-pound division for many years offered to lay a sizable sum of money on the line for control—or partial control—of Gevinson's professional ring appearances.

Tuesday night Reilly, who undoubtedly will make every effort to regain the featherweight championship which Pete Sarron lifted from his Freddie Miller, told a group of local newspapermen that he would offer at least $1,000 for Gevinson's contract.

When told that Lou was not under contract to anyone, but, for sentimental reasons, was bound to Twomey, Reilly stated that that made no difference—he still wished to pay for anything he received in the ring game.

Efforts to locate Twomey failed that night and Gevinson stated he would not care to discuss any business arrangements, but preferred to leave them to Matt.

Twomey Declines Conference.

Yesterday morning, Reilly again spoke of his willingness to try to develop the boxer many consider the best prospect ever uncovered in the District. Newspapermen, assembled for a conference with Pete, finally made contact with Gevinson who said he would get in touch with Twomey and meet the big time manager to discuss the matter.

After some time, Twomey finally called Reilly on the phone, asking what he wished to discuss. Upon being told that Reilly wished to talk about Gevinson, Twomey said flatly that he would not be able to get away to discuss the subject.

Reilly, who is much sought after as a manager, departed for New York, after dismissing the matter from his mind.

"There are plenty of good prospects throughout the country," he said. "Many of them will never get any place because they are not properly handled. They get bad hands, bad ring habits and many things can happen to them. I understand Gevinson already is suffering from an injured left hand and perhaps he would not be a good risk anyway. I thought, however, he was young enough in the game so that his bad hands could be corrected with proper handling."

Apparently there will be no letdown in the quality of boxing bouts to be offered the Washington public on the heels of the highly successful Freddie Miller-Pete Sarron featherweight title bout.

One week from next Monday, on May 25, Phil Furr, District welterweight champion, will defend his chin against the onslaught of Harry Dublinsky, nationally ranked contender.

Dubinsky will be remembered as the lad who scored a quick knockout over Bob Wilson in a too-brief set-to last summer.

Along about June 1 another good bout is in prospect. The headliner on that date will be either between Battling Battalino and Howard Scott or Marty Gallagher and Bob Tow. Whichever of these contests is not held on June 1 will take place one week later, on June 8.

Battalino is one of the best crowd-pleasers ever in the ring. Scott is the District lightweight champion. Little need be said of Gallagher and Tow, both of whom are local heavyweight favorites. The heavyweight bout will be held on June 1 if Gallagher agrees to fight on that date instead of one week later, as is his present wish.

Pete Sarron, recently crowned featherweight champion, was the guest of honor at the Alexandria Executives' Clubs luncheon. Both Pete and his manager, as well as all officials connected with the title bout, were eulogized, after which Manager Jimmy Erwin was presented with a traveling bag and Pete was given an elaborate set of fishing tackle.

Hollyrood Is Surprise Entry in Preakness

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, May 13.—A surprise entry in the forty-sixth running of the Preakness on Saturday will be Hal Price Headley's Hollyrood. The bay son of High Cloud, which was the early Derby favorite before Brevity swept into the picture, turned in a sparkling workout at Belmont Park yesterday and his handlers immediately wired Maryland officials to reserve stall space. With Hollyrood considered a sure starter, the list of horses that seem destined to march postward was brought to 12. In all, 16 are included in the list from which the field will be molded.

In addition to Hollyrood, two others were definitely added to the starting group today. Mrs. Janon Fisher, jr., announced that her Swashbuckler would accept the issue. From New York came word that Mrs. Silas Mason is shipping He Did, which also ran in the Derby, to this track in the same car with M. L. Schwartz's Bold Venture, winner of the Kentucky classic.

Others that appear certain to face the barrier are: E. R. Bradley's Bow and Arrow; Belair Stud's Granville; Bomar Stable's Grand Slam, Brookemeade Stable's Delphinium; Greentree Stable's Memory Book; Walter M. Jeffords' Jen Bart and Giant Killer; Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Knight Warrior.

On the doubtful list are: Foxcatcher Farms' Gold Seeker; Mrs. Marion duPont's Transporter; Mrs. Louise Viau's Conquer and the Wheatley Stable's Teufel.

Tintagel, Marshall Field's colt, has been definitely removed as a Preakness possibility. After failing in his tests he has gone lame and will be shelved for some time.

The majority of the horses which seem slated to see action were given blowouts either here or at Belmont Park yesterday and today. Five colts were out on the local track this morning and another. Conquer won in the feature race this afternoon.

Jean Bart and Giant Killer worked together. The latter was without the blinkers that he probably will wear in he Preakness. They scampered along for a quarter in :24 3-5 and a half in :50. Jean Bart drew away from his stablemate at this stage to be clocked in 1.14 3-5 for three quarters, 1.41 3-5 for the mile and 1.56 for 9 furlongs. Giant Killer completed the mile in 1.44 and was going easily.

Transporter worked a mile and a quarter in 2.12, while Grand Slam was not asked to show real speed in breezing a mile in 1.44. Knight Warrior was the only colt pressed during the trials. He appeared to be urged as he completed 9 furlongs in 2.02, although he breezed during the early stages. However, hsi trainer was satisfied and said that Carl Hanford would ride him on Saturday.

There is a possibility that Ira Hanford, who rode Bold Venture to victory in the Derby, may be in the St. Germans colt's saddle in the Preakness, despite the fact that he is under a 15-day suspension, the result of rough riding in the Kentucky classic. Fro mthe Blue Grass State comes word "that if permission is granted Hanford to ride in the Preakness, the Kentucky stewards will be pleased to approve that permission." Kentucky rules provide that all jockeys under temporary suspension should be permitted to fulfill all bona fide stake tracted owner. Although the memrace engagements for their conbers of the Maryland Racing Commission have gone on record against Hanford's appearance, it is believed that they may change their minds in view of the opinion of the Kentucky stewards.

That Max Hirsch, Bold Venture's trainer expects Hanford to ride is indicated by the fact that he has ceased negotiations with Sonny Workman. The Washington boy is now slated to pilot C. V. Whitney's Two Bob in the Kentucky Oaks on Saturday.

Pearson Hurls Yanks to 4-1 Triumph

Allows Only Six Safeties as League-Leaders Top St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, May 13.—Monte Pearson held the St. Louis Browns to six scattered hits today as the New York Yankees defeated the American League cellar occupants, 4 to 1.

Hogsett pitched effectively for the Browns, allowing only 1 run up to the seventh, when he was removed for a pinch hitter. The Yanks hit safely in every inning except the third for a total of 11. DiMaggio's double in the seventh, scoring Crosetti, was the blow that pushed the Yanks' second and winning tally across.

Champ Upsets Ring Custom In Move

Louis Is Nonplussed at Birthday Party Announcement.

Contender More Than Willing; Legal Fight Is Anticipated.

By Jack Miley.

Lakewood, N. J., May 13.—What is the fight racket coming to, anyway? Have the gladiators lost all regard for the conventions of their profession? The shocking spectacle of a heavyweight champion chasing a challenger into the latter's camp and defying him to meet him—the sooner the better—was afforded by James Braddock down at Lakewood, N. J., this afternoon. The doughty Jim and his midget manager, Joe Gould dropped into the training quarters of Joe Louis and demanded that Joseph face the titlest without delay. Braddock astonished an assembly gathered here to help Louis celebrate his twenty-second birthday by addressing the tan typhoon as follows:

"What's the matter with you, fellah, are you trying to duck me? I'm the champion and you oughta be chasing me, but since you won't do that I'm coming after you.

Conquer Wins Pimlico Handicap, Boosts Preakness Chances

Form Players Win; Double Pays $37

Vanda Cerulea, Pass 'Em By Take First and Third Races.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, Md., May 13.—Conquer, whose sire, Victorian, won the Preakness in 1928, bettered his chance of starting in the Maryland classic by leading from flagfall to finish in the Pimlico Class B Handicap, today's feature race. With Eddie Smith, Washington jockey, in the saddle, Conquer picked up 120 pounds and gave his backers no anxious moments and paid a $5.80 mutuel in the role of a favorite.

Two lengths behind the winner came Bevau, making a valiant but futile effort to dislodge Mrs. L. Viau's colt. Another half length away was a fast closing Alit. Only two others, Galmica and Scudder, competed.

The crowd of 8,000 was ducking showers all afternoon, but the horses were running true to form for most of those present to have a winner at some stage.

Conquer was hustled to the front at once after Starter Milton did a good job. Beveau was shuffled back to last as the vest-pocket field turned into the backstretch. Scudder was pressing the pace at the moment. The farther they went the farther Conquer drew out. However, Beveau found his racing legs at the far turn and loomed threateningly with a bold rush. But swinging into the stretch straightaway, Smith let out a notch and Beveau could not lessen the margin after that.

The firm of Abel & Abel accounted for the first race with Vanda Cerulea, a daughter of Blue Larkspur. Mrs. Abel owns the filly and her husband, "Whitey" Abel, does the training and riding. Parva Stella was second and Cora Kay third in a field of a dozen cheap ones competing at the sprint distance. Vanda Cerulea paid a $10.50 mutuel.

Bold Fellow, expertly handled by Jockey Pat McGinnis, won the day's steeplechase event in brilliant fashion. He had some six lengths to his advantage at the end and led Caesar's Ghost and Swimalong to the wire. The only mishap of the race came at the eleventh jump when Lady Wisdom fell on her neck. Both rider and horse escaped injury. McGinnis held Bold Fellow under stout restraint for a swing of the course and then worked his way to the top and drew clear. Swimalong set most of the pace. The winner was a $3.90 favorite.

Pass 'Em By ran like a wild horse to win the third race. The By Pass II colt bounded to the front in the first few jumps, ran to the outside fence entering the stretch, then bolted to the rail to cut off Story Time and Baladine and drew out smartly for the remainder of the way. Jockey Joe Renick made a futile claim of foul. The winner was a $10.90 mutuel. The race was run in a driving rain that added to the confusion.

Petee Blue finally won a race in the fourth event, taking command on the swing into the stretch and holding sway thereafter rather easily. Shepherd Boy, the pace setter most of the way, was second ahead of Manual. The winner, capably ridden by Carl Hanford, paid a $7.60 mutuel.

Cruising, ridden by Apprentice A. Shelhamer, won the fifth race with ease. He wrested the lead from Masked Gal at the stretch turn and then held Zay safe in the final drive. Masked Gal, the front runner, lasted to take third money. The winner was an $11.60 betting proposition.

Dearzin won the finale but was disqualified for causing a jam as the leaders entered the backstretch. The purse went to Bungalow at a $9.70 mutuel with Three Daggers placed second and Home Work third.

The stewards announced after the race that Jockeys F. Faust and H. Dabson have been suspended for the remainder of the meeting for foul riding. Their cases are being referred to the Maryland Racing Commission.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VANDA CERULEA, $10.50, $5.20, $4.40; PARVA STELLA, $3.70, $3.00; CORA KAY, $5.20.

VANDA CERULEA, away forwardly and a keen factor early, disposed of SHAGGY ANN when leaving the backstretch, was taken off the rail when reaching the homestretch, rallied to strong urging and outstayed PARVA STELLA. Latter, prominent from the beginning, responded to severe punishment and closing gamely on the inside was catching the winner slowly at the close. CORA KAY, unable to remain in early contention after breaking swiftly, improved her position steadily and came with good courage in the last five-sixteenths. BALLY BAY, shuffled back soon after the start, found racing room in the last half mile and finished stoutly. TITIAN KIDDIE was rushed hard after breaking slower than usual, but could not stay after getting into a for ard position. SHAGGY ANN was done after reaching the homestretch. BROMIDE showed speed in the first half mile.

SECOND RACE—Two miles. Purse, $1,000. The Magnolia Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward, maidens. Start good and fast. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:50. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. J. Park's ch. g. (4), by Playfellow—Miss Filley. Trained by E. Young. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 3:49 3-5. (13 jumps.)

| LADY WISDOM | (Eagan) | 130 | 6 | 1 | $2^{h}$ | $4^{h}$ | Fell | | | 22.20 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOLD FELLOW, $3.90, $3.70, $2.90; CAESAR'S GHOST, $5.90, $4.30; SWIMALONG, $7.00.

BOLD FELLOW, reserved off the pace for the first mile while fencing boldly, went into contention after the ninth fence, took an easy lead when SWIMALONG made a bad landing at the next to the last jump, then held sway for the balance of the trip. CAESAR'S GHOST, prominent all during the running while saving ground, held on gamely for the final drive and was easily best of the others. SWIMALONG was racing gamely in the lead when he made a bad landing and almost fell at the next to last fence. He recovered and held on determinedly thereafter. TROJAN RACKET bettered his position slowly in the last half mile. KEPI showed a good effort. BRIAR BLUE went evenly throughout. VAUXTOI lacked speed. BLACK FEATHERS was done after going a mile. LADY WISDOM went forwardly for the first mile, bore out at her fences and fell at the eleventh jump.

THIRD RACE—Four and one-half furlongs; claiming. Purse, $900. The Tulip Hill. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:21½. Winner, H. Neusteter's dk. b. c. (2), by By-Pass II—Step Lively. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48 3-5, 0:55 2-5.

| OMAR MIRZA | (E. Smith) | 110 | 1 | 6 | 8 | 8 | 8 | 20.00 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PASS 'EM BY, $10.90, $3.40, $2.60; STORY TIME, $2.50, $2.20; EJECTOR, $3.10.

PASS 'EM BY, prominent while racing very wide, bolted from the middle of the track to the inside to block and interfere with BALADINE at the final furlong pole, was straightened out quickly and drew out into a long lead at the close. STORY TIME blocked OMAR MIRZA soon after the start, saved ground while holding a forward position and held on gamely for the final drive. EJECTOR met with slight interference going to the turn, was strongly shaken up and came gamely in the closing three-sixteenths. BALADINE sprinted into a long lead, saved ground, but tired badly after being slightly blocked by the winner. MAKALAW lost ground most of the trip. MULVANEY raced greenly. JUSTA TOWN could not threaten. OMAR MIRZA was taken up sharply when crowded against the inside fence soon after the start.

WEATHER, RAINING. TRACK, FAST.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards; claiming. Purse, $900. The John S. Skinner. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:51. Off at 3:52½. Winner, H. L. Straus' bk. b. c. (4), by Petee Wrack—Poliblue. Trained by P. Madeira. Value to winner, $650; second, $140; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:49 1-5, 1:14 3-5, 1:42, 1:47.

| HARD CHASE | (Lauch) | 110 | 1 | 2 | $4^{h}$ | $5^{½}$ | $5^{h}$ | $9^{4}$ | $9^{6}$ | 2.55 |
| ROYAL CUNNING | (Decamillis) | 109 | 5 | 5 | $3^{8}$ | $3^{1½}$ | $8^{½}$ | 10 | 10 | 7.50 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PETEE BLUE, $7.60, $5.30, $5.60; SHEPHERD BOY, $6.70, $6.30; MANUAL, $9.00.

PETEE BLUE, nicely handled and rated off the pace for the first six furlongs, moved to the pacemaker readily when shaken up, took an easy lead when reaching the homestretch and finished with much in reserve. SHEPHERD BOY was steadied on the front while setting the pace, shook off GRANDMA'S BOY and ROYAL CUNNING, but was unable to stay with the winner when collared. MANUAL was taken wide to improve his position and came willingly in the final stages. IDLE FLIRT was under strong handling all the way, but could not menace. GRANDMA'S BOY was well placed, but failed to rally. JUST REMEMBER raced in spots and pulled up lame. EGEON was never a factor. HARD CHASE raced in dull fashion. ROYAL CUNNING stopped.

WEATHER, RAINING. TRACK, SLOPPY.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs; claiming. Purse, $900. The White Rose. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start fair for all but Tuan. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:22. Off at 4:26. Winner, Mrs. H. W. Stewart's br. g. (6), by Whiskalong—Subway. Trained by H. Sherman. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:14.

| TUAN | (Phillips) | 117 | 3 | 7 | 7 | 7 | 7 | 7 | 92.90 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CRUISING, $11.60, $3.60, $2.60; ZAY, $2.80, $2.20; MASKED GAL, $2.80.

CRUISING, favoring the footing, moved up fast when leaving the backstretch, wore MASKED GAL down without effort entering the homestretch, and had enough in reserve to withstand ZAY. Latter, lacking speed to maintain a forward position, circled her field and closed with good energy after losing considerable ground. MASKED GAL displayed nice speed for five furlongs, then tired steadily. BALCONY went prominently, moved up midway of the turn, but weakened in the last quarter mile. TUTTICURIO saved ground from the beginning, but was done after a half mile. ROYAL WAGER broke slowly and was never dangerous. TUAN was away poorly. He pulled up very lame.

WEATHER, CLOUDY. TRACK, SLOPPY.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. Pimlico Graded Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:51. Off at 4:53. Winner Mrs. L. Viau's b. c. (3), by Victorian—Note o'Love. Trained by J. P. Jones. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:41 3-5, 1:48 3-5.

| SCUDDER | (Coffman) | 112 | 5 | 2 | $2^{1}$ | $2^{1}$ | $3^{½}$ | 5 | 5 | 57.95 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CONQUER, $5.30, $3.00, $2.40; BEVEAU, $3.30, $2.50; ALIT, $3.30.

CONQUER took command under sufferance going to the first turn, opened up a clear lead without effort and was never released from restraint at any stage of the journey, winning well in hand. BEVEAU worked his way up on the outside, improved his position slowly and was unable to threaten the winner. ALIT dropped back badly when reaching the final turn, continued gamely and outfinished tiring horses. GALMICA, steadied along early, made a weak effort entering the homestretch, then was held safe. SCUDDER was done after six furlongs.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:22. Off at 5:27½. Winner, A. C. Compton's dk. br. c. (4), by Crusader—Dance. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:15, 1:42, 1:48 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRAVING DANGER, $7.60, $3.90, $3.00; BOB'S BOYS, $4.00, $3.10; INFERNO LAD, $3.80.

BRAVING DANGER, taken under slight reserve in the first six furlongs, went to the leaders readily when shaken up, wore BOB'S BOYS and PHANTOM FOX down entering the homestretch, but had to be kept under urging to the close. BOB'S BOYS jumped in front when the start came, was rushed to his field midway of the backstretch, gained a short lead at the final bend, but had too much taken out of him and he weakened. INFERNO LAD, badly outrun early, circled his field and closed gamely after making up a lot of ground. IN FRONT was unable to stay when challenged. INDIAN NEWS weakened early and finished wide. PHANTOM FOX tired fast in the last five-sixteenths. FLUFFY LEE was overmatched.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles; claiming. Purse, $900. The Rockdale. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:56. Off at 5:57. Winners, Mrs. G. H. Pearce's b. m. (5), by Claptrap—Shanty. Tr ined by G. H. Pearce. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50, 1:16 2-5, 1:43 2-5, 1:50 2-5.

†Disqualified.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUNGALOW, $9.70, $6.30, $5.20; THREE DAGGERS, $6.70, $4.10; HOME WORK, $9.80.

DEARZIN following close to the pace from the beginning, rallied strongly to take command in the closing furlong, but bore over repeatedly on BUNGALOW approaching the finish to draw clear. He was disqualified for foul. BUNGALOW was rushed through an arrow opening on the inside to take command entering the backstretch, continued gamely when overtaken, but was crowded into the fence in the last 50 yards and had to be pulled up. THREE DAGGERS responded willingly to enter a forward position and closed gamely under a hard drive. HOME WORK, permitted to drop back off the pace, came again and finished with good courage. WISHING STAR could not improve his position. IRISH VOTE was never dangerous. SASSAFRAS was done after six furlongs. AMERICAN BELLE suffered interference going into the backstretch and would not extend herself.

At the Post . . .

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, Md., May 13.

Dear Al:

With the exception of a steeplechase and one other race, the programs here have smacked of Charles Town this week. With the opening of tracks all over the country, Maryland probably is fortunate that the season on the major circuits ends on Saturday. It is a good break for the owners of cheap horses. They are competing for $900 purses when their charges belong in the $300 division. And the public seems to enjoy it. The people probably figure that a $13.80 mutuel on a bad-legged horse is as good as the same figure on a handicap horse. However, the cheaper the horses get the more they seem to become eligible for the "We-Beat-Each-Other Club. In fact, upsets here have been so frequent that perhaps the cheapest horse on the grounds, by a series of comparisons, would have to bet in a match race with the best horse hereabouts. We have had our share of winners the past few days but I'll have to admit that Beaveau didn't win "as far as Clocker Mike can throw a stone." He lost by that margin.

BILL.

First race—Wedding Ring was a bit sore going to the post last out and ran second. He seems well placed in this company and appears to be headed for a set of brackets. Golden Vein was a fair sort last year and may be close. At Dusk and Veritas are possibilities.

Second race—Ronfalon, a hot tip last out, may have needed that last effort. Gets in with steadying weight here and may take the purse. Fez and Western Run for the other awards. The Swagman is dangerous.

Third race—Chiliad, with Whitey Abel in the saddle, could take the chief award in this company despite top weight of 118 pounds. Snobby Scamp and Nandi appear to be the ones to beat.

Fourth race—The Stag II gets the call in the steeplechase. He is asked to carry 160 pounds but should win. Stir and Well Played are fit and ready and should battle it out if the top one falters.

Fifth race—Mister Gander will down these if he isn't left at the post. I'm going to take my chances. Abbot's Last and Sand Cloud for the place and show.

Seventh race—Candle Fly was flying at the end here yesterday. May win this with an assignment of 103 pounds. Star Queen can better that last. Madeagle for the minor award. Fife and Just Remember would have to be respected in the mud.

Eighth race—Mad Frump, Fervid and Repeal is the way I prefer them in the finale. River Rose would go well on an off track.

Braddock Chases Louis for Fight

You've been saying for a year that you want a shot at the title and I'm willing to give it to you. Suppose you and me get together in New York as soon as you've gotten this Max Schmeling out of the way. I'm through with Madison Square Garden. The folks there want to wish John Henry Lewis on me, but I'm not going to take him. I licked him a year ago.

Louis More Than Willing.

"I'm not fighting anymore light heavyweights. So how about it, kid—do we fight or do we fight?"

Louis blinked in amazement at this unorthodox approach by Braddock. Then he drawled, "Sure, I'll fight you Jim. As soon as I smack down this Schmeling. I'm your man. There's nothing I'd rather do—and if you don't mind my saying so, I think that championship of yours is practically mine right now. You name the date and I'll be there. I'll guarantee you little Joey won't disappoint you. No, sir. Write your own ticket, the money means nothing to me. All I want is a bang at that championship."

Now, all of this pulaver, while it listens well, is more than likely to turn the deadlocked heavyweight situation into a free-for-all. Both Braddock and Gould are certain they can walk out on the Garden and they say they intend to do so at once. The Garden's contract with Braddock stipulates that a "satisfactory" opponent must be furnished for him not later than July 29. The joker is in that word, "satisfactory," and Jim claims that John Henry Lewis doesn't measure up to his standards as an adversary.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, who is staging the Louis-Schmeling slaughter in the Yankee Stadium on June 18, has been advised by his attorneys that he may now deal with Braddock as a free agent.

Louis' first day at Lakewood was one for the book. The fellow posed for more movie cameras than a Hollywood juvenile. Some of the finest tin ears in boxing were on hand to wish him well. Little Tony Canzoneri, hiding behind a pair of smoked glasses; Tommy Loughran, the guy who goes on forever; Johnny Dundee and a dozen other beaser-bashers were there. Even Ali Baba, the Armenian rug peddler, who is our current rassling champ, horned his way into the festivities, fez and all. This swarthy mustachioed menace, who is built along the lines of a 10-ton truck, stowed away four steaks and was no end annoyed when the management presented him with the tab and informed him he wasn't scoffing on the house.

Ali Baba Angered.

Poor old Ali left in a kurdish huff and vowed he wouldn't return unless he were guaranteed better treatment, which means he'll be indefinitely absent. Nat Fleischer, veteran editor of Ring magazine, the bible of boxing, presented Braddock, Canzoneri and Loughran with elegant gold-encrusted belts as tokens of their progress. These gadgets were impractical, since they'd scarcely hold a fellow's pants up, but they should look very good on the piano, beside the family album. Braddock's trophy was given in recognition of his championship. Canzoneri got his on general principles and there was none to say he hadn't earned it.

But Louis—and here's one that'll devastate—won his award for being the No. 1 boxer of 1935, despite the achievement of Champ Jim. The management broke out a 40-pound birthday cake for young black Joe and Canzoneri, Loughran and Braddock rent the breezes with an off-key version of "Happy Birthday to You," that was no good, but loud as hell.

Old Line Show Lists Myer Entries

President May Attend Maryland U.'s Event on Saturday.

Four of Fort Myer's brightest stars will be entered by officers from the Virginia garrison in the University of Maryland Horse Show to be held on Saturday in the Byrd Stadium, at College Park.

The crack riders from the Army may have an opportunity, too, to perform before their chief, because it was indicated at the White House yesterday that President Roosevelt may attend the meet.

Capt. Marion Carson, Lieut. Frank S. Henry and Lieut. Clark Lynn, three of the foremost equestrians at Fort Myer, will show the string of horses that are to be exhibited in the Maryland show.

Turn On, ace of polo and hunt fields, as well as the show ring, and Wise, a consistent open jumper, will be handled by Capt. Carson. Brown Woods, a regular winner in hunter classes, will carry Lieut. Henry, while Lieut. Lynn will exhibit a newcomer, Guess Again.

Marvn McIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, received an invitation for the Chief Executive from a committee of students composed of Fred J. Hughes, jr., show chairman; June Barnsley, Fay Reuling and Sam Bogley and declared that the President would attend unless other duties interfered.

Pitt's 72 Wins Medal in Chevy Chase Golf Invitation Tourney

Manor's Ace Hits Stride With 38-34

Peacock, Big Favorite, Fails to Qualify; 76 Makes Grade.

By Dave Herman.

With a flash of his old fire and cunning, Harry Pitt, veteran Manor Club shotmaker, ripped off a 72, three over par, yesterday to win the medal in the historic Chevy Chase invitation golf tournament—Washington's first big amateur event of the season.

Champion in 1928, '29 and '30, Pitt bounded back into form and covered the 6,538-yard, stiffly trapped course in 38—34, to lead 17-year-old Bobby Brownell, of Manor, and 26-year-old Max Taylor, of Beaver Dam, to the tape by a one-stroke margin.

Although par was not equaled for the 18 holes, the scoring was unusually good, so good, in fact, that late in the evening six of the participants, tied at 76, had to play-off for five qualifying places.

Peacock Fails to Qualify.

Among favorites who failed to qualify for the championship flight were Roger Peacock, of Congressional, District champion, who was to have been a marked man in the tournament; Levi Yoder, of Kenwood; Hickman Greene, of Manor, defending champion; Billy Dettweiler, youthful Congressional ace, and Tommy Webb, jr., long-driving Washington Golf and Country Club ace.

Peacock's failure to qualify was disappointing. His was a 77, which was no score for such a sterling golfer as Peacock. But Roger's putter was in a bad mood, and he 3-putted six greens for a 37 and 40.

Several of the topnotch golfers were caught in the swirl of the afternoon's thunderstorm, which washed out the hopes of Yoder, who had a 77; Greene and Webb, who had 78s, and Dettweiler, who had 79.

Capt. D. F. Stace, Army and Navy champion, a newcomer to local tournament golf, and Volney Burnett, Indian Spring's firefighter, qualified nicely with 74s, each.

Good Scoring in Playoff.

Miller B. Stevinson, of Columbia, a one-time champion; Maj. Dick Sutherland, of Army and Navy; Johnny Brawner and Page Hufty, of Chevy Chase; M. Parker Nolan and Eddie Bean, of Beaver Dam, made the grade with 75s each. Brawner had to put on a rally after taking an eight on the second hole.

The playoff brought out some excellent scoring, each of the winners negotiating the first hole in par 4s. D. Pittman, of Kenwood, failed in the one-hole duel, while Ralph Quinter, jr., of Chevy Chase; Carlies Pettijohn, young Georgetown student; Martin F. McCarthy, of Beaver Dam, and Russ Hollebaugh, of Kenwood, qualified.

| Pitt— | | | | | | | | | | |

Welsh Upsets Rippy in Golf Tourney

After disposing of H. Philpot, 6 and 4, in his morning match, Rippy waded into stern opposition in the afternoon. He had Welsh, 1 up and 2 to go when the storm broke. Welsh wanted to cease firing, so the story goes, but Rippy requested that they keep on playing.

Oliveri gained the finals by defeating Eddie Stolark, 2 up, and Bob Leapley, 3 and 1. Welsh in his morning match took Jim Morris, 5 and 4.

The final results will be played today.

Results:

First Flight.

Andy Oliveri defeated Eddie Stolark, 2 up; Bob Leapley defeated Gus Kupka, 3 and 1; Barney Welsh defeated Jim Morris, 5 and 4; Claude Rippy defeated R. Philpot, 6 and 4.

Semifinals—Oliveri defeated Leapley, 3 and 1; Welsh defeated Rippy, 1 up.

Second Flight.

W. Marcey defeated W. Prendable, 2 and 1; Harry Saunders defeated R. Green, 7 and 6; R. Frost defeated L. Nichols, 1 up; G. W. Keene defeated E. F. Riley, 1 up.

Keene defeated Frost, 1 up; Saunders defeated Marcey, 1 up.

Third Flight.

B. Pikutark defeated J. S. Beckhan, 1 up; A. Scheeley won by default.

Out Fishin' . . . . .

By Jack Hawley.

Anglers returning from Oregon Inlet are not all complaining of their failure to catch enough fish. True, a few did have very poor luck and said local fishing editors have withheld their "fish stories" until the blues had arrived.

The writer disagrees. Bluefish are very plentiful at Oregon Inlet and in the channels, and bigger than ever before. However, they are not hitting the large-sized spoon intended for channel bass, used by many, instead of the smaller Pflueger record spoon or white Japanese feather, 3-foot wire leader, a half dozen red beads below a June bug spinner.

Many failed to arrive on the fishing grounds immediately after daylight—the time to catch them before they scattered. The same applies to fishing on the change of the tide during late afternoon—the beginning of the flood tide. Even the netters agreed the fish were there, millions of them. Where? In the shallows of the breakers and the channels where no boat could reach them while they were feeding upon live bait.

To cite one of a large number of examples of what appeared to be a fruitless and expensive fishing trip: Detective Dalstrom, of Washington, and party of three landed one bluefish the first day out. They returned to the hotel disappointed and talked to the writer regarding prospects for the following day. We suggested early fishing at a given area. The following evening they returned with 32 large ones. Had they spent but one day at Oregon Inlet, they would have gone home believing local writers were being bribed to rush the season. This case is not an isolated one.

We cite a case of Carter Barron, of this city, who had never landed a channel bass. On Saturday, May 2, he connected with a 34-pounder, landing his fine fish in 20 minutes on an 18-pound test line.

Through error caused by one seeking publicity, we wish to correct the "Manteo Rescue" and give full credit to Capt. George Mann, of Duck Island, to whom we talked after the damage had been done.

More than 150 parties are booked for Oregon Inlet up to and including June 1. To date only four individuals have registered complaint—we sent them down too early.

Bluefish are fast movers and wait for no angler, judging from Capt. Taft Lippitt, who was fishing at the mouth of the Honga River last Sunday and caught 84 large hardheads and one bluefish.

The water in the oPtomac is ideal now for fresh-water fishing; for salt-water fishing try Benedict and Point Lookout. Boats from the latter place are going to the Honga River.

Title Bout Contract Is Signed by Ross

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 13.—To the accompaniment of clinking glasses, Barney Ross, today signed articles to risk his world's welterweight championship in a 15-round battle against Jack Carroll in Australia next December, for a guarantee of $45,000.

The formal signing of the match, which has been hanging fire for weeks, occurred at a luncheon given by Ross for Charles Lucas, Australian promoter.

The battle will be staged in Sydney on the night of December 8, in the Sydney Sports Ground, an immense football field. Lucas said prices of seats would range from $25 to $1. There will be 15,000 ringside seats, selling from $25 down to $5 and 25,000 bleacher seats at $1 each. The arena will have a seating capacity of 50,000.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

Chicago, May 13.

Even to the innocent bystanders, the most apparent thing about Buck Newsom, aside from his 6 feet 2 inches, and his 185 pounds, is his burning hate for Rogers Hornsby, which, I understand, is not a one-sided affair. While baseball men in both big leagues readily concede that Hornsby is a smart manager and a shrewd trader, Newsom constitutes an emphatic minority of one.

POVICH.

At mention of Hornsby's name, the big Washington pitcher invariably mumbles a derogative "humph" that is the equivalent of some such utterances as "that big bum, why——" but that is only a starter. Newsom prates for hours in defamation of the Browns' manager and prefers that you quote him verbatim.

Newsom and Hornsby fell out three years ago, it seems, when Newsom was pitching for the Browns. Buck never does say what particular incident inspired their hate, but in sweeping generalities asserts that Hornsby is not much manager, plays favorites, thinks he knows it all, and is otherwise overrated.

But it is all very mutual. If Hornsby thinks you are interested at all, he seldom muffs the opportunity to put in the rap for Newsom. Down in Orlando last spring he chuckled loudly, not so much over the fact that he sold Newsom to Clark Griffith for $40,000, but because, as he said, he was paid for a pitcher who wasn't worth $40,000 or even close to it. In short, he will readily tell you that Newsom is not much pitcher.

And now, Newsom has been seized with a new ambition. It is bluntly to win as many games by himself as the entire St. Louis team wins for Hornsby this season. And the strange circumstance is that the irrepressible galoot is actually doing it. He has pitched four victories for the Nats, this while the Browns have only won four of their 24 games since the season started.

What at first Newsom himself realized was just an idle boast has now become an obsession with him. He actually is beginning to believe that he will win as many games himself, personally, this season, as the Browns win for Hornsby. Only Newsom could nurse such an ambition, but he is, nevertheless, permitting himself to toy with it.

Big Buck is currently exulting over that 13-game losing streak of Hornsby's team, which finally ended the other day. Setbacks for Hornsby are both nectar and ambrosia to the big Washington pitcher and his first move after the game is to inquire the results of the Browns' contests.

There is even some justification this season for Newsom's charges that Hornsby is neither a great manager nor a great trader. With the Browns playing .160 ball, the figures cast a serious reflection on Hornsby's managerial acumen and those trades for which he was hailed as a genius last season are now beginning to develop a seamy side.

When Hornsby traded George Blaeholder to the Athletics for Ed Coleman, and Oscar Melillo to the Red Sox for Julius Solters and $20,000 cash, and both Coleman and Solters immediately began to pound the cover off the ball for the Browns, Hornsby was deemed to be the league's shrewdest trader. And his reputation didn't suffer when he exchanged Alan Strange to Washington for Lyn Lary and Lary, too, began to slam the ball around.

But this season, Hornsby's "finds" of 1935, with the exception of Lary, are proving colossal busts. Coleman can't break into the outfield regularly, and Solters is far below the .300 mark. Blaeholder, the pitcher he traded away, has won three games and lost none for Cleveland, which is only one less than the entire St. Louis team has been able to win.

HARYA, BUCK.

In Short—

The Chicago White Sox netted only $400 as their share of the gate for the two games played at St. Louis against the Browns . . . not enough to meet the team's hotel bill . . . and they are reviving talk of transferring the Browns' franchise to Milwaukee, or some other Western city that would support it . . . The White Sox have remodeled Comiskey Park to give it the same measurements it had before home plate was moved 14 feet closer to the fences in order that Al Simmons could shoot for home runs . . . When Simmons failed to hit many homers and a checkup was made, it was discovered that of the 111 home runs hit in Comiskey Park last season, the Sox made only 50 . . . and it was the opposition that was getting the benefit of the closer fences.

D. C. Trackmen Prepare for Tryouts

A.A.U. Meet Here Picked as Regional Olympic Trial Competition.

Giving evidence of unprecedented interest in the affair, a small army of District trackmen have peeled off their mufti and are buckling down to the serious and strenuous business of preparing for the annual D. C. A. A. U. track and field championships scheduled May 30 at the University of Maryland.

Because the event has been designated a regional Olympic tryout, a record-breaking entry list is expected by the committee in charge. Trackmen from nearby Maryland and Virginia, as well as Washington, have signified their intention of entering and Dorsey Griffith already has received a sizable batch of applications.

If performances of college boys during the current season indicate the brand of competition that will be in evidence at the meet, it should be a worthwhile attraction. Coleman Headley, Maryland's record-breaking distance runner; Dixie Walker, Catholic University's star sprinter, and "Cowboy" Burnett, a remarkably improved miler from Gallaudet, top the list of candidates already enrolled.

Every contestant must be a registered member of the A. A. U. to be eligible and must pay an entrance fee of 25 cents for each event. A fee of $2 will be exacted from relay teams. Blanks can be obtained from Griffith at Catholic University, at Maryland and at Spalding's.

April Building Permits 62.4% Over Year Ago

Month's Volume Largest Recorded Since August, 1931.

New York, May 13.—A further seasonal rise was noted in the building industry during April. The dollar value of permits issued in 215 cities of the United States, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $83,966,821, against $78,072,223 during March and $51,717,570 in April, 1935. There is here shown an increase of 7.5 per cent over March, or slightly more than the usual seasonal gain, while the rise over the same month of last year amounts to 62.4 per cent.

The April building permit volume was the largest recorded since August, 1931, and marked the sixteenth consecutive month to show an increase over the corresponding period of the previous year.

Steel Demand Held at Level By Auto Orders

Decision on Price Raise Is Not Expected Before June 1.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 13 (AP).—The trend of steel demand remains "highly encouraging," said Iron Age today in its mid-week summary of the iron and steel trade conditions. Steel ingot production has declined only ½ of 1 percentage point to 67½ per cent of capacity. Output in many districts has shown no decline from the previous week.

Regrading recent reports of an impending advance in finished steel prices for the third quarter, the publication declared that "no producer has determined any definite policy on the subject."

"It's certain that no decision can be reached before June 1, and if higher prices are announced at that time, consumers would be given ample opportunity to cover their summer needs at current levels.

"The experience of the industry has proved that mid-year price advances are not desirable. Demand is invariably declining at that time, and even though orders can be sharply stimulated during June by such action, business suffers accordingly in July and August.

"This occurred in 1934 when the third quarter was one of the poorest in the industry's history. A similar setback was suffered the year before, after the inception of the NRA."

"The automobile industry, asserted the summary, is contributing heavily to the maintenance of steel business. Some tonnage is already being placed for June delivery but parts makers are curtailing their takings as the first step in reducing inventories in anticipation of model changes."

Sheet and Strip Output Steel History's Peak.

New York, May 13 (AP).—The American Iron and Steel Institute today reported that sheet and strip steel output in 1935 was the highest in the history of the steel industry. Combined output of these products last year was 7,823,146 gross tons, 45 per cent higher than in 1934 and above the previous record of 7,757,791 gross tons in 1929.

Sheet steel production last year totaled 5,175,557 gross tons and strip gross tonnage output was 2,647,589. The high production record, the Institute said, reflected mainly greatly expanded sales of automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines and farm equipment.

Coal Dividend Resumed.

Chicago, May 13 (AP).—The Peabody Coal Co. has declared a dividend of $2 on preferred stock, including accumulations, payable May 25. The payment is the first November 2, 1931, when a $1.50 dividend was declared.

Stocks and Bonds Improve Moderately in Dull Trading; Wheat Advances.

New York, May 13.—Mild improvement in tone gave the stock market a better appearance at the close, but activity was too restricted for traders to work up much enthusiasm. It appeared to be easier to bid up prices than to depress them. Bonds also were steady to firm. September wheat closed ¾ of a cent higher at 84⅜ cents a bushel.

Trading volume in stocks appears to be cut to pattern much the same way as are prices, money rates and brokers' loans. A turnover of around 600,000 shares, for the third day in succession, was reported, and price irregularity continued, with narrow markets for most issues. A few stocks broke out of the rut.

One was Zenith Radio, which seemed to have the right sort of sponsorship and which in repeated appearances on the tape attracted a mild public following. The price was shoved up nearly 2 points, which was about 10 per cent. Other issues to rise 1 to 3 points were Bayuk, Clark Equipment, Greyhound and Pet Milk. National Lead jumped 10 points on one sale. An offset was weakness in Type Founders preferred and Chicago Mail Order, the one falling 3½ and the other 2⅝ points, both to a new low. Both classes of International Agricultural preferred made new lows on fractional losses.

Liquors Strengthen.

As a group the liquor stocks stood almost alone for buoyancy. They were the feature of the market, with much gossip about settlement of a dispute over the Pennsylvania special tax, a settlement with the Government over bootlegging, and so on. A number of the whisky issues rose 1 to 3 points, including Distillers-Seagrams, Hiram Walker, Schenley and National Distillers. Farm implements also were strong. Case, Deere and Harvester rose 1 to 2 points. Mail orders were mixed. Tobaccos were well bought and some moved up 1 to 3 points.

Leading steels were firmer, as were motors, but Auburn made a new low. Rails did better. Nickel Plate jumped 2 points on one sale. Anaconda led the coppers.

Money markets and foreign exchange tried again to extricate ity markets. Taking note of the fact that a lot more future contracts for the delivery of francs mature between the 15th and 25th of this month, shorts in French exchange tried again to extrirate themselves by covering instead of carrying forward their lines at a fresh discount cost of $1,900 per 1,000,000 francs for 30 days. This put the franc rate back to around 6.60 cents, and prevented a further draft from this market upon the Bank of France gold reserves. Although the French outlook by no means has been clarified, and in many respects is more uncertain, there is evidence that a good many bears on francs are being worn out by the long time France has been teetering on the edge without falling off its present gold standard.

Stocks Are Firmer.

Along the foundation the securities markets looked a little firmer. At any rate, it appears that the testimony of real tax experts before the Senate committee was having an effect on the more intelligent members, and that as a result drastic changes were likely in the Administration's proposal for soaking the soakable at the expense of the general welfare. Even Senator Harrison now admits that in its present form the surplus tax would help to cement strong corporations in monopolistic positions and drive out weaker enterprises, as well as greatly to deplete Treasury revenue and lengthen the time when the budget conceivably might be balanced.

Business Maintained.

It is depressing that such a bill even could be proposed, and that fact bodes no good for the future; but it is also encouraging to note signs of an awakening to economic and fiscal realities by some of the more responsible members of the Senate. At the same time business and individuals might as well face the fact that from no on taxes are bound to turn upward, and sharply, and proceed for some distance in that direction.

Industrial news at the midweek was favorable. Railroad freight car loadings for last week, as indicated by reports of leading carriers, increased 16 per cent over a year ago, but dropped slightly from the total of the preceding week. Electrical output continued to rise. As for the steel industry, Iron Age says that "the trend of demand remains extremely encouraging," although the review doubts recent stories of steel price increases at this time. A bright spot is the automotive industry. Railroads would buy much more equipment if they had the money and already have bought much more heavily than in any recent year, but orders from the construction industry are somewhat disappointing in the light of recent optimistic prophecies.

Business Is Dull.

The slump into which trading has fallen is particularly discouraging because within the last few months a good many brokerage houses have increased their clerical forces and raised the pay. Brokers in many instances are more concerned with the fall in sales volume than with the direction of prices, and for the slump in business they give SEC and the New Deal most of the credit. The Federal Reserve Board's blow to trading in lifting the margin requirement and the SEC's procedure against a number of brokers for alleged wash sales or "making markets" have done much to discourage both small traders and large operators. Few brokerage houses can make money when trading volume runs between a half and three-quarters of a million shares daily, the present rate.

Prophecy.

Our favorite stock market commentator, who hasn't issued a written market prophecy since April, 1935, returns to the lists. "Usually after a severe break in the stock market," he writes, "there is a period betwixt and between where stocks appear to be too low to sell and not low enough to buy. We believe the broad underlying factors call for a continuation of the bull market, but it may take several weeks or months before speculators and investors regain confidence. One of the principal reasons why stocks went up much faster than they should have was because of a reluctance on the part of large stockholders who, having purchased at low prices, would not sell because of the tremendous tax on profits. Obviously, when the reaction started, these same people, not having sold, were not in a position to buy. Hence, we saw the disconcerting spectacle of rapid decline with practically little or no support. The vulnerable technical position of five or six weeks ago gradually is being corrected."

Marks at Discount.

A gentlemen's agreement which has worked so long and so successfully in the money market appears badly needed in the market for restricted European currencies. Leading banks that are parties to the standstill agreement and offer restricted marks for sale for travel purposes, have been jockeying the rate for a week or ten days in an effort to find a price that would appeal to the tourist. Last week the banks thought the market was going to be brisk and quoted a price around 27 cents. With the passing of the week-end the demand failed to materialize and the rate was cut to 24.75 cents. Today it was fixed at 24 cents, the lowest in a long time, and a discount of 40 per cent from par value. That is about the same as the discount at which marks are selling in the London market.

Lire.

While some think the financial position of Italy is worse than that of Germany, some think the opposite. At any rate, the Italian tourist lire is selling in the market at a smaller discount from par than is German travel currency. Spot lire are worse than spot marks, but travel lire are offered at a discount of only 32 per cent.

Chinese Silver.

Far Eastern foreign exchange circles are doing a little guessing about the fruits to come from the long conferences between the Secretary of the Treasury and the Chinese government representatives on the silver question. Most authorities look merely for a commitment on the part of the Treasury to exchange gold or dollars for Chinese silver at some fixed rate for Chinese exchange, with an option to China to sell in the world market when the price in London is higher than the price the Treasury will agree to pay China under the proposed deal.

Stock Trading In Canada Tops N. Y. Boards

Boom in Mining Shares Is Responsible for Increased Volume.

By the United Press.

Montreal, May 13.—The Toronto stock exchange and the Montreal stock exchange today had aggregate volume of transactions of 3,267,922 shares, or 372 per cent above the combined volume of the New York stock exchange and the New York curb exchange which amounted to only 769,000 shares.

For the month of May to date the two Canadian exchanges had a combined total of 25,746,644 shares, or 133 per cent over the 11,063,000 for the two New York markets.

A boom in mining stocks—especially the penny issues—accounted for the sharp gain in volume in Canadian markets, while the New York market, hampered by many uncertainties, fell off to the lightest trading in 10 months.

10 Cents to $4.90.

The mine boom began a short time ago when the speculative fever was inspired by a jump in a 10-cent stock to $4.90 a share. The gain came when a diamond drill test showed more gold in the mine than surface assays revealed. Immediately the whole mining section was galvanized into action. Stock after stock was bid up and brokers said the gains were justified in only a few of them.

Just about the time the boom got under way, the French franc dropped and it appeared as if the franc would not be able to remain on gold. That would mean disintegration of the small gold bloc with all the difficulties such move would entail. Hence traders reasoned gold stocks would be a good hedge and bought more heavily. There were rumors that the United States might devalue further if the franc fell and the boom gathered momentum.

Another factor in the buying has been the spurt of activity in the mines, especially those which would be closed by the winter weather. It is notable that speculation has been very light in the seasoned mines which operate the year around.

D. C. Bankers Name Convention Speakers

Frank G. Addison, jr., president of Security Savings and Commercial Bank and chairman of the program committee, announces the following speakers for the opening session of the convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association at White Sulphur Springs beginning May 28.

Robert V. Fleming, president, Riggs National Bank, who, as the head of the American Bankers Association, will present as the first speaker a picture of banking from the national viewpoint; J. Harvie Wilkinson, vice president, Virgina State-Planters Bank & Trust Co., of Richmond, who will discuss "Bonds in a bank's portfolio;" "Some aspects of banking and suretyship" by Charles H. McComas, manager and attorney of Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland.

A review of commercial trade activities by Norman E. Towson, assistant treasurer, Washington Loan & Trust Co., will be followed by a report on Treasury Relations from Lanier P. McLachlen, president, McLachlen Banking Corporation. Charles H. Doing, president of the association, will be in the chair.

Eastman Kodak Co. Votes Usual Extra

Rochester, N. Y., May 13 (AP).—Directors of Eastman Kodak Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share and the usual extra quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock.

Regular quarterly $1.50 also was declared on the 6 per cent preferred. The dividends are payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 5.

Stock Trading Slower But 3 Times Year Ago

Boston, Mass., May 13.—Transactions on the New York Stock Exchange dropped considerably in April from the fairly high rate of transactions in the previous months. In spite of this, nearly twice as many shares were traded than a year ago, while trading in the first four months of this year was three times greater than the same 1935 months.

Clouds in Europe Advance Wheat

Chicago, May 13 (AP).—Increasing tenseness of the European political situation, together with disquiet over Washington farm-finance develepments, led to scarcity of wheat sellers today that lifted prices.

Caution on the part of would-be sellers of wheat was emphasized by notable strength of the Liverpool market, where quotations not only refused to follow yesterday's downturns of values this side of the Atlantic, but on the contrary went sharply higher.

Wheat closed firm, ⅝ to 1 cent above yesterday's finish, May 92⅞@98, July 85@85⅝, corn ⅛ off to ¼ up, May 62½, oats at ⅛ decline to ⅜ advance, and provisions varying from 12 cents setback to 7 cents gain.

Power Output In May 9 Week All-Time High

8,000,000 Refrigerators Respond to Sudden Hot Weather.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 13.—The Associated Press index of electric power production advanced for the week ended May 9 to 107.9 per cent of the 1929-30 average to the highest point in the history of the industry.

The previous week the index stood at 106.9 per cent and a year ago it was at 95.5 per cent. The current rise in the index resulted from a more than seasonal advance in actual power production.

The Edison Electric Institute reported actual power production for the week ended May 9 at 1,947,771,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 1 per cent from the previous week and 14.5 per cent from the corresponding week of the year before. For the week ended May 2 the advance over the corresponding week of 1935 was 13.6 per cent.

The institute pointed out that the increase was due almost entirely to the abrupt jump from spring into the heat of summer. With the temperature throughout the country ranging 10 degrees above both last week and the same period a year ago, the 8,000,000 electric refrigerators in use in the country took enough extra current to account for the bulk of the 18,968,000 kilowatt-hour gain.

C. E. Stuart Resigns From Export Bank

The resignation of Charles E. Stuart, vice president of the Export-Import Bank since its formation two years ago, was announced yesterday by R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State and chairman of the bank's board of trustees.

Stuart plans to return to private business, actively resuming the presidency of the New York Engineering firm of Stuart, James & Cooke, which he has headed for a number of years. The bank was formed by the Government to assist exporters in financing credits extended to foreign purchasers.

International Broadcast Features Richmond Convention.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., May 13.—A message from President Roosevelt, in praise of public libraries, was read today as part of an international radio broadcast in which Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes spoke from Washington and Earnest A. Savage, president of the British Library Association, spopke from Edinburgh, Scotland.

The Roosevelt message was read by Dr. John Stewart Bryan, president of the Richmond library board, who was toastmaster at a "friends of the library" luncheon, sponsored by the American Library Association, in conference here.

Terming the free public library "distinctly an American contribution to civilization," the President felicitated the library group.

The luncheon program followed a morning session in which Ralph Munn, director of the Carnegie Library at Pittsburgh, told the librarians that they had lowered their standards by trying to serve a large part of the population that demands only recreational reading.

Students Must Aid in Fight On Crime, Hoover Declares

Chief of Federal Justice Agents Addresses Maryland Undergraduates Before He Is Initiated Into Leadership Fraternity.

By the Associated Press.

College Park, Md., May 13.—College students have an obligation to remind the world that crime is "sordid, filthy and dirty," J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said today in an address.

He made his speech to the student body of the University of Maryland before accepting an invitation to join Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary leadership fraternity.

"I want to debunk the idea of romance in crime," Hoover said. In furtherance of this idea, he said, the Federal agents under his direction do not call criminals "public enemies."

"They like to be considered big shots," he asserted. "I'd rather call them Public Rat No. 1 and Public Rat No. 2."

More than 2,000 students heard him call crime "really the largest business in the world." It can be effectively fought, he added, if young persons will bring ideals and enthusiasm into law enforcement as a profession.

Melvin Courtney Lankford, of Baltimore, incoming president of O. D. K. introduced Hoover.

Eight other students were "tapped" by the fraternity at the same time Hoover was selected. They were:

John J. Gormley, Chevy Chase; Warren R. Evans, Bladensburg; John C. Lovell, New Windsor; Lewis T. Gibbs, Washington; Pike Johnson, Washington; Victor Willis, Elkton; Carlisle Humelsine, Hagerstown; and Leonard Smith, Washington.

Mortar Board, women's honorary scholastic society, picked seven new members today. There were: Mary B. Crisp, Baltimore; Margaret Williams, Silver Spring; Voncile Davis, College Park; Mary Frances Garner, Washington; Geraldine Schuh, Chevy Chase; Ruth Kreiter, Washington; and Flora Waldman, Washington.

On the Air Today

This is the night that Mr. Willard Smith is to stand up in WMAL's studio and spell against an entire team of eight spellers from the ranks of the Patent Office and Agriculture spelling societies. The time is 8:35.

Mr. Smith, who is employed in the Navy Department, innocently acquired the title of champion speller of the District when he began consistently to outspell the members of the Capital City Spelling Club, headed by E. C. Helm.

He goes about his duties bearing the load of a challenge issued by the club to the effect that $100 will be paid to any team in the District or adjacent territory which can outspell him and seven associates from the club. An individual prize of $25 is ready for any individual who defeats him in an open contest.

Smith takes his position most calmly. Several months ago negotiations were begun with the National Broadcasting Co. whereby Smith would meet winners in several cities east of Chicago in a series of network spelling matches. These plans, however, have not yet materialized, but he's willing to take up the cudgels when and if the time arrives.

Tonight he will spell alternately with the eight members of the team to oppose him. As I have suggested several times before, sit down with a pencil and paper and try to spell the words called by Pronouncer Kurtz. You'll be surprised to find how difficult it all is—and how simple for Smith.

Features today:

Bing Crosby: Stages a "meet the family" night, introducing many persons who help put the "Music Hall" on the air but are never heard from one show to another. Also: Mayor English of Van Buren, Ark., Bob Burns' town. WRC, at 9.

Town Meeting: With Nicholas Roosevelt, former minister to Hungary, discussion of "Which Road to Pace Now?", WMAL at 8:30.

Walter Johnson: On "Montgomery Merry-Go-Round," WFMD, Frederick, at 5:30.

Pittsburgh Symphony. With Queena Mario, of the Met., WMAL, at 7.

"Morning Matinee": With Don Bestor orchestra; Gertrude L. Mayer, professional model, and Joan Marsh, WOL, at 8 a. m.

Senator Borah: Speaks from Newark, WMAL, at 7:30.

Ralph Kirbery: The "Dream Singer" returns to the networks, with Al and Lee Reiser, two-piano team, WRC, at 9:30 a. m.

It is Ted Church, feature boss at WJSV, who has always wanted to put on a program with no name. Just a listing of ? ? ? ? ?. And I agree that such a listing probably would attract as many listeners as any other ever conceived.

Mayor LaGuardia of Manhattan apparently has the same flair for showmanship. The mayor is exceedingly noise conscious these days, as you may have heard. So NBC has contributed its network facilities to stage a humorous dramatic program titled "Ssssssh!" Now "Ssssssh!" is not quite ? ? ? ? ? but the idea is closely enough allied that we shouldn't quibble about it. "Ssssssh" will be heard this afternoon at 4:45, WRC. The theme will be "Quiet, Please!" The mayor will be listening.

(It should be made perfectly clear that Church would not divulge the slightest inkling of what his ? ? ? ? ? would consist of, which makes the idea just a shade better than my telling you all about "Ssssssh!")

Auction Sales

TUES. MAY 19, 1936—
ADAM A. WESCHLER & SONS Auctioneers.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF THREE-STORY BRICK DWELLING, SEVEN ROOMS AND BATH, NO. 1924 N ST. N.W.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded, in Liber No. 6876, folio 359, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises on TUESDAY, THE NINETEENTH DAY OF MAY, 1936, at FOUR FIFTEEN O'CLOCK, P. M., the following-described property in the District of Columbia, to-wit: Lot 61 in Manley and Early's subdivision of part of Original Lot 13 in Square 116, as per plat recorded in the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 14 at folio 168. Subject to the right of redemption by the maker of the aforesaid deed of trust, their heirs and assigns, within a period of sixty days from the date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase-money to be paid in cash, balance in equal installments, represented by promissory notes of purchaser payable in one and two years, with interest at five per cent per annum from day of sale, payable semi-annually, secured by first deed of trust upon property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $300.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

CHARLES A. JONES,
PAUL J. FRIZZELL,
Trustees.

BEFORE YOU BUY ANY PIANO SEE THE Uprights and Grands which have outsold every other piano made in America during the past 50 years. The Kimball has made this record because it has always been the world's best piano value. You can trust the makers of Kimball Pianos because for 76 years the reputation of the company has never been questioned. Nothing but fine quality, excellent value and dependable service could have made the Kimball the most widely used among the world's famous pianos. See it first: it is an excellent guide as to both piano quality and price, representing, as it does, the National standard in piano value. Sold in Washington exclusively at the manufacturer's own store.

Utilities Denied Plea to Inspect Roosevelt Note

Justice Wheat Rules Court Cannot Order Letters of President Published.

By the United Press.

No court has a right to order publication of private or official correspondence by President Roosevelt relating to affairs of government, District of Columbia Supreme Court Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat ruled yesterday.

His decision was dramatic and important. The principle was first voiced by John Marshall in the historic treason trial of Aaron Burr.

Judge Wheat repeated it yesterday in the attempt of five utility companies to have the New Deal's $200,000,000 municipal power program declared unconstitutional.

Thomas Jefferson took a stand on the issue. So did President Roosevelt. Both considered their personal letters not privileged for court trials.

Three prominent attorneys fought over the question yesterday. Newton D. Baker, President Wilson's Secretary of War, and Dean Acheson, President Roosevelt's former Assistant Secretary of Treasury, represented the power interests.

Jerome Frank, a Chicago attorney with a varied career in the New Deal, represented Mr. Roosevelt and the Government.

Personal Note at Issue.

The letter at issue was a personal not President Roosevelt wrote PWA Administrator Harold L. Ickes from Hyde Park, N. Y., September 10, 1934, outlining his policy on financing municipal power plants with public money. It was signed "F. D. R." in pencil.

"It was that letter," Acheson said, "that told Ickes the New Deal policy should be to use funds forcing down private utility rates, but the Government should construct 'yardstick' power projects and see how low it could sell electricity."

"Of course," Baker added, "if the memorandum divulged America's view on foreign relations, or gave away military secrets—we would not ask that it be made public.

"But this letter deals with hundreds of millions of taxpayers dollars, and tells how they should be spent. There is nothing mysterious about its contents because of the policy Ickes has followed."

Quotes From Burr Trial.

Then, holding a dog-eared book containing the Burr trial history, he went on:

"President Jefferson knew he couldn't spend his time testifying in court trials all through the South and attend to the executive branch of the government.

"Now, these utility counsel, former Government officials themselves, seek to subpena President Roosevelt's letters. If they do that they can force him to testify personally."

There was no doubt of Judge Wheat's decision when he opened his remarks with, "I don't see where there can be any controversy about this."

As an afterthought he said:

Gas Firm Worker Tank Blaze Hero

Somerville, N. J., May 13 (U.P.).—George L. Creely, volunteer fireman, crept to the top of a 250,000-gallon gasoline tank today and with a raincoat beat out flames caused by a bolt of lightning which split the tank.

The bolt cracked the seam at the top of the tank parallel to the ground and gasoline caught fire as it oozed out under low pressure. There were 110,000 gallons in the tank.

Creely, superintendent of the Public Service & Gas Co., which has a giant tank 200 feet away, had seen the gas tank catch fire and instead of waiting for help put it out unassisted.

New Flying Schedule To Los Angeles Starts

A new midnight to mid-afternoon flying schedule from this city to Los Angeles was announced yesAterday by C. D. Renouf of the United Air Lines.

The advantage of the new schedule is that the scenic beauties of the West will be passed during the daytime instead of at night as in the past.

Quoddy Dam, Florida Canal Pleas Renewed

that the Florida canal board shall look into the question of the ground water levels, estimate the total cost of the canal, and determine its usefulness. One of the objections to the canal has been that it may result in ruining the fresh-water supply of southern Florida through seepage of salt water in the artesian-well rock strata.

The Passamaquoddy board would be instructed to review reports already made, and look into the engineering feasibility of the project and into its justification, including possible establishment of new industries in eastern Maine. The board also would be instructed to examine into its scientific value as an experiment in tidal power, and into estimated costs of construction, operation and maintenance.

The appropriation for the canal is contingent on a favorable report which would show that the total cost be not more than $150,000,000. The total cost of the power project may not exceed $42,000,000, according to the resolution.

"Camouflage," Says Critic.

"I have heard of the three-shell game, but this is the first time I have ever heard of the three-engineer game," Vandenberg said, commenting on the resolution. "The resolution confesses that the Administration doesn't dare meet the direct, naked issue again on the floor of the Senate, because they know the Senate would not stulitfy itself by changing the decision by which it has twice rejected the Florida canal, so they have devised this adroit scheme for clothing the President with indirect back-door authority to persist in these economically indefensible mistakes.

"It seems perfectly obvious that this is mere camouflage, because if a completely unprejudiced and independent survey was to be made on projects of a magnitude involving $250,000,000, no engineer could hope to cover the problems conclusively in three or four weeks.

"We have had one special Presidential board on Passamaquoddy already. After Secretary Ickes and the PWA had rejected this 'moondoggling' enterprise it was necessary suddenly to provide some otherwise lacking credentials in order to seem to justify the President in committing the country to this scheme. So we got our first board of experts appointed by the President. It consisted of four members and two of the four were directly connected with the original Quoddy application for PWA loans.

"Of course, they got a friendly report. It was like a banker referring a loan application blank to the applicant for investigation and report. But there was absolutely nothing in the report which nullified the considered conclusions of the Federal Power Commission that you could build the equivalent steam-generating plant at Quoddy for exactly half of what the harnessing of the tides will cost, and that the steam rates to ultimate consumers would be cheaper than the water rates.

"Then we have already had one special Presidential board on the Florida canal. Here again, after Ickes and the PWA had turned it down and a seasoned survey of the Department of Commerce had concluded it lacks economic justification, the President again needed some scenery to warrant a political decision in behalf of this enormously expensive nature fake.

Tax Bloc Request

ever that this bill is to the advantage of the strong, entrenched corporation, and disastrous to small companies," commented the Virginian.

Secretary Morgenthau, who told the committee that 1935 earnings data are not yet available, and confined his analysis to returns from the year previous, is understood to have testified that 138 corporations which in that period distributed more in dividends than they actually earned, would pay no taxes whatsoever under the proposed bill.

Although Morgenthau's appearance was in the privacy of the committee room, with no reporters present, Chairman Pat Harrison told reporters the Secretary further testified that while 283 corporations would get a 50 per cent or more cut in taxes under the bill, there would be at least an equal number of companies whose taxes would be increased 50 per cent.

Morgenthau did not have complete details to substantiate his later statement, it was learned, but promised to present the supporting data at a later date.

Troubled over where corporations, hard hit by the tax bill, will find funds to finance plant modernizations and extensions if earnings are forced into distribution, Republican and Democratic opposition to the bill determined to get Landis' views on the subject.

It was the contention of Senator James Couzens (Republican), Michigan, for example, that a company desiring to float $100,000 in new stock would have to pay $15,000 in expenses incident to clearing its record and registering the issue with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Large Sales Abroad.

Pointing to existing restrictions on security flotations in this country, Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, remarked in committee that securities sold abroad have far outdistanced recent stock sales in this country.

Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, who told the Treasury he would "go along with them" if they could show that small corporations could obtain money through stock sales, said the facts point to the contrary.

Remarking that smaller corporations are having great difficulty in finding a capital market, Bailey said he would have to be shown that these companies could recoup their capital through stock sales, before he could support the Treasury plan.

To the Treasury argument that dividends forced into the hands of stockholders by the new tax bill could be used to purchase new issues of stock in the company, Bailey replied that many shareholders would find themselves in the position of having to use their dividends for other purposes. In this event, Bailey argued, such shareholders would be discriminated against by being forced to accept a smaller pro-rata interest in the company floating new securities.

Chairman Landis, if he appears before the committee, is expected to contend that SEC regulations are not unduly restrictive on new security issues, and cite this year's increase in their volume in defense of this.

Senators, who point out that the cost of engineering surveys, legal and accounting work, and other items of expense preliminary to filing a prospectus involving issues of $100,000 and more, may ask how they can be made less onerous.

Capital Raising.

The Treasury's position was summed up as follows by Herman Oliphant, Treasury general counsel, at a recent hearing:

"Corporations, both large and small," he said, "can secure such capital as they need for the conduct of their operations by the sale of stock, either to stockholders or others, distribute notes to stockholders or by distribution of optional stock dividends as provided in Section 115 of the bill. The stock to be sold to stockholders could, of course, be taken up out of the cash dividends disbursed to such stockholders in an amount equal to the earnings which would have been directly reinvested in the absence of the tax."

Challenging this view, several committee members expressed doubt that it afforded adequate relief, and the request for the appearance of Landis followed.

The Senate Finance Committee marked time yesterday, pending receipt of estimates from the Treasury on revenue yields of several plans put forward as a basis for compromise. Outstanding among these is the suggestion by Chairman Harrison calling for retention of the corporation income tax at 5 per cent, and the imposition of surtaxes in addition on companies withholding more than 30 per cent of earnings. The surtaxes would range up to 45 per cent on companies which held back 50 per cent and more of earnings.

Opposition to the tax on earnings, based entirely on undistributed income, outlined in the House bill, has reached such a stage in the Senate Committee that the Administration itself appears to have lost hope of salvaging it.

Harrison, however, hopes to get an early "meeting of minds" in the committee on a plan that will contain at least the principles of the President's proposal for inducing dividend distributions.

"Our principal fight will come in the committee," Harrison said. "I do not look for much trouble in the Senate itself."

Asked for his attitude on recommendations submitted by Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, that special concessions be given companies which wish to invest earnings in plant modernization and expansion, Harrison said this must wait first on Treasury estimates.

Zioncheck Like 'Brain Trust,' Knox Declares

Publisher Addresses Rally of Seattle G.O.P.; Cites Puerto Rico Trip.

By the Associated Press.

Seattle, May 13.—Col. Frank Knox, Republican Presidential candidate, told Representative Marion Zioncheck's home-town folks tonight the Congressman's "gyrations have been not more fantastic than those of Hopkins and Tugwell and other leading lights of the New Deal hierarchy."

In a speech prepared for delivery at a Republican rally the Chicago publisher said:

"I believe one of the outstanding contributions made to the "Brain Trust" in Washington is your own Representative Zioncheck."

Col. Knox set forth four suggestions for a national policy, but said he was not attempting to write the Republican platform.

The suggestions were:

Balanced Budget.

The Supreme Court as final judge of the constiutionality of Federal and State legislation.

The Chicago publisher said he stood "uncompromisingly for a budget to be balanced immediately, by the businesslike course of bringing outgo within income, by the practice of rigid economy, by restoration of government to its proper functions and by the withdrawal of government from business.

"I believe in a sound and stabilized currency based upon gold, and made convertible into gold as swiftly as possible.

"I am violently and unalterably opposed to the employment of coercion either in business or agriculture as a remedy for economic ills. You cannot graft the principle of coercion upon a voluntary system."

Opposes Centralization.

Knox called for "a Federal union of sovereign States which was the Constitution-makers' great contribution to popular government." He said he opposed "the adoption in its stead of an autocratic bureaucracy—of centralization of all powers in Washington."

Knox said Zioncheck's "summary dismissal from his intimate relationships with Jim Farley and the White House" would not be "any different than the flight of any ordinary citizen from an earthquake, a tornado, or any other such inconvenient manifestation of nature, whether human or otherwise.

"I hope you all noted the fact that simultaneously with the arrival of Representative Zioncheck with his bride in Puerto Rico, there came from the White House press conference an intimation from President Roosevelt that he was in favor of the immediate independence of Puerto Rico.

"I have no doubt you share that view if Mr. Zioncheck will make it his permanent abode. I believe our Democratic friends also join in that decision because I understand that at least five of them are after his seat in the House."

Check Record Causes Loney's Ouster by PWA

Wood Expert Was Indicted In Pittsburgh, U. S. Officials Report.

Arch W. Loney, PWA wood expert, who burst into the national limelight when he proffered his services during the Hauptmann trial, has been "dismissed with prejudice," the Public Works Administration announced yesterday.

The dismissal is said to have been ordered because of Loney's alleged falsification of his application for employment with PWA. Discovery of falsification of application blanks, officials said, makes dismissal practically mandatory.

It was made clear that Loney's activities during the Hauptmann trial were not the reason for his discharge.

The publicity attendant activities, however, brought to light incidents in Loney's past which he had not mentioned in his application.

Before Loney came to PWA, officials said, he had been indicted in Pittsburgh for alleged passing of bad checks. He made no mention of this provided on the application blank. This charge was denied at the Loney home last night.

"That's all wrong," said his wife. "Mr. Looney was simply the head of a cnostruction company that failed.

She said that her husband had gone to bed and that he was not "supposed" to give a thing to papers." "Mr. Looney has full confidence in Secretary Ickes' sense of equity," she added.

Loney had been the "material cost" expert in the engineering division of PWA, but was recently transferred to another position within the department. His dismissal was said to be effective toroow.
